FEUD DEATHS ROCK POLICE

CHIEF SHIFTS 712, STIRRED BY WARD MURDERS

Maxwell St. Station Swept Clean.

Chief of Police Fitzmorris cleaned out the Maxwell and Englewood police districts last night in a sweeping combination transfer and suspension order which moved 712 members of the police department.

"If this order doesn't bring results I will suspend as many men next time as I am transferring today," Chief Fitzmorris declared emphatically.

"This order is for the good of Chicago. It is in line with Mayor Thompson's orders to clean up the city."

The order gives the Italian colony of the Nineteenth ward, where two workers for Ald. John Powers were assassinated recently, a brand new set of policemen. Every commanding officer, sergeant, detective and patrolman assigned to the Maxwell street station was shifted, and the territory bounded by Ashland avenue, the river, Roosevelt road, and Harrison street—the heart of west side Italy—was removed from the jurisdiction of the Desplaines street police and added to the Maxwell street district.

Detectives Comb Ward.

As the big order began to filter over the police wires, Chief of Detectives Hughes with a hundred men, on foot and in automobiles, began to give the Nineteenth ward one of the most painstaking combings in its history.

The raiders hit the ward just as hundreds of men and women were returning from the funerals of Paul Labriola and Harry Raimondi, victims of political feudists. Labriola's body was laid to rest at Mount Carmel; Raimondi's at Calvary.

The sweeping transfer order, second only in size to the one Fitzmorris issued when he shifted more than 800 men a few days after he took office, shifted five captains, eleven lieutenants, seventy-one sergeants and 625 patrolmen. The order leaves "two operators and the station cat" at Maxwell station and moves 168 men from Englewood to new berths.

Russell Goes to Austin.

Capt. William F. Russell, of Maxwell street, who has been seriously ill since Christmas and on furlough, was moved to sedate and quiet Austin. His place in command of the turbulent west side Italian colony, is given to Capt. Patrick Kelliher, recently promoted but familiar with the district through long service there as a lieutenant.

In Lieuts. Ira J. McDowell of Desplaines street and Charles L. Larkin of Austin, both transferred to Maxwell street, Capt. Kelliher receives the support of two strict disciplinarians in his job of quelling political assassinations.

With a big strike in the packing industry on the horizon, the chief sent Capt. Wesley H. Westbrook, former assistant chief, from Austin to the stockyards station. Westbrook displaces Capt. Kelliher and is noted for his ability to handle labor troubles.

The wholesale Englewood shifting is said to have been caused by the chief's desire to clean out old cliques which grew up during Capt. Ryan's régime. Capt. James P. Allman of Kensington is the new commanding officer.

Confers with the Packers.

Regarding the transfer of Capts. Westbrook and Allman the chief said: "I have had a conference with the packers and with a strike looming deemed it best to move Westbrook to the yards. He is a splendid disciplinarian. He knows military tactics thoroughly and would be just the man for a big emergency.

"As to Allman's shift to Englewood, apparently we need a martinet. Ninety per cent of the south side crime has occurred there. We need a cleanup man out there. Capt. Allman is that man."

Homer to Act at Kensington.

Under the order Capt. Stephen B. Wood, who is on sick leave, is moved on paper to Kensington, but Lieut. Matthew Homer will be acting captain for the present. Lieut. George Hutchinson will be in charge at Austin for Capt. Russell during his illness.

The lieutenants transferred, in addition to those mentioned, are: Sylvester Cotter, Maxwell to Town Hall; Michael Golden, Maxwell to South Wabash; Charles E. Burns, Wabash to Englewood; James J. Fleming, Maxwell to Stockyards; Samuel C. Rank, Stockyards to Englewood; Eugene F. Daly, Englewood to Stockyards; James E. Doherty, Sheffield to Austin; John C. Baumann, Austin to Sheffield; Michael W. Delaney, Englewood to Kensington.

Stock Yards Unions Start Strike Vote Today

Packers Join U. S. Parley, on Wage Cuts

Packers and union officials agreed last night to enter into conference with Secretary of Labor James J. Davis over their controversy of wage cuts and working conditions. Meanwhile balloting on the proposed stockyards strike will begin today in various cities.

At Fort Worth, Tex., and Sioux City, Ia., two of the union strongholds, the workers will decide by nightfall as to acceptance or rejection of the wage cut. Tomorrow other unions will vote. The majority, however, will not act until Wednesday night. The complete results are expected to be announced here Thursday night.

The conference—it can scarcely be called an arbitration council—will meet in Washington Friday, it was learned. Secretary Davis will preside. Neither the packers nor the union heads have yet named their representatives. The results of this parley, it was stated, will decide whether a strike will be ordered, should the unions vote in favor of one.

Strike Ballots Sent Out.

All the ballots for the strike referendum had been sent out by noon yesterday. The more distant locals will not receive them until Wednesday morning. The first move locally toward strike propaganda was announcement of parades and a mass meeting to be held this afternoon.

Monday morning the announced wage cut and change in working conditions will take effect in the yards here and in certain other cities, according to the packers' previous announcement.

On Wednesday there will be a conference of all trades unions employed in the stockyards to consider the question of a sympathetic strike and support of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters' and Butcher Workers' organization.

Unions' Reply to Davis.

The reply of the unions to Secretary Davis' offer of mediation was sent yesterday morning by Secretary-Treasurer Lane. It follows in part:

"We accept your tender of service to work out a solution of the present situation brought on by the deliberate and arbitrary violation and repudiation by the 'Big Five' packers of the agreement now in existence between your department, our and other regular organizations and the packers.

"We respectfully suggest that such conference be held in Washington next Friday, March 18, as we have a conference arranged here for the 16th, of all trades involved."

Armour Issues Statement.

A statement issued by J. Ogden Armour accepting Secretary Davis' offer on behalf of the "Big Five" packers, makes no mention of the war time arbitration agreement which was cancelled by them on Feb. 26.

"The nation's insistence on a return to normal and its refusal to pay war time prices in peace times, has caused the prices of our products in the aggregate to drop to what are practically pre-war levels," the statement says. "Our own business has been conducted at a loss for two years.

"Wage reduction, therefore, are not a matter of choice. We assume that the justice and necessity of wage cuts will not be an issue. Nor can there justly be an issue on the matter of hours. There are bound to be days when employés will work only a few hours just as there will be days when they cannot take care of the run in eight hours."

"The standards of the hours of labor established in mines, foundries, and manufacturing institutions handling nonperishable products cannot be applied in plants handling perishable produtes."

Workers Will Parade.

The meeting of the packing house workers on the prairie at Forty-seventh street and Western avenue this afternoon will be preceded by two parades.

The first of these will form at Thirty-third and Morgan streets at 1:30 p. m. The second group—from "back o' the yards"—will meet at Columbia hall, citadel of the old Stockyards Labor council.

Negroes Spurn Strike Plan.

Secretary-Treasurer Dennis Lane and a dozen other union chiefs will be the speakers at the meeting.

The American Unity Welfare Labor league, composed of Negro workers, announced yesterday that it is ready to accept the wage reduction and the increase in hours.

"We do not believe," the statement says, "that striking at this time will help the cause of labor, as there are thousands of men out of employment. We will refuse to coöperate with the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workers' union in any way and will not strike."

NEWSY ASKS BAND PLAY "HOT TIME" AT HIS FUNERAL

One spring morning in 1891 pedestrians at Clark and Madison streets saw a new lad peddling papers. He was 10 year old Morris Trepp.

Since that time—forty years ago—day in and day out, Morris Trepp was at his corner. Strikes, wars, rumors of wars, disasters—they were part of his daily grind.

Yesterday "Moe" Trapp, known to thousands, died of pneumonia. He was 50 years of age, and lived at the Ontario hotel.

Often he had spoken to his friends of his burial. He wanted a band to precede his body, he said, and he didn't want it to play a funeral march. His favorite tune was "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight."

His newsboy friends will follow his wishes, it was said last night. And "A Hot Time—" is the tune the band will play.

FIND LIQUID TO WIPE OUT ARMIES

Poison So Strong 3 Drops on Skin Will Kill.

New York, March 12.—The chemical warfare service has discovered a liquid poison so strong that three drops will kill any one whose skin it touches, it became known here today.

A description of what the new war weapon would do, in the opinion of one high official, follows:

"One plane carrying two tons of the liquid could cover an area 100 feet wide by seven miles long in one trip and could deposit enough material to kill every man in that area, and if those on the ground were not protected by gas masks the area of fatality would be many times greater.

Practically Unlimited Supply.

"The only limit to the quantity of this liquid which could be made is the amount of available electric power, as nearly every nation has practically an unlimited supply of the necessary raw materials. It would be entirely possible for this country to manufacture several thousand tons a day if the necessary plants had been built.

Could Have Wiped Out U. S. Army.

"During the Argonne offensive the entire 1st American army of 1,250,000 men occupied an area approximately forty kilometers long by twenty kilometers wide. If Germany had had 4,000 tons of this material and 400 planes equipped for its distribution the entire 1st army would have been annihilated in twelve hours.

"The chemical warfare service is developing protective clothing to entirely cover the wearer and make him impervious to the liquid."

Four American Sailors Reported Slain in Mexico

Mexico City, March 12.—Four sailors, said to be Americans, were killed in Tampico yesterday, according to newspaper dispatches received here today. Up to noon the United States embassy here had received no reports of the killing other than the newspaper advices. The men, who were part of the crew of the Norwegian ship Sazon, were attacked as they were boarding a launch by five masked men in another launch, the press dispatches say. The bodies have not been recovered.

BANKS REPORT 1920 GREATEST SAVINGS YEAR

New York, March 12.—Savings banks deposits throughout the United States in 1920 eclipsed all previous records.

Statistics made public here tonight by the savings banks' association of New York, showed that deposits in the 635 savings institutions on Jan. 1 last totaled $5,535,389,904, an increase of 9.38 per cent over the previous banner year, 1919.

The 410 banks in the New England states had deposits of $2,112,637,421, representing an increase of 7.53 per cent.

In the eastern states deposits in the 198 institutions at the beginning of the new year amounted to $3,186,580,900, an increase of 10.78 per cent.

The 21 mutual savings banks in the middle western states reported an increase in deposits of $10,851,938.

Boy Kidnaped, Found Unconscious in Road

Twelve year old James Graham, 7048 Lowe avenue, may die as the result of a mysterious kidnaping last night. The boy was picked up at Seventy-first street and Lowe avenue by an automobilist who offered to give him a lift. He was thrown from the speeding car at Sixty-fifth street and Talman avenue, and when picked up by Mrs. William Finley, 6508 Talman avenue, was unconscious. At the St. Bernard's hospital it was found his skull had been fractured.

Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt Proud of Son's Appointment

New York, March 12.—[Special.]—Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, widow of Col. Roosevelt, returned today from Trinidad, British West Indies, after visiting friends she had made during her residence at the White House. Mrs. Roosevelt said she had been informed by wireless of the appointment of her son, Theodore Roosevelt, as assistant secretary of the navy. She is greatly pleased over the appointment, she said.

Thieves Force Forgan Theater Party to Taxi

James B. Forgan Jr., son of the president of the First National bank, planned a theater party last night following dinner at his home, 440 Barry avenue. As the party started down the front steps, Mr. Forgan saw two men hop into his big car and drive away. Despite his shouts they sped on.

The theater party went to town in taxis, while the Sheffield avenue police were asked to search for the car.

STILLMAN CASE STORY OF WILDS AND HEREDITY

Life of Daughter Is Like Mother's.

New York, March 12.—[Special.]—Mrs. James A. Stillman, "Fifi" Potter in the days before she married the head of one of the greatest banking institutions in the United States, is following the pathway trod by her mother in the years that are gone. It is the same stage setting of divorce that brings her into the limelight.

Persons close to those chiefly interested are harking back to the first incident that brought the mother to the spotlight, and recalling the fateful words of "Ostler Joe," recited by Mrs. James Brown Potter, and hurled back at her by her husband's relatives, who took the recitation as an intentional insult.

Recited at Capital Dinner.

The verses were recited a quarter of a century ago at a brilliant dinner given by Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. William C. Whitney at Washington.

There were present wives of ambassadors, senators and cabinet members. Mrs. Potter suddenly arose and recited Simm's lament of a stableman whose wife has lapsed. The climacteric stanza is:

Who lured men's souls to the shore of sin, with the light of her wanton eyes,
Who sang the song that the siren sang on the treacherous Lurley Height,
Whose face was as fair as a summer's day and whose heart was as black as night.

Indian Named in Suit.

In the present suit, Mr. Stillman names as corespondent Fred Beauvais, a half-breed Indian, whom the banker declared Mrs. Stillman was wont to call "Apollo Belvedere" and the "Bronze Statute." With the "coureur-de-bois," for in such rôle he was employed at the Stillman camp, Mr. Stillman names the mystery child, Guy Stillman.

There is much speculation as to the manner in which Stillman will attempt to prove the illegitimacy of the child. The boy has been described as a blond. The half-breed Indian guide, Beauvais, has been referred to as "bronze." Whether the youngster's failure to register correctly as to physical characteristics led Stillman to question his legitimacy has not been disclosed.

The Mother's Story.

Turning back the pages of the family story, one found the beautiful Cora Urquhart back in 1877 a belle of New Orleans. It was in that same year that James Brown Potter led her to the altar.

His family was distinguished and claimed descent from an Englishman who came here in 1654. His grandfather made a fortune in railroads. His uncle was the Episcopalian bishop of New York.

The incident of the "Ostler Joe" recitation brought her stage ambitions into flame, and then there came a story of her hatred for her husband's family that she later translated into words.

It was a happy love match—that of Potter and his alluring wife—until the spring of 1886. "Fifi" had come to bless the union. She was devoted to her father.

Then Mrs. Potter went abroad. Kyrle Bellew, matinee idol and star of the time, was in Paris at that time.

Her husband got a letter from her saying that she intended to go on the stage. Potter remonstrated. She paid little attention to the protest, and made a contract with the Haymarket in London for her first appearance.

Kyrle Bellew was her co-star in the first play, called "Man and Wife."

Captivates Future Monarch.

Once, hiding in a gallery at a ball where the prince of Wales, later King Edward VII., was present, he glanced aloft and caught sight of her.

"Who is the lady in red?" he demanded. "Go command her presence, I wish to dance with her."

In a glance and a swift whirl, she captured the favor of the most gallant prince of all Europe, since the day of chivalry and story book knights.

Cloud of Divorce Rises.

Then came the cloud of divorce. Potter, in the Supreme court at Newport, merely charged her with desertion. He told the story of the stage and got his decree.

Mrs. Potter, broke, with Alfred Fossick, a solicitor, in prison on the charge of stealing $62,000 in trust funds to back her theatrical ventures, appealed for aid.

The note she sent to James A. Still-

May Order Beer by Case if Medicine

Washington, D. C., March 12.—The ruling of Former Attorney General Palmer permitting the manufacture of beer, wines and whisky for medical purposes will stand, Solicitor General Frierson said today, despite a number of protests, unless the treasury department should ask for its reconsideration. Such a request is not under contemplation it was said at the treasury.

Opinions are issued by the department of justice only to the president and members of the cabinet, Mr. Frierson explained, and are not matters in which private individuals may participate. A review would only be made, he added, on motion of the department originally making the request and a change made where an error of law was found.

Regulations to Be Issued.

Regulations to provide for the use of beer medically will be issued as soon as they can be prepared, prohibition officials declared.

Under this most recent interpretation of the prohibition law, officials declared it would appear that a patient for whom beer was prescribed would be able to obtain it by the case, as it would probably be ordered as a tonic and it would appear unreasonale to require a person to obtain only one or two bottles at a time.

Overthrows Old Enforcement.

Study of the new ruling, officials said, has disclosed that the whole theory of prohibition enforcement on which the internal revenue bureau has been proceeding has been overthrown. The prohibition unit has worked on the theory that it possessed regulatory powers under the act which permit it to limit the use and distribution of intoxicants excepted by congress from the general ban. By the most recent view of the law, however, officials maintained, it would seem that this theory is now denied.

NONPARTISAN LEADERS CHASED BY 100 KANSANS

Great Bend, Kas., March 12.—J. Ralph Burton of Salina, former United States senator from Kansas, and several associates were escorted from this county late today by a party of 100 men. Former Senator Burton has been active in the Nonpartisan league movement in Kansas. With Prof. George Wilson he was to speak at Ellenwood today. They were taken to Stafford, in an adjoining county, and released unhurt.

Tub Census of Boston Shows Tenfold Gain

Boston, March 12.—Bath tub census returns came to light today. In 1880 state statistics show there were 40.2 persons for each bath tub in the city. Latest figures, as announced by X. H. Goodenough, chief engineer of the state department of health, show that tubs have increased until the average is 4.4 persons for each.

Red Pepper Thief Routed by Bull Terrier Pup

A negro burglar who attempted to rob the home of Mrs. Norma Larson, 1559 East Sixty-ninth street, last night, after he had hurled red pepper into her eyes, was put to rout by "Spot," a pet bull terrier pup. The dog leaped on the intruder at the back door and rolled him down two flights of steps. The negro fled.

HAMON SPOKE OF DEATH PLOT, PREACHER SAYS

Referred to Shooting as 'Frameup.'

Ardmore, Okla., March 12.—Knowing he was dying, Jake L. Hamon told one man he was shot by Clara Barton Smith as he lay upon the bed in his room, but told another he was the victim of "a frame-up by others," according to witnesses at the woman's trial here today.

The witness who spoke of a frame-up said Hamon had said Clara told him the affair was a "frame-up by others," that she was sorry for what she had done and that she had gone out of his life forever.

Hamon was Republican national committeeman from Oklahoma and did not forget politics, even when convinced he was dying, a witness said. That witness said Hamon gave him a list to "take direct to Warren Harding." The list was for appointments to federal offices.

Preacher Talks of "Frame-Up."

On the witness stand today the Rev. T. E. Irwin, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Lawton, testified Hamon told him Clara Smith said the shooting "was a frame-up by others," for which she was sorry, adding, "Three times I paid her off, but this is the last time."

At this point the defense made such vigorous objections, no further details on the "frame-up" were given.

The clergyman said Hamon had made no direct charge against Clara Smith to him.

"Bill, She Got Me."

W. B. Nichols, former chief of police of Oklahoma City, Okla., and business and political associate of Hamon, was put on the stand.

"Bill, she got me," Nichols quoted Hamon as having said. Nichols added that Hamon asserted he was lying down for a rest on the bed in his own room, when Clara came to him, placed her left hand on his head and fired a bullet into his body.

Hamon, the witness continued, had said he threw up his left arm to knock aside the firearm, but too late, then leaped to his feet, knocked the automatic pistol from the woman's hand, on his knees searched for it in the darkness on the floor, recovered it, placed it in his pocket and then walked to the sanatorium, where he died five days later.

Palms, but No Beach.

"Let's call it an accident," Nichols said Hamon quoted Clara as saying after he had disarmed her.

Nichols said he tried to cheer Hamon by telling him they had to go to Palm Beach, and Hamon said where he was going there would be plenty of palms, but no beach.

Nichols, at the direction of the defense and assisted by McLean, went through a demonstration of the shooting as he said Hamon described it.

Frank Ketch "Butts In."

The shooting occurred on the night of Nov. 21, and Nichols said he was at the Hamon offices the following morning when Clara Smith entered and agreed, on demand of Frank Ketch, manager for Hamon, to leave Ardmore.

"Clara, I never have butted into your affairs before, but I am now. No more disgrace for the Hamon family," Nichols quoted Ketch as saying, adding that Clara Smith replied:

"Why, you talk as if I did it. He did it himself, and will tell you so."

Ketch, the witness said, said that Mrs. Hamon was leaving Chicago that night for Ardmore, and that Clara Smith should "get out, and get out quick."

No Marks of Struggle.

On cross-examination Nichols denied he had seen bruises and marks on Clara Hamon's face and hands at that time. The defense has indicated a plea that Hamon was shot in a fight with Clara, and that the bullet which killed him was fired while he was in the act of striking her with a chair.

Other witnesses made similar denials.

Nichols said Clara Smith had demanded $5,000 from Ketch to use to leave Ardmore. Other witnesses have said Hamon told Ketch to give that sum.

Defense counsel so far has been careful to bring out statements from each of the state witnesses who swore to knowledge of the manner of the shooting that they had kept it a secret from Russell B. Brown, county attorney, when he was making an investigation. Each witness testified he had been bound to secrecy by Hamon from his deathbed.

On the evening of the shooting,

Nichols testified, Hamon had exhibited to him a new suit of clothes he had had made to wear to the inauguration of President Harding, and in which he was buried. Asked if Hamon was not one of the greatest Republican leaders in the country, Mr. Nichols replied emphatically:

"I think he was the greatest."

Everett W. Sallis, a chauffeur of Dallas, Tex., took the stand and said he had driven Clara Smith from Dallas to Cisco, Tex., where she boarded a train for El Paso, Tex. He said she had attempted to rent an airplane at Dallas, but failed. On the auto trip west from Dallas she had ridden on the front seat with him, Sallis said, and had held two pistols partly concealed in her lap.

Sallis testified he made the first statement regarding having driven for the defendant to a newspaperman and received $60 for it.

Said She Had "Shot Man."

Sallis said Clara Smith told him she had shot a man, hoped he died, and that she had asked whether a new or old pistol was the better to shoot a man with to kill him.

Sallis said he told her an old one, as rust and dirt then would help make the wound worse. On cross-examination Sallis said a Dr. Williams of McAlester, Okla., had told him that.

Mrs. Hamon, the widow, was unable to be in court today, following her collapse yesterday.

With the defendant were her 19 year old brother, Jimmie, and her mother.

Planned Long Trip.

When court opened this morning the first witness was Harry Foster, a garage employé. He said that several times he had seen Clara Smith with a pistol. The day before Hamon was shot he said Clara came to the garage and ordered the two spare rims taken off the back of her automobile and two extra tire casings put there, as she said she was "going to take a long trip."

He said on the morning following the shooting she came to the garage, asked that the tire change be made quickly, as she had far to go. Foster said the young woman was very nervous. He said he saw no bruises on Clara's face or hands.

Same View as Prosecutor.

On cross-examination Foster said that at the time Clara Hamon came to the garage he had heard Hamon had been shot accidentally, but he did not believe Hamon had shot himself.

"You were just like Russell Brown, then, weren't you?" W. P. McLean of defense counsel asked.

Attorney General Freeling was on his feet with an objection and the remark was ordered stricken from the record.

The witness who had the most difficult time on the stand was the Rev. Mr. Irwin, who preached the funeral oration over Hamon at a time when it was believed Hamon's death was due to accident.

Says Hamon Repented.

The Rev. Irwin said Jake Hamon said shortly before he died:

"I have been living in adultery with Clara Smith. I am sorry. We were both equally guilty."

McLean fought hard to keep out the minister's testimony.

Excerpts from the sermon Irwin preached over Jake Hamon's body, in which he said if Jake Hamon didn't go to heaven he didn't want to go, were read.

At the time of the sermon it was believed Hamon's death was accidental.

Believed Hamon "Saved."

McLean read the following from the sermon:

"'Why God permitted this accident I do not know.

"If Jake Hamon is not safe in the hands of his Master, then I am lost."

The Rev. Irwin said he knew Hamon had "accepted Christ" before he died.

"Hamon told me he prayed to be relieved of his sins," the Rev. Irwin said. "He said he repented for his life with Clara Smith. I know his sins were forgiven."

Court was adjourned at noon until 9 a. m. Monday following Rev. Irwin's testimony.

Frank L. Ketch, business manager and adviser of Hamon, is one of the witnesses to be called by the state when the trial is resumed. He is said to have paid out the money for Clara Smith's flights. The state will attempt to prove by his testimony that Clara Smith had planned the shooting.

BOY BEFRIENDED BY WOMAN HELD FOR STEALING CAR

Mrs. Marion Blodgett, Hyde Park hotel, chairman of the Hyde Park Community League and a leader in the work of the Boys' Brotherhood Republic, 5228 Harper avenue, has discovered that the path of philanthropy is strewn with the thorns of ingratitude. Jean Harty, an ex-sailor whom she had befriended, was arrested in Milwaukee last night with her automobile, which he had stolen.

Harty was once arrested by the police in connection with the slaying of Henry L. Ayers, 6030 Blackstone avenue, but released. Harty is 20 years old and had been employed at the Hyde Park hotel. Mrs. Blodgett did not credit the police suspicion that he had taken her car until the machine was recovered. Letters were found in the boy's room in which she besought him to lead a straight life.

RAIL BOARD AND U. S. COURT NEAR TEST OF POWERS

Former Calls Showdown on A., B. & A. Tangle.

BY ARTHUR M. EVANS.

The issue of whether a federal court can override the United States railway labor board moved toward a showdown yesterday when the board notified the receiver of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railroad and representatives of fifteen railroad unions to appear for a hearing March 21, to determine whether wages had been cut and a strike called in violation of the labor board's decision. The A. B. & A. controversy has been regarded as furnishing the opportunity for a "test case" on the constitutionality of the transportation act itself.

The board takes the position that both Col. B. L. Bugg, receiver of the road, and the employés have violated the board's mandates. The case as it now stands involves the question of whether a carrier through receivership process might toddle out of the jurisdiction of the labor board. The unions in particular regard it as an important case.

Court Orders Reduction.

In brief, after the board had remanded a proposed cut in wages back to the management and the employés for joint conference, the A. B. & A. went into a receivership. The federal court, after making Col. Bugg, who was president of the road, as receiver, ordered a wage reduction to be put into effect March 1. The employés struck. Two federal mediators walked in to mediate, but walked right out again Friday, and said they would put the matter up to President Harding.

Yesterday the labor board took the matter up in executive session. In a ruling it said it was been the "legal duty" of the A. B. & A. to pay the scale of wages set by the board in its decision of July 20, 1920, "until other rates of wages are agreed upon by the carrier and by duly authorized representatives of the employés concerned, or until conference has been sought and denied or it has not been possible to agree in conference as to what wages shall constitute just and reasonable wages and the dispute has been referred to this board for decision."

It says also that it is the "legal duty" of both the carrier and the men "to exert every reasonable effort and adopt every available means to avoid any interruption to the operation of the carrier growing out of any dispute." If unable to reach a settlement, it said, the dispute should have been referred to the board.

The carrier, in cutting wages, and the men, in striking, it held, have violated the board's wage decisions.

Erie Cancels Pay Cut.

The Erie railroad announced in New York that it has restored the old rates of pay for common labor and has wiped out the cut put into effect Jan. 31. In this the road carries out the orders of the railroad board. The road also has given part time workers—men on monthly salaries who were put on a five day week soon after the reduction—notice that they would work six days a week. The Erie states that a "slightly improved condition in business" has made the return to the old scale possible. The road, in line with all the other large carriers, will submit the question of wages to the labor board in the shape of "definite controversies."

The effect of the Erie announcement was to strengthen the prevailing impression that the big roads would adhere to the provisions of the transportation act. It was interpreted in various interested quarters as indicating the attitude of the carriers.

May Agree on Lower Scale.

Meanwhile the roads, large and small, are going ahead with their preparations for conferences with employés with a view of bringing proposed wage cuts before the labor board, as directed, in the shape of "controversies." Some roads report that, judging from the spirit manifested by the men in preliminary conferences, reductions in common labor's wages in some instances will probably be made through direct agreement between a carrier and its men. With unemployment growing, this idea gains weight.

FOREIGN NEWS —IN BRIEF—

BERLIN.—The reichstag approved Foreign Minister Simons' work at the London conference by a vote of 266 to 49.

DUSSELDORF.—German security police were dismissed and ordered out of the occupied territory for refusing to salute allied officers.

ESSEN.—The Ruhr industrial district is hostile to the customs zone plan of the allies.

LONDON.—Greek and Turkish envoys have received the revised Sevres treaty to submit to their governments.

PARIS.—By signing an accord preliminary to peace between France and the Turkish nationalists, the Franco-British grip on the Mesopotamian oil fields is tightened.

REUTHEN, Upper Silesia.—Poland is sure to win the plebiscite March 20, Albert Korfanty, Polish commissioner, says.

DUBLIN.—Prominent citizens have joined a public protest against the execution Monday of six Irishmen.

PARIS.—Finnish dispatches say the bolsheviki, wtih reinforcements, have put down the insurrection in Petrograd and have executed 2,500 "deserters."

Eight general superintendents' places and four other high posts have been abolished under orders to go into effect March 15, it was announced by A. E. Lloyd, superintendent of the Chicago division. The eight general superintendents will become division superintendents and the work of the general superintendents will devolve on the general manager and his assistants. Assistants to the superintendent of motive power and the chief engineer will be dispensed with and the positions of engineer of maintenance of way and superintendent of telegraph will also be abolished. The elimination of the twelve high offices is a reduction of forces.

An effort to enlist manufacturers, shippers, and consumers in support of a petition to abrogate the national agreements between the roads and their employés is being made by the Illinois Manufacturers' association. In a printed statement mailed to 15,000 manufacturers it says the only hope of a reduction in freight rates lies in a curtailment of operating expenses. It asks each recipient to wire the railroad labor board urging that the national agreements be thrown out.

318 MEN TO EACH 100 JOBS HERE, STATE REPORTS

680 for 100 Places in Building Work.

Unemployment in the larger Illinois cities has now reached the point where 261 men are applying for every 100 jobs offered, according to unofficial figures from the state employment offices. In Chicago the average is 318 men for every 100 jobs.

The tabulations show in some lines there are as high as seven applicants for every job listed with the agencies. The scarcity of work is still greatest in the building industry, 680 persons applying for every 100 jobs registered.

The following are unofficial figures from employment offices in various Illinois cities:

	No. applicants per 100 jobs.		No. applicants per 100 jobs.
Aurora	171	Joliet	263
Bloomington	220	Peoria	213
Chicago	318	Rockford	103
Decatur	175	Rock Island	390
East St. Louis	223	Springfield	110

Following is a tabulation by industries of applicants for each 100 jobs offered:

Agriculture	216	Metals and machinery	140
Building	680	Miscellaneous	565
Clerical	304	Common labor	317
Domestics	152

Windsor, Ont., Armories Closed to "Pussyfoot"

Detroit, Mich., March 12.—W. E. (Pussyfoot) Johnson, prohibition advocate, will not be permitted to speak in the Windsor armories during the Ontario temperance law referendum campaign, it was announced today by Lieut. Col. Sidney C. Robinson, commander of the 21st Canadian regiment, in charge of the armories. The referendum committee, organized to campaign against the importation of liquor into the province, and under whose auspices Johnson was scheduled to appear here April 11, can use the armories without charge, "but agitators like Johnson will not be welcome," the lieutenant colonel said.

ALBANY, N. Y.—The West Albany shops of the New York Central railroad closed down. About 1,200 men are affected.

ST. PAUL, Minn.—Despite a 22 per cent reduction in labor costs and an 18 per cent recession in building commodity prices, general construction work is at a standstill in the northwest.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—Between 800 and 1,000 employes of several Minneapolis flour mills will be affected by a reduction in wages of 15 per cent for skilled and 25 per cent for unskilled labor.

NEW BEDFORD, Conn.—The Passaic Cotton mills, which have been shut down months, will resume operations March 21.

NAMING OF ESCH BRINGS UP OLD RAILROAD WAR

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., March 12.—[Special.]—President Harding's nomination of John J. Esch, former representative from Wisconsin, to be a member of the interstate commerce commission, has brought the whole railroad problem squarely before congress. It was largely responsible today for the senate's failure to adjourn. It probably will furnish a subject for considerable discussion when the senate meets Monday.

Mr. Esch was one of the authors of the Esch-Cummins railroad act under which the railroads are now operating. He ran for renomination last summer and was defeated. Senator La Follette of Wisconsin vigorously opposed the Esch-Cummins law and insists that it is doomed to failure.

The administration was adhering closely today to a policy of "hands off" the railroad wage question. There is little likelihood of any executive action unless the railway labor board brings the question before President Harding.

Mr. Harding is understood to have indorsed the plan of Senator Cummins for a widespread congressional investigation of the operation of the railroads since the government returned them to private control.

NEW PRICE LEVEL 70% ABOVE OLD, WALLACE SAYS

"Pre-War Basis Would Double U. S. Debt."

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., March 12.—[Special.]—Instead of seeking a return to the pre-war level of prices, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace today declared it would be better for all concerned to establish a level about 70 per cent above the pre-war normal.

"We cannot hope to reach normal conditions until we arrive on a price level which will be fair to all our people and all products," said Secretary Wallace. "Farm products must increase in price and other products must come down until the normal relation between the two has been restored. This talk of bringing prices, whether farm prices or other prices, back to the pre-war normal is morally wrong and economically impossible.

"We incurred a heavy national debt on the inflated prices. If we could force all prices back to the pre-war normal—which we cannot—it would be equivalent to just about doubling that debt.

Must Have New Level.

"We can pay off our debts much easier if we maintain a price level more nearly that at which the debts were incurred. Of course, the excessively high prices which prevailed during the war cannot continue, but if we should try to bring about a level, say, 70 per cent above the pre-war level everybody would be better off."

Secretary Wallace declared the country does not realize that farmers have suffered most because of a greater decline in prices affecting their products than those of other classes.

"Those unfamiliar with agriculture refuse to believe the depression is as serious as it really is," Mr. Wallace said. "They point to the high value of land, to the high price, at which farm products were selling prior to this heavy drop, to the large number of automobiles owned by farmers, to the apparent wealth and comfort on every side, and they refuse to take seriously what the farmers say concerning their troubles.

Cost of Corn 90c in Iowa.

"There are two causes for this widespread agriculture depression, one of which is the high cost of production last year. If we include all the factors which properly enter into the cost of production we find, for example, that the cost of producing a bushel of corn in Iowa, the greatest corn state, was more than 90 cents.

"Prices of farm products have dropped out of all proportion.

"For example, the price of corn and oats today on the Iowa farm is about 20 per cent below the normal price of these crops before the war. The present price of fat cattle and of hogs is from 20 to 25 per cent above the pre-war normal, if we take Chicago prices, but on the farm the prices of both cattle and hogs are down to pre-war normal.

"On the other hand, wages of farm hands are about 100 per cent above the pre-war normal, railroad rates are from 70 to 90 per cent above pre-war normal, such basic commodities as pig iron, coke, petroleum, lumber, Portland cement are above the pre-war normal from 100 to 150, and in some cases 200 per cent. Factory wages and railroad wages are both more than 100 per cent above the pre-war normal.

Sells for Less; Buys for More.

"In other words, while the farmer is selling his produce below the pre-war normal, everything he buys costs from 50 to 150 per cent above it. The resultant severe agricultural depression will certainly be communicated to industry and business generally.

"The farmer is the one man engaged in a big business who had no voice in fixing the price of the things he produces. He has been compelled to take whatever prices he could get. His cost of production has not at any time been considered in determining this price. Large crops, as a rule, give the farmer fewer dollars than small crops. Farming seems to be one business in which large production is always penalized."

Favors Safe, Sane Policy.

Secretary Wallace indicated that he favors only safe and sane methods.

"In the present situation," Secretary Wallace added, "the department of agriculture should do everything possible to find an outlet for this great food surplus. We should search for ways to produce more cheaply; try to find new uses for our surplus crops, and help develop more efficient marketing systems.

"We will get through this period. The nation is not going bankrupt. The farmers are not going bankrupt. Gradually farm prices will be brought into fair relation with other prices, and we will go ahead."

WASHINGTON NEWS —IN BRIEF—

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 12.

Administration leaders made it clear today that the Harding policy with respect to foreign relations will be based upon this: That no American rights were surrendered by the war; that no one was authorized to surrender any such rights, and that none will be surrendered.

Senator Borah today denounced the Colombian treaty as "a condemnation of Roosevelt" and "a confession of shame on the part of our government."

The railroad wage controversy and the La Follette fight against confirmation of John J. Esch for member of the interstate commerce commission is forcing the whole railroad issue before the extra session of congress as soon as it convenes.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace expressed the opinion that if, instead of trying to bring about a return to pre-war price levels, a level about 70 per cent higher than that before the war would prove better for all concerned.

Republican Leader Mondell of the house, following a conference with President Harding, declared himself against giving precedence to a temporary tariff bill. He favored taking up tax revision first.

Admiral Benson said he favors free tolls for coastwise vessels through the Panama canal, and the abrogation of commercial treaties.

STILLMAN CASE STORY OF WILDS AND HEREDITY

Life of Daughter Is Like Mother's.

man Jr., never was answered. His father, then living, and then the head of the National City bank, wrote that he would give her a pension for life if she left the stage. The offer was refused.

Wedded to Money Peerage.

The story of Mrs. Potter and the charges made by Stillman against Fifi, her daughter, is reminiscent of Mrs. Humphrey Ward's problem novel, "Lady Rose's Daughter." The novel is based on the strange story of Mlle. Jeanne de Lespinasse, French writer, and adopted daughter of Madame du Deffand. The mother deserted her husban for an affinity and the daughter succumbed to a blind passion for a renegade comte.

Fifi's marriage with Stillman in 1901 united her with the financial peerage of America. One of his sisters was the wife of William A. Rockefeller and the other the wife of Percey Rockefeller. He provided her with a mansion at Newport and a country home at Pocantico Hills, which adjoins Abeyton Lodge, the country seat of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller Jr.

Mr. Stillman's father, the late James Stillman, was president of the National City bank, of which the son is now the directing head. The father died in 1918, leaving more than $40,000,000.

Mr. Stillman was graduated from Harvard in 1896. He pitched on the Harvard baseball nine. He is fond of outdoor sports, especially golf.

Successor to Vanderlip.

On June 3, 1919, Mr. Stillman was elected president of the National City bank to succeed Frank A. Vanderlip. The National City bank is the depository of the Standard Oil and other big interests.

In addition Mr. Stillman is chairman of the board of the National City company, vice president of the Fifth Avenue Safe Deposit company, and a director of the American Alliance Insurance company, American International corporation, Chicago and Northwestern Railway company, Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Coal company, Great American Insurance company, Montana Farms corporation, Queens Insurance Company of America, Second National bank, etc. His clubs are the Knickerbocker, University, Brook, Automobile, Racquet and Tennis, Down Town, Golf Links, Garden City Golf, Sleepy Hollow Country, New York Yacht, and Boston Tennis and Racquet.

Friends regarded it as a perfect marriage.

Pilgrimages in the Woods.

One day Mr. Stillman informed his wife he had a surprise. He had purchased a place in the primeval fastnesses of Canada. They spent the summer there. The ranch was a few miles northwest of Three Rivers, in picturesque Quebec. It was there they first encountered Fred Beauvais, the halfbreed, an untamed remnant of a vanishing civilization, a son of the stream and the forest, a coureur de bois. His lineage is best described by the poet Baylis:

In the glimmering light of the Old Régime
A figure appears like the flushing gleam
Of sunlight reflected from sparkling stream
Or jewel without a flaw.
Flashing and fading, but leaving a trace
In story and song of a hardy race,
Finely fashioned in form and face,
The Old Coureur de Bois.

No loiterer he 'neath the sheltering wing
Of ladies' banners where gallants sing.
Thro' his woodland realm he roved a king!
His untamed will his law.
From the wily savage he learned his trade
Of hunting and woodcraft, of nothing afraid—
Bravely battling, bearing his blade,
As a free coureur de bois.

A Teacher of Woodcraft.

Beauvais was tutor in woodcraft to the Stillman children when he was not acting as guide for Mr. and Mrs. Stillman. The wilderness appealed to Mrs. Stillman more than did the artificial atmosphere of New York and Newport. Beauvais used to tell them stories while paddling down the St. Maurice or the St. Lawrence rivers of the legendary heroes when Quebec was civilization's last frontier.

In his odd patois he would recite "Johnnie Courteau" by the flickering light of a camp fire.

Johnnie Courteau of de mountain
Johnnie Courteau of de hill
Dat was de boy can shoot de gun
Dat was de boy can jomp an' run
An' it's not very offen you ketch heem still Johnnie Courteau

Ax dem along de reever
Ax dem along de shore
Who was de mos' bes' fightin' man
From Mangance to Shawinigan
De place w'ere de great beeg rapide roar?
Johnnie Courteau

An' Tete de Boule chief can tole you
De feller w'at save hees life
W'en big moose ketch heem up a tree
Who's shootin' dat moose on de head, sapree!
An' den run off wit' his Injun wife?
Johnnie Courteau.

Indian Goes to New York.

It was about this time that Mr. Stillman, who had returned alone to New York, began to hear vague rumors that excited his suspicions and caused him to conduct an investigation. He obtained letters, he alleges, and other documentary evidence.

A new feature of Mrs. Stillman's alleged interest in the half-breed guide developed today. Beauvais, it is said, is known to many New York sportsmen.

Beauvais for a time had charge of the fishing tackle department of Abercrombie & Fitch, a house specializing in sporting goods and promoting among the well-to-do the spirit of "the call of the wild." He had charge of the exhibition of Indian moccasins, bead work, blankets, snow shoes, and the like maintained at the store.

Protege of Mrs. Stillman.

Beauvais, it was said, was employed at the store on the recommendation of Mrs. Stillman, who was a highly considered customer, it was explained there today. She brought him to the attention of the management in May, 1918, and he was put in charge of the fishing tackle department. Beauvais was found of value to the store because of his pleasing personality and his stories of life in the woods and the lures used by the half breeds in taking game.

"Beauvais always spoke in the most grateful and appreciative terms of both Mr. and Mrs. Stillman," it was stated at the store. "He left the store early on Saturday afternoons to go to the Stillman place in West Chester county to instruct the children in woodcraft.

Planned Trip to France.

"When he left us in November, 1918, he said he was going to France with Mr. and Mrs. Stillman, now that the war was ended, and would have an opportunity to settle his father's estate. He had previously told us that his father, who was a guide, was a native of France and his mother a full blooded Indian."

Some months later Beauvais dropped in at the store and said that he had not made the trip to France which had been planned.

WIFE'S COUNTER CHARGES

New York, March 12.—[Special.]—It was reported today that in the counter suit which is to be filed by Mrs. Stillman there will be charges against her husband which will involve either an actress or a musician.

In addition Mrs. Stillman will make general denial of her husband's charges involving Fred Beauvais, half-breed Indian guide.

Mr. Stillman's suit questions the legitimacy of 2 year old Guy Stillman, it was definitely learned today, and he is co-defendant with his mother, while Beauvais is named as co-respondent.

Wants $10,000 a Month.

Although Supreme Court Justice Joseph Morschauser in Poughkeepsie was ready today to hear counsel for Mrs. Stillman argue a plea for $25,000 counsel fees and $10,000 a month alimony, not a lawyer appeared. It was reported that the alimony and fees issue had been arranged between the attorneys.

John E. Mack, appointed temporary guardian of the 2 year old boy in the case, was in court and filed formal proceedings to protect the child's interests.

"The legitimacy of this child," Mr. Mack said, "is certain until his illegitimacy is established, not only by the greater weight of evidence but beyond a reasonable doubt. The courts protect a child in its good name with the same care as a person charged with a crime."

Quote State Law.

Lawyers say the law applicable to the case of the child says:

"1. The legitimacy of a child, born or begotten before the commission of the offense charged, is not affected by a judgment dissolving the marriage; but the legitimacy of any other child of the wife may be determined, as one of the issues in the action. In the absence of proof to the contrary, the legitimacy of all the children begotten before the commencement of action must be presumed.

"2. A judgment dissolving the marriage does not impair, or otherwise affect, the plaintiff's rights or interests in and to any real or personal property which the defendant owns or possesses when the judgment is rendered.

"3. Where the judgment is rendered dissolving the marriage, the defendant is not entitled to dower in any of the plaintiff's real property, or to a distributive share in his personal property."

Boy with His Mother.

In response to questions Mr. Mack said that young Guy was with his mother, but that he did not know where they were living. He said the boy had been born in New York City twenty-eight months ago. He said he understood that the three other children of the Stillmans—Alexander, Anne and James—were at school.

DU PONT REPORT GIVES DEAL WITH GENERAL MOTORS

Durant Got $9.50 Share for His Holdings.

New York, March 12.—[Special.]—Details of the transaction whereby the Du Pont Securities corporation took over 2,504,273 shares of General Motors stock from William C. Durant last November, when Mr. Durant was reported to have been unable to meet his obligations, came to light in the annual report of the E. I. Du Pont de Nemours & Co.

The report shows that Mr. Durant received $23,790,000 in cash and 40,000 shares of the stock of the new Du Pont Securities corporation for his holdings of General Motors. The Du Pont Securities corporation was organized for the purpose of taking over the shares.

It also stated in the report that the taking over of the stock was at the request of Mr. Durant, who had informed the Du Pont interests that "he desired to resign and sell his interest in the corporation to liquidate his personal indebtedness, which was very large and pressing."

Received $9.50 Per Share.

On the basis of the amount of money paid to Mr. Durant it is figured that he received $9.50 per share in cash for his General Motors holdings. The 40,000 shares of stock of the Du Pont Securities corporation, it is stated, have since been exchanged for 230,000 shares of General Motors common stock, which again gives him a substantial holding in the concern. If a value of $13 per share were placed on this amount of this stock it would add $2,900,000 to which Mr. Durant received for his original holdings and would bring the amount up to about $10.70 a share.

At the time of the transaction there was much speculation in Wall street as to just what amount was involved in the exchange. Estimates made at the time placed the amount at $27,000,000, but it was also gossiped around the street that Mr. Durant received only between $7 and $9 a share.

Details of Transaction.

The financing of the transaction whereby the stock was taken, it was pointed out, was by the sale of $20,000,000 one year 8 per cent collateral trust bonds of the Du Pont Securities corporation through J. P. Morgan & Co. These bonds fall due on Nov. 22 of this year, but in consequence of this maturity, the report states that the officers "are now working on plans for the permanent financing of this additional investment on the General Motors corporation, the details of which plan will be communicated to the stockholders as soon as completed."

In addition to the notes sold through the banking firm, the Du Pont American Industries company, the stock of which is 100 per cent owned by the E. I. Du Pont De Nemours company, paid into the treasury of the Du Pont Securities corporation $4,200,000 in cash and loaned 824,179 shares of General Motors, for which it received $4,200,000 in shares of the 8 per cent cumulative preferred stock and 36,000 shares of the non-voting common stock of the new company.

LEGION TO KEEP SLACKER BRAND OFF INNOCENT

Indianapolis, Ind., March 12.—National officers of the American Legion here today took steps to protect men who may be wrongfully classed as draft evaders in the lists to be issued soon by the war department, and to make certain that none guilty of evading military service escape.

Bulletins were sent to all the legion posts and units of the women's auxiliary, directing them to assist the department of justice in establishing the correctness of the lists.

The message stated: "Despite the war department's efforts, men who performed their duties may be branded as cowards and slackers in the lists issued. Posts are instructed to scan the lists carefully before their publication, and, if possible, make sure no ex-service man's reputation will be sullied through error. On the other hand, every possible and immediate assistance to duly constituted authorities that no draft dodgers or slackers follow in the steps of Bergdoll. We want all men guilty of evasion of military duty behind the bars twenty-four hours after their names are announced."

ILLINOIS COAL OUTPUT IN '20 BREAKS RECORD

Washington, D. C., March 12.—[Special.]—Production of bituminous coal in Illinois in 1920 was the greatest on record. The total output, according to figures made public today by the geological survey, was 90,050,000 tons. This was slightly greater than in the year 1918, when the total production for the entire country was somewhat greater than in 1920. The Illinois production in 1918 was 89,291,105 tons; in 1917, 86,199,387 tons, and in 1918, 64,600,000.

Crown Stove Works in Cicero Damaged by Fire

The Crown Stove works, Forty-seventh avenue and Thirteenth street, Cicero, was partly destroyed by fire last night when flames broke through the roof several hours after workmen had quit for the day. The building is a block square. Fear that other manufacturing plants would be endangered prompted the Cicero chief to telephone Chicago for aid.

Anti-Bandit "Bomb"

Police Chief Watches Tryout of Chemical Explosive Designed to Make Barricaded Outlaws Rush for the Air.

Chief Fitzmorris and the "Bomb."

The city hall was successfully bombed yesterday.

The grenade, filled with formaldehyde gas, was exploded on the roof of the municipal building in the presence of Chief of Police Fitzmorris and Dr. F. O. Tonney, director of the health department laboratory, who invented the weapon for use against bandits who barricade themselves in buildings.

The bomb is composed of potassium permanganate, inclosed in a glass capsule the size of a man's fist. The capsule is surrounded by small chunks of metal inclosed in a tin can. When the bomb is thrown the metal breaks the glass capsule, permitting the potassium permanganate to unite with a formaldehyde solution in the can, forming formaldehyde gas.

"That gas will force criminals to rush for the open hair even though they know they are rushing into the arms of the police," the chief said as he got a whiff of the vapor.

SPEEDING AUTOS RUN DOWN THREE; BOY'S LEG BROKEN

The police are looking for the drivers of two automobiles who ran down three people yesterday. In the first accident, at North Sawyer avenue and Franklin boulevard, Aubrey Hughes, 5 years old, 3235 Franklin boulevard, suffered a fractured leg. The driver did not stop.

W. R. Reese, 5219 Drexel avenue, a credit man for the Morgan Sash and Door company, and his father-in-law, A. A. Green, 75 years old, were slightly injured when struck by a speeding automobile at North Canal and West Lake streets.

The charge of assault with an automobile was placed against Harvey Schaub, 1531 South Turner avenue, by whose car Mrs. Rose Asher, 50 years old, 3248 Blue Island avenue, was fatally injured Friday, when the case was called yesterday in the Maxwell street court. The hearing was continued until March 24.

MURDERER SENT TO PONTIAC.

Vandalia, Ill., March 12.—[Special.]—Haynie Duncan, 20, who shot and killed Charles Braughton, an ex-service man, here because of a woman, was found guilty of manslaughter and sentenced to the reformatory at Pontiac.

ARMY AVIATORS OFFER TO SERVE AS NAVY TARGET

Willing to Face Guns in a Real Test.

Washington, D. C., March 12.—U. S. army aviators are eager to fight a real duel with the navy.

While admirals and generals have been advancing and disputing claims that the airplane is far superior to the battleship as a war weapon, army pilots have flooded the office of the air service director with pleas that the matter be settled under real war conditions.

They have been all wrought up since Josephus Daniels, then secretary of the navy, offered to stand bareheaded on a deck of a battleship and let Brig. Gen. Mitchell, head of the air service in the war, take a crack at him with a bombing airplane.

"Chance of a Snowball."

Lieut. C. C. Moseley, victorious pilot in the recent airplane race at Mineola field for the Pulitzer trophy, would be "tickled pink" at the opportunity of a real fight with the navy gunners.

"I firmly believe," he wrote his chief, "that a bunch of those gobs would have about as much chance of hitting one of us, especially if the old battleship were in motion, as the proverbial snowball."

"With a fast plane I would feel perfectly secure to fly around all day over the Atlantic fleet and let them shoot at me with anything they have—anything from a popgun to a 16-inch piece," read a letter from Capt. Harvey Weir Cook of Fort Crook, Neb.

Offers Safety to Sailors.

Another lieutenant, willing to take a fling at the experiment, feared that the sailors might not enjoy it so much. He suggested that the naval men firing be allowed to mount the anti-aircraft guns on craft other than the battleships under attack from the air.

Army fliers claim they could sink the biggest battleship with one direct hit with a 1,100 pound bomb dropped from an altitude of 9,000 feet. They contend that the explosive would have such force it would buckle in the plates of the warship, making it impossible to keep afloat.

Rabbit's Foot Fails to Save Negro Holdup Men

Two Negro holdup men were captured last night, near Twenty-seventh and Dearborn strets, after a revolver battle with six policemen. No one was shot. The men are Julius Heard, 4536 Vincennes avenue, and James Cobb, 5621 Wabash avenue. Each carried a rabbit's foot for luck.

Joseph Cohen, 5809 Indiana avenue, who was robbed, recovered his money. Detectives Lahart and Dawe arrested the men.

BOLSHEVIKI NOW REPORTED TO HOLD PETROGRAD

2,500 "Deserters" Said to Have Been Shot.

BULLETIN.

TOKIO, March 12.—Vladivostok reports to the Hochi Shimbun say the anti-Bolshevik movement in Siberia is spreading. Peasants and Cossacks have revolted at Cheliabinsk and Petropavlansk, with many of the Reds joining the insurrection.

PARIS, March 12.—[Havas.]—Dispatches from the Finnish border say the bolsheviki, aided by reinforcements, have almost completely succeeded in putting down the insurrection in Petrograd.

Battles fought between Krasnaya Gorka and Petrograd, the dispatches state, enabled the bolsheviki to reestablish their position on the coast of the Gulf of Finland.

According to The Izvestia, 2,500 deserters, mostly members of the Petrograd forces, have been shot.

Resolutions expressing the sympathy of the French Dissident Socialist party for Russian workers who are struggling against the bolsheviki régime were adopted at a meeting of the central committee of the organization here last night.

"The terrorism and dictatorship now obtaining in Russia under the bolsheviki," the resolutions declared, "would lead the working class into slavery and threaten the liberty of the peoples."

Report Rebels Successful.

REVAL, March 12.—Considerable numbers of bolshevik soldiers are reported to have joined the revolutionaries as the result of the capture by the latter of Krasnaya Gorka, Peterhof and Sergieovka, in the vicinity of Petrograd.

According to the latest advices received here, the revolutionaries operating against Petrograd have captured Galerny Quay, the admiralty, the Baltic and Warsaw stations, the customs house and the gas works. The bolsheviki are said to be holding their ground in the outer parts of the city.

Warsaw Radio Confusing.

WARSAW, March 12.—[By the Associated Press.]—Petrograd is in the hands of revolutionary forces and the bolsheviki have been ousted, it was declared in a wireless dispatch received here today. The message, which was confused and disconnected, owing to the weakness of the sending station, is believed to have been sent out from Petrograd.

It was declared in the dispatch that food sent by Col. Ryan, American Red Cross commissioner to the Baltic states, had arrived, but whether it had been received at Kronstadt or Petrograd was not clear.

A dispatch from Vilna says antibolshevik forces fought their way into Minsk, and held control of the city for five hours, but were later driven out. While occupying the city, the revolutionists killed many local communists, it is said, and when the bolsheviki reëntered the town they executed more than 200 persons, many of whom were Poles.

Jews Fleeing from Russia.

Polish newspapers publish dispatches from the frontier describing the flight of Jews from Russia "in enormous numbers." Convinced that bolshevism is nearing an end, the newspapers say, the Jews began crossing the frontier at various points several days ago, believing themselves to be in imminent danger of pogroms should the bolsheviki be driven from power.

Among the refugees reaching Warsaw was Mrs. Vera Izanidse, whose family owned most of the town of Brailov, and seventeen houses in Odessa. She, with her husband, who escaped from a bolshevist prison, lived for ten months in a cave in Brailov, while the bolsheviki terrorized the country roundabout. Peasants brought them food, and a baby was born to Mrs. Izanidse in the cave.

Powers Weeps at Burial

Funeral of Paul Labriola, slain in the Nineteenth ward political feud. Ald. John Powers is standing at the right.

The funerals yesterday of Paul Labriola and Harry Raimondi, slain in the Nineteenth ward political feuds, were perhaps the strangest ever conducted in Chicago. Scores of policemen and detectives marched with each cortége. Politicians and city officials walked solemnly beside little old wrinkled women in shawls, who murmured fears and warnings in Italian.

Ald. John Powers and State Senator E. J. Glackin took the lead in the services at both funerals. The funeral of Raimondi left his home at 912 Garibaldi place at 9:30. After requiem mass at Our Lady of Pompeii church the body was taken to Calvary.

Labriola's services were conducted at the Guardian Angels church, Forquer and Desplaines streets. Practically every bailiff of the Municipal court attended this funeral, for Labriola was for fifteen years a bailiff. Burial was at Mount Carmel.

When Ald. Powers first appeared at the home of Labriola he advanced to the casket, looked silently down into the face of his former friend and lieutenant for a moment, and then burst into tears.

"I can't help it, friends," the gray haired councilman said. "He died for me."

TREAT CRIME AS DISEASE, EXPERTS ASK IN NEW BILL

Members of the Chicago crime commission will meet in the chambers of Judge Harry Olson, chief justice of the Municipal court, this afternoon to prepare their final report on their investigation of crime in Chicago. It is planned to present a bill embodying the results of their work to the state legislature at Springfield. Until the bill is finally made a law, officials refuse to make definite statement on its provisions. It was admitted, however, that the scientific treatment of criminals will be dealt with.

Criminals with previous records will be subjected to rigid examinations in psychopathic wards if the proposed bill is made a law. There will also be a general tightening up of the application of the parole system.

Among those who have worked under the leadership of State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe, in preparing the proposed law are, Chief Justice Harry Olson, Judge Frank H. Righeimer of the County court, Samuel Ettelson, corporation counsel; Charles C. Fitzmorris, chief of police, and C. A. Dahlberg, speaker of the house in the state legislature.

5,000 Disabled Heroes to Be Given Free Vacation

Uncle Sam will play host this summer to 5,000 disabled former service men who are taking vocational training in Illinois, Wisconsin, and Michigan. They will be given a vacation at Fort Sheridan without any expense to themselves, and will be paid at the rate they receive while in the vocational schools. This announcement was made yesterday by Charles W. Sylvester, director of the federal board of vocational training in the Eighth federal district. The vacation period will begin June 15 and last until Sept. 15.

Nabs Auto Thief Suspect After Exciting Chase

Thomas Caronche, 1230 West Van Buren street, was arrested yesterday after an exciting chase and the police are searching for his three companions who, it is charged, stole a Ford car belonging to H. C. Ridgeway, 5038 West Madison street. Motorcycle Policeman F. E. Rhode made the capture.

LITTLE LOST BY BOND TAX RULING, FRIERSON SAYS

Washington, D. C., March 12.—Solicitor General Frierson declared today in a formal statement that there did not seem to be any ground for the claim that large amounts of taxes already paid to the government were involved in his concession yesterday before the Supreme court in the "corporate bond case" that the internal revenue bureau had erred in using the market values of securities as of March 1, 1913, as the basis for determining whether the subsequent sale resulted in gain or loss.

Mr. Frierson said the concession he had made applied "only in the rare cases in which the taking of the 1913 value as the basis would result in showing a fictitious gain or loss."

"I am advised by the experts of the internal revenue department," he continued, "that but little, in dollars and cents, can be involved. Probably as much will be saved on deductions as is lost on incomes."

LAWYER SHOT BY MISTAKE.

St. Louis, Mo., March 12.—Police today advanced the theory that John P. Sweeney, a lawyer and Democratic politician, was shot and killed last night by a bullet intended for Max Greenberg, an ex-convict, who also was shot.

TURKS PROTEST CHANGE MADE IN SEVRES TREATY

Kemal Envoy Objects to Greeks at Smyrna.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1921: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, March 12.—The allies' supreme council received the Turkish and Greek delegations this morning at St. James palace and formally communicated to them the revised terms of the Sevres treaty. The Greeks made no comment, but Samy Bey, for the Turks, protested the proposal to retain a Greek garrison in the city of Smyrna and the failure to return eastern Thrace to Turkey. Premier Lloyd George pointed out to them that the proposals must be regarded as a whole and not picked to pieces.

The Turk and Greek delegations are leaving London on Monday to consult with their respective governments.

Austria Has a Hearing.

After the Turks had left the Austrian delegation was admitted. Chancellor Dr. Mayr made a plea for allied assistance in restoring Austrian industry.

Premier Lloyd George replied that the allies were willing to do what they could, but that it was a question of ways and means, as all parliaments are carefully scrutinizing all expenditures.

It was arranged for the Austrians to meet J. Austen Chamberlain, the chancellor of the British exchequer, M. Loucheur, the French minister for the liberated regions, and other allied experts to discuss the details which will be considered at a conference next week. M. Loucheur leaves for Paris tonight.

FRANCO-TURKISH PEACE

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1921: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, March 12.—The Franco-British stranglehold on the Mesopotamian oil fields, seized when Turkey was carved up, was strengthened in London yesterday when the French and the Turkish Nationalists signed an official agreement. This is preliminary to actual signing of a peace treaty.

French troops immediately will evacuate Cicilia, including Aintab and Ourfa, which Gen. Gouraud's soldiers recently captured with heavy losses.

By signing a peace pact with France Mustapha Kemal Pasha will liberate 30,000 French troops under Gen. Gouraud, who has been campaigning in Cicilia, and also liberates 50,000 Kemalists for use against the Greeks, besides leaving the Greek right flank unprotected and exposed to a turning movement toward Smyrna when the French withdraw within the Syrian boundaries.

Bekir Samy Bey, head of the Kemalist mission at London, assured Premier Briand that the Turks would not molest the Armenians.

The Musical Marvel of the Age

The KIMBALL Phrasonome Player Piano

Today's realization of the musical impossibilities of yesterday

AT last, complete mastery of expression—command of phrasing so absolute that even the most delicate and exact shading may be given to mechanically played music.

Skillful phrasing is one of the chief qualities of a good performer. The technique may be perfect, but the "soul quality" may be lacking. As its name implies, the Phrasonome enables the player who feels what he plays to duly mark the phrases and accents in a most tasteful manner.

It stands alone, in that it makes it possible for the performer to play the melody loud while the accompaniment is soft or flowing, and vice versa—in other words, it supplies the "human touch."

The KIMBALL PHRASONOME PLAYER PIANO is a positive achievement in player piano construction—an instrument that actually makes "music played mechanically, musically intelligible."

We are giving demonstrations of the KIMBALL PHRASONOME PLAYER PIANO daily, and you are cordially invited to come and see and hear this "musical marvel of the age."

CAN'T EAT JAZZ, WHY PAY FOR IT? ASKS H. C. OF L. FOE

PROHIBITION or restaurant "cover charges" by law was recommended yesterday by Russell J. Poole, secretary of the council H. C. of L. committee, following his discovery that certain restaurants are doubling their prices on food served along with amusement in the evening.

Mr. Poole asked Chairman Max Adamowski to call a special meeting of his committee to consider the recommendation.

Two ham sandwiches served with a quart of Virginia Dare prohibition wine, for two people cost $2.10 at one loop restaurant during the day time, investigators reported. The same sandwiches and wine cost $5 when the "night" bills of fare have been distributed and the cover charge is in effect, according to Mr. Poole.

Big Price For Music

"Take for example the Hotel Randolph, 175 West Randolph street, and the Winter Garden, 214 South State street," says Mr. Poole's report to Ald. Adamowski. "Prices are boosted as high as 200 per cent when the jazz music starts in the evening. The following comparisons are submitted for your attention:

	Day price.	Night price.	Increase, P. C.
Winter Garden.
Bread and Butter	5c	15c	200
Tea, per pot	15c	35c	133
Lobster salad	80c	$1.50	87
Tenderloin steak, for two, plain	$2.00	$3.50	75
Hotel Randolph.
Celery	25c	35c	40
Fried oysters, N. Y. counts	45c	60c	33

"I recommend that at the special meeting of your committee an ordinance be drafted licensing restaurants which furnish vaudeville or other amusements according to seating capacity," the letter to Ald. Adamowski said.

The letter also took a slap at the packers in connection with the recent jump in meat prices.

DUBLIN PRELATE JOINS PROTEST ON EXECUTIONS

British Warned of Irish Reprisals.

DUBLIN, March 12.—[By the Associated Press.]—Six prisoners will be executed here Monday, it was announced officially this afternoon. Archbishop Walsh of Dublin and other prominent persons have joined in a public protest against the executions.

George W. Russell of the Irish Homestead and Agricultural organization today issued a statement saying:

"If these penalties are allowed to be inflicted, if the evidence of dozens of witnesses is to be set aside, the soul of Ireland will grow as far apart from the possibility of friendship with Britain as the earth is from the pole star."

Threat of Reprisals.

He warns the government to take heed, thus supporting predictions which are being freely made that the executions will be the signal for wholesale republican reprisals.

Two of the six to be executed, named Moran and Whelan, are accused of complicity in the killing of intelligence officers in Dublin Nov. 21 last and the others of participation in an ambush here late in January, in which one member of the attacking party was killed.

Six Ambushers Slain.

MOHILL, Ireland, March 12.—Thirty men of the Bedfordshire regiment, while proceeding from Garrickon-Shannon to Ballingmore Friday evening, were ambushed and attacked with rifle fire and bombs. The military returned the fire with the result that six of the attackers were killed and one was mortally wounded. The six men killed were attired in the uniforms of the Irish republican army.

FRENCH DEPORT DEFIANT "COPS" OF DUSSELDORF

Refuse to Salute Army of Occupation.

DUSSELDORF, March 12.—[By the Associated Press.]—Inability of the German security police officers to compel privates to salute French officers caused Gen. Degoutte today to order the disarmament and disbandment of 1,200 security police in Dusseldorf and command them to leave the city before 10 o'clock tonight.

An officer, a member of whose squad refused to salute a French major, has been fined 3,000 marks. Gen. Degoutte and Gen. Gaucher, commander of the French troops in Dusseldorf, were conferring at French headquarters today when the German officer asked to be permitted to apologize, but the French generals declined to accept the apology.

Private Won't Salute.

Meantime, the recalcitrant private stood laughing in the commandant's waiting room. The French major had addressed him in German:

"You must salute me." The policeman replied: "I won't," and did not.

A similar incident yesterday was settled by the apology of two officers and their promise to enforce the saluting of French officers by the police.

Gen. Degoutte, when he left the conference with Gen. Gaucher, expressed satisfaction with the situation in the occupied area, where he said the French had showed the Germans they were doing their duty kindly but firmly. Over all the areas, he added, the situation was very quiet and peaceful.

Police Leave on Trucks.

Scarcely had Gen. Degoutte's order for disbandment of the security police been issued before trucks loaded with the police and piled high with baggage began rumbling toward the outskirts.

Before nightfall most of the security police were proceeding toward Essen by motor trucks under supplemental instructions to vacate not only Dusseldorf but all the newly occupied area. One truckload, carrying guns, automatic pistols and bayonets, was greeted with cheers by crowds in the streets.

Belgian patrols, which took control of the rural commune of Hamborn on Wednesday night, have been removed, and this action on the part of the allied command has tended to ease the situation at Duisburg.

CUSTOMS IN U. S. AREA.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

COBLENZ, March 12.—The establishment of allied customs posts in the American area of occupation was discussed today by Maj. Gen. Henry Allen, commander in chief of the American forces in Germany, and American representatives on the inter-allied Rhine commission, who indicated such an outcome was possible in deliberations now in progress.

"I am considering what attitude the American army in Germany should take toward the application for economic sanctions in our area," said Gen. Allen. "My powers as commander of the American army in a foreign country during wartime are considerable and I am not sure but that permission might be granted to place customs posts within the boundaries of Germany controlled by us.

"It is certain Germany's foreign trade will suffer under the application of sanctions, which will be reflected not only in Germany but in the whole world, including the United States."

ESSEN LOSES TRADE.

ESSEN, March 12.—In this center of the great industrial region of Germany bitter hostility prevails against the allied plan for establishing a customs frontier and taxing German exports. The feeling is expressed chiefly against Mr. Lloyd George and the French authorities, and to some extent also against those Americans who participated in the work of the reparation commission.

The heads of the great industrial houses of Essen are outspoken in their criticism. They say that already huge contracts have been canceled and that the prospects are that trade will stagnate. They declare the workmen will be the chief ones to suffer and that the entire Ruhr basin, if not all Germany, will be irreparably damaged if the entente carries out a heavy taxation of Rhineland exports.

BRIAND TO SPEAK TUESDAY.

Paris, March 12.—Premier Briand will appear before the chamber of deputies on Tuesday and submit a report on the allied conference in London and it is expected he will speak on both the German and near eastern situations.

After his arrival here last night from the British capital M. Briand denied reports imputing to France a desire to annex German territory as a result of the occupation of towns on the Rhine.

COP IS KIDS' TRAFFIC BOSS

Policeman Martin Morlensen takes care of the children of Graeme Stewart school as they pass the crossing at Broadway and Montrose avenue. He has 'em so well trained they move with his signals just as the autos and trucks do. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

A lesson on how to cross the street is part of the daily curriculum of the children in Graeme Stewart school, Kenmore and Sunnyside avenues.

Policeman Martin Morlensen does the instructing at the Montrose and Broadway crossing without special fee. He likes his job and the children like him. He swings his arm like a semaphore and they know which way the traffic is ordered and act accordingly. When they grow up they will not cut corners and act like frightened chickens in the path of oncoming automobiles.

Go with the traffic. Never step off the curb until the signal is given. This is the lesson they are learning. Some day it will be automatic for them to act in this way.

"EVER SEASICK?" "PAINFUL SUBJECT!" READ AND REJOICE

[Chicago Tribune-New York Times Cable.]
[Copyright: 1921.]

PARIS, March 12.—A preventative of seasickness which it is maintained is really efficacious has been discovered by Prof. Nolf of the University of Liege. He has used it in experiments on himself and friends who were "bad sailors," and in every case, he said, it has proved its value.

All that is necessary is to take a dose of one milligram of sulphate of atropia on going on board ship and two doses of a half milligram each of half hour intervals. The action of sulphate of atropia, which is extract of belladonna, is not very clear, but in some way it seems to affect the pneumo-gastric nerve, which controls the heart and digestive organs.

Seasickness itself is supposed to be a form of giddiness caused by movement of the liquids of the internal ear, which is transmitted to the pneumo-gastric nerve. With even minute doses of the atropia which Prof. Nolf recommends this giddiness, it is said, can be stopped, and the worst sailor may cross the Atlantic or any other ocean without fear or distress.

POLAND IS SURE TO WIN SILESIA, KORFANTY SAYS

Campaigning Stops as Allies Take Hold.

BY L. C. WALTER.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1921: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BEUTHEN, Upper Silesia, March 12.—"We are sure of a complete Polish victory on March 20," said Albert Korfanty, the Polish plebiscite commissioner in Upper Silesia in an exclusive interview to a correspondent of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

"Should the supreme council, with an eye to reparations, attempt to surrender Upper Silesia to the Germans, despite the expressed wishes of the Polish majority, our town and peasant populations would refuse to recognize such an arbitrary solution.

Accuses Pan-Germans.

"Our pan-Germans cherish the hope of frustrating the plebiscite by provocations. As a last phase, they have begun an aggressive campaign of armed attacks on Polish villages.

"Armed with rifles, revolvers and hand grenades, the Germans forced the villagers to take an oath to vote for Germany. We have turned over to the interallied commission documents proving that 'local shock troops' enjoy the financial and moral coöperation of the Berlin government and Upper Silesia officialdom.

Germany Sends Arms.

"In many cases I have ascertained that convoys of arms and ammunition, which are steadily smuggled into Silesia from beyond the demarcation line, were prepared under the supervision of German army officers and soldiers.

"We have information that the German government is massing Saxon and Bavarian troops near the plebiscite frontier. We have documentary evidence, which we have handed to the interallied authorities, that reischwehr and sicherheit commanders are actively collaborating with German army units stationed in middle and lower Silesia for the purposes of provoking disorders in Upper Silesia."

POLAND SIGNS ECONOMIC PACT WITH ROUMANIA

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

VIENNA, March 13.—Prince Sapieha of Poland signed a treaty with Roumania when at Bucharest a week ago, it is learned today from Roumanian sources. The alliance is aimed chiefly at anti-red aggression, and guarantees the territorial integrity of both countries, and provides reciprocal economic privileges. Poland is to have a port on the Danube.

It is understod the alliance is received with satisfaction in Poland, but is being criticized in Roumania on the ground that the latter is giving much and getting little in return. Roumania is primarily a producing country, and the lowness of the Polish mark makes economic relations unfavorable.

New Ministry Formed to Replace That of Dato

MADRID, March 12.—Former Premier Manuel Allende Salazar today succeeded in forming a new cabinet to replace that of the late Premier Dato. The Marquis de Lema, who was minister of foreign affairs in the Dato cabinet, will hold the same portofilio in the new ministry.

REICHSTAG PUTS O. K. ON SIMONS' ACTS AT LONDON

Minister Tells of Offers to Allies.

BERLIN, March 12.—[By the Associated Press.]—Approval of the German government's attitude toward the allied reparation demands was voted by the reichstag today after Foreign Minister Simons made a lengthy explanation of his work at the London conference.

For Political Reasons.

"The German counter proposals were made for political reasons, after we had carefully consulted capable experts," Dr. Simons said. "They were not approved by the government merely because the experts indorsed them, but the government squarely assumed responsibility for them after I took the proposals out of the hands of the experts, carried them into the final sessions of the cabinet, and there championed them personally."

The house laughed when Dr. Simons explained the delay in the appearance of a "white book" on the London conference on the ground that the public printer had accidentally inserted parts of his speech into the reply made by Premier Lloyd George to the German counter proposals.

Says Premier Approved.

"The suggestion of a period of provisional payments was officially indorsed by England, and if Mr. Lloyd George now takes the opposite attitude, this is in contradiction to his former position," the foreign minister asserted.

The present invasion of the unoccupied areas of Germany he branded as "the worst sort of an attack that possibly can be made on any state." Dr. Simons said he believed the breaking off of relations would not yield Germany any advantage, as the sentiment of the world at large towards her was as yet too unfavorable. He also disagreed with those who charged that the "entente, through its present procedure, had nullified the treaty and that it was no longer in force for Germany."

Fulfill Treaty Only.

"Fulfillment of the Versailles treaty still remains, and we must definitely strive to carry out this obligation to the full extent of our ability, but no farther," Dr. Simons told the reichstag.

Discussing the prospects of further negotiations, the foreign minister said:

"Does the present situation permit us to carry on further negotiations? I, for my part, have not barricaded the path, nor pledged Germany to a definite course."

There was a partisan debate over the resolution of approval, which was moved by the coalition parties, but it was finally adopted by a vote of 266 to 49. The Nationalists and Majority Socialists voted with the government bloc.

EX-KAISER BOOK BLAMES BRITAIN FOR WAR; U.S., TOO

Cites Dewey's Action in Manila Bay.

AMSTERDAM, March 12.—Former Emperor William of Germany, has written, for private distribution, a book by which he attempts to show that England was responsible for the world war. In the volume he has collated historical "facts and data" relative to international agreements between all countries involved in the war from 1884 to 1914, and these facts have been marshaled in parallel columns by Count Hohenzollern, says the newspaper Het Volk.

He declares England's responsibility centered in her "plot to isolate Germany," and refers to "the mobilization of English banks in April, 1914, preparations for war by the British fleet in June, the same year, and the Russian mobilization of forces on July 15."

British-American Alliance.

"Thus," says the newspaper, "the former emperor tries to find adherents for the theory that allied mobilization made it impossible for Germany to prevent the war."

The former monarch worked on the book many months, carefully getting up a table of dates, intending to show merely by their marshaling that the world's history during the thirty years leading up to the war showed better than comment a world plot against Germany.

Among other things, the book is said to cite the American-German-British incident in Manila bay during the Spanish-American war, in which Admiral Dewey's action in forcing the Germans to observe neutrality was backed up by the British fleet in the bay, as showing a long alliance between the British and Americans.

Seventy Copies Printed.

French, British and Russian treaties are cited by dates and quotations with incidents such as that of Agadir, Morocco.

Seventy copies were printed and distributed for private reading to those the author thought he could trust.

COMMUNISTS, ON TRIAL IN PARIS, RUN FOR OFFICE

PARIS, March 12.—A contest between communism and conservatism will be settled by Sunday's elections of two deputies, made necessary by the elevation of M. Millerand to the presidency and the death of M. Lauche. Ernest Loriot and Boria Souvarine, two of ten communists on trial for a plot to overthrow the government, are running on the communist ticket, while M. Le Corbeiller, president of the municipal council of Paris, and J. L. Bonnet represent the bourgeoisie element.

Loriot and Souvarine are using their trial as a basis of appeal, while the conservatives are retorting with the argument that the communist candidates will possibly be convicted criminals.

U. S. TO YIELD NO RIGHTS FOR PART IN WAR OR PEACE

Semi-Official Hint on Yap and Mesopotamia.

Washington, D. C., March 12.—[Special.]—No American rights have been surrendered because of the war and none of them will be surrendered.

This tersely expresses the basis of the Harding foreign policy as outlined today by an authoritative official of the new administration.

Inquiry has been made as to whether the United States would send a representative to the league of nations council to argue America's position with respect to mandates, with particular reference to the issue over the Island of Yap and the Mesopotamian dispute with Great Britain.

Although no positive assertion was made, it was clearly indicated that at the proper time the United States would have an influential spokesman to present its cause before the league and to stand rigidly for America's claim that it aided to bring about the victory over Germany and will not surrender any American rights protected by that victory.

What U. S. Will Demand.

When the time comes, it was declared, the United States will be found demanding: Recognition of a right to a cable base on the Island of Yap, a right now being contested by Japan which has the mandate over Yap.

The right to oil privileges in Mesopotamia extended to nations affiliated with the league of nations, a right contested by Great Britain.

The spokesman for the administration today said it would not be the policy of the administration to be at all jingoyant or boastful or belligerent in the handling of foreign problems growing out of the war and subsequent treaty negotiations. But this much he made plain: The rights of the United States in world affairs exist today right there just as they existed on the day of the armistice.

U. S. Will Come Out Whole.

No one has surrendered any of these rights; no one had any authority to surrender such rights.

The rights of the United States could be altered or curtailed only through a treaty properly negotiated and ratified; so far as the United States is concerned there is no such treaty.

Proceeding on the basis that none of the American rights have been or will be surrendered, the government is preparing to sit down with the allied nations—"our friends," as the spokesman referred to them—and talk things over.

And, the prediction was made, when things have been thoroughly talked over, it will be found that the United States comes out of the negotiations with international rights untrammeled.

BANK OF KINDNESS

Draw a Check on It for the Unfortunate.

BY REV. G. A. MAC WHORTER.

Testimony to the unselfish and warm hearted spirit of the students in the Garrett Biblical institute of Evanston, of which the Rev. Dr. Charles M. Stuart is president, lies in the fact that aside from other appeals made to them by other welfare organizations, they have given to the European students' relief fund amounts totaling $334. Of the 189 students contributing—the entire enrollment of the institute—many have to earn their way while studying the Methodist ministry, and some are married and have families to support.

Funds for the burial of the little nameless boy who died at Michael Reese hospital a week ago Friday, have been coming into the Bank of Kindness in $1 and $2 contributions, until the total has reached the sum of $27. The last report—March 6—accounted for $14. Since then the ushers at the Sunday Evening club have added $10, and R. W. C., $2, and E. H., $1, making the total to date—$27.

The funeral was conducted under the auspices of the Bank of Kindness and further contributions to the fund will be received and applied upon the expenses, any balance being paid to the poor young mother, who is still unable to return to her work after her sad experience.

Payne Said to Have Resigned as R. R. Head

Washington, D. C., March 12.—[Special.]—John Barton Payne of Chicago, former secretary of the interior, is reported to have sent President Harding his resignation as director general of railroads. The president, it is said, may ask Mr. Payne to retain the post until affairs growing out of federal railroad control are wound up. Mr. Payne is now at Southern Pines, N. C., and is said to be anxious to return to his private law practice in Chicago.

OBREGON BALKS AT U. S. TREATY TERMS OF COLBY

Harding and Hughes Consider Problem.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., March 12.—[Special.]—President Obregon of Mexico, according to unofficial advices reaching here, has informally indicated that he does not favor yielding to the demands of the United States sent through former Secretary of State Colby for a treaty giving guarantees of protection to American lives and interests in Mexico as a condition precedent to recognition of his government.

The attitude of President Obregon is said to be known to President Harding and Secretary of State Hughes, who are giving the Mexican problem close study with a view to bringing about a restoration of diplomatic relations.

Creager for Ambassador.

It is known that Mr. Harding hopes for a speedy restoration of these relations and is planning to name an ambassador to Mexico, having in mind for the post his old friend, R. B. Creager of Texas, who has conferred with him several times since the inauguration.

In some quarters it is declared that the new administration will find a way to get assurances of guarantees from Mexico without the formality of a treaty, which, it is said, is regarded by Obregon as an atempt to humiliate his administration.

The president conferred today with Nelson O'Shaughnessey, former chargé d'affaires in Mexico, who left the service early in the Wilson régime. Mr. O'Shaughnessey denied emphatically a report that he would be returned to Mexico. It is regarded probable, however, that he may reënter the diplomatic service.

Reports that President Harding now has an emissary in Mexico were strongly denied at the state department.

Denied in Mexico City Also.

Mexico City, March 12.—Persistent rumors that an unnamed emissary from President Harding to President Obregon is carrying basic points for recognition of Mexico by the United States, were denied in all official quarters today. George T. Summerlin, United States chargé d'affaires, said he had no information as to the coming of such a representative.

SENATOR BORAH DECRIES TREATY WITH COLOMBIA

'Confession of Shame,' 'No Justification.'

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., March 12.—[Special.]—Insurgent republicanism came out in the open today when Senator Borah of Idaho, issued a statement denouncing the Colombian treaty as "a condemnation of Roosevelt" and a "confession of shame on the part of our government."

The senator called attention to statements that Japan is seeking a foothold in Colombia and declared that if such reports are true there should be another kind of treaty to take care of the situation.

"The Colombia treaty, in its essential nature and in its vital provisions, is the same treaty we have had before the senate for years," he said. "It is a confession of the charges heretofore made against Roosevelt and our government. There is no other basis for the treaty.

"Treaty Condemns Roosevelt."

"The treaty, regardless of the language in which it is couched, is a condemnation of Roosevelt and of John Hay, and a confession of shame upon the part of our government. There are no facts to justify such a treaty, and to ratify it seems indefensible.

"We are told that a new condition has arisen. If this is so, we should have a new treaty which, in its terms, deals with the new condition. I have been told by the parties interested that great oil concessions have been granted by Colombia to American citizens, and that, unless this treaty is ratified the Colombian administration will be overthrown and the oil concessions be canceled. In such case we should have a new treaty which specifically provides for taking care of these oil concessions.

"If Situation New, Treaty Is Not."

"In other words, if there is a new situation, this treaty does not deal with it. Its terms do not cover it. It is the old treaty grounded in the old assertion, and if it is ratified, it will be construed in no other light than that of utter condemnation of everything that Roosevelt and John Hay did with reference to the matters in 1903."

HARDING FINDS HARD ROAD BACK TO "NORMALCY"

Efficiency in the Nation's Business Is Goal.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., March 12.—[Special.]—Warren Harding has been president a week, and is beginning to realize what he is up against for the next four years—or more if he makes good with the country. He is beginning to perceive that the tasks he confronts—of getting the nation "back to normalcy" from the disorganization of war, the pursuit of visionary ideals, and the hearkening to "voices in the air"—equals in magnitude, if it does not exceed, the job of conducting the war and making peace.

The earnestness with which he is addressing himself to the problems of the hour is the outstanding impression one has of a week's observation of the president. He and his ten cabinet members are working hard to place the government service on a higher plane of efficiency.

Long Hours at Work.

Mr. Harding puts in a long day. Save for an hour for luncheon, he is at the executive office from early morning till the middle of the afternoon. Then he spends two or three hours in the open air, generally playing golf. After dinner he works three hours or more at his desk in the executive office—a novel experience for the presidential secretariat, some of whom have been on the staff since the days of McKinley.

In striking contrast with the Wilson regime, each cabinet member is master in his own realm. He is not required to run to the president for approval of every decision. Only major policies are referred to the executive, who has given the members of his cabinet to understand that they are to manage their departments in their own way to achieve results.

Coöperates with Congress.

The next striking aspect of the new administration is the coöperation with congress initiated by the executive. The Harding program of domestic reforms is being worked out by collaboration with the leaders of the legislative branch of the government. When the president presents it in his first message to the forthcoming extraordinary session of the Sixty-seventh congress it will be the composite product of many minds and, as such, presumably representative of the prevailing public sentiment of the country. Bringing the law up from the people, instead of down from the mount, is the mission of Mr. Harding as he conceives it.

There is one institution that has been returned to normalcy in a single week. That is the executive office. The very air is vibrant with the relief and joy of the capital at the passing of the austerity and secrecy of the Wilson régime and revival of the habitude of the Roosevelt and Taft administrations. Mr. Harding is accessible, democratic, and fond of the society of his fellow man.

Reverses Wilson's Policy.

President Wilson came into office with a great trumpeting of his intention to conduct the public business with his office door wide open and to turn on the light of "pitiless publicity," in the phrase he borrowed from Emerson. From the start, however, Mr. Wilson was the most inaccessible president in generations, and, with the secrecy and suppression of public information that ensued, the term "pitiless publicity" became a byword which, like "too proud to fight," could not be mentioned at the White House without giving offense.

Mr. Harding has changed all that. After every important conference the president himself receives the correspondents and gives out the news that has developed. He says that the people are entitled to the information, and that he purposes to see that they get it.

Office Seekers on Hand.

After starting the joint congressional committee to work on the reorganization of the government and the revenue committees of the house and senate to their task of working out a revision of the tariff and tax laws, the president devoted a large part of his first week to the consideration of appointments to the more important offices. There has been a stream of senators and representatives to the executive office to present the names of candidates, many of these callers having the candidates themselves in tow, all dressed up for the inspection of the president. Mr. Harding has taken all of these recommendations "under advisement," for his final decisions are being made in consultation with the heads of the various departments under whom the appointees will serve. The announcement of a number of important diplomatic appointments is expected within the next week or two.

FIRST "MIXED EIGHT" ON THE THAMES

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

Another phase of the striking progress of women in England into new spheres is shown by the fact that they are now competing in "mixed" rowing races on the historic Thames. Mixed eights on the Hudson at Poughkeepsie or on the Thames at New London would be regarded a spectacle for America, indeed! Above is a photograph of the first eight of men and women students which rowed on the river at Oxford, England. The women—Miss Wilson, Miss Haran, and Miss Johnson—were at positions 1, 3, and 4. The women are undergraduates of Ruskin college.

HARDING ASKS U. S. TO DO ALL IT CAN TO AID STARVING CHINA

Washington, D. C., March 12.—An appeal to the American people to "do everything in their power" towards the relief of famine conditions in China was issued today by President Harding. He declared that although "the nation already had given liberally to the relief committee the fund still was entirely inadequate.

"At this, the earliest practicable moment of my administration," said the president's statement, "I desire to add my own to the many appeals which have been issued heretofore in behalf of the starving people of a large section.

"I am informed that already a great relief work has been accomplished. Nevertheless, my information is that the means thus far place at the command of these organizations are entirely inadequate to the task they confront.

"Since the beginning of this relief movement a much more accurate understanding of the grave situation has become possible. Through information received by the state department from its representatives in China, the picture of China's distress is tragic."

Forest Preserve Plans Action for Skokie Park

Brings "Second Largest Gold Nugget" to Chicago

George F. Kilroy, a mining engineer, arrived here yesterday from Alaska, with what he termed the second largest gold nugget ever found in that country." The nugget excited the curiosity of bankers and others, who flocked to the home of John Borden, 1020 Lake Shore drive, to see it.

DANCE TO YIELD FUND FOR 122D HERO MEMORIALS

Mothers and wives of members of the 122d Field artillery will give a dance and card party at the new home of the regiment on the night of March 17 for the fund to erect bronze tablets to the memory of each member of the famous fighting organization. Mrs. Frank Schwengel will be chairman of the reception committee. Mrs. Louise Tousey is one of the members of the committee taking an active part in arrangements for the affair.

CHILD LEFT IN CARE OF WOMAN DIES; HUNT KIN

Mrs. Helen Neilsen advertised some time ago that she would take care of babies and small children while the parents were out of the city or the mothers were shopping. Now she is placed in a perplexing position through the death of one of the children left in her care. She has asked the police to help her locate the parents.

Mrs. Neilsen, who lives at 2213 North Lawndale avenue with her husband, Andrew Neilsen, said the parents of the child called at her home Feb. 1. They gave the name of "Davis," and said they would be out of town for more than a month and asked her to take charge of their month old boy. They paid $7 for his expenses for a month.

The boy died of pneumonia yesterday.

5 Scrubwomen, Held for Thefts, Put on Probation

Five scrubwomen arrested Friday for stealing goods from a loop store were placed upon probation for one year and ordered to make $25 restitution each when they appeared before Judge Haas yesterday.

BEG YOUR PARDON

In connection with the arrest of the "tea store bandits," it was stated that one of the men, George Richmond, had been at one time a football player at the University of Notre Dame. Richmond informed the police he had been a "sub" player on this and other college teams. William A. Maloney, secretary of the university, informs THE TRIBUNE that no player of the name of Richmond ever was on an athletic team at the college, and there is no record of any such student.

On March 11 THE TRIBUNE, in an article concerning an auto accident, referred to John Ginocchio of 5818 Washington boulevard as a "saloonkeeper." THE TRIBUNE is now informed that Mr. Ginocchio is not and never has been a saloonkeeper, but is a manufacturer of soda fountain extracts and supplies.

In THE TRIBUNE of March 8 a statement read, "A Caesarian operation was at once performed by Dr. Breakstone, staff physician at the institution. The child was dead." Dr. Benjamin H. Breakstone, staff physician of the West End hospital, reports that the child is not dead.

Deneen Places Illinois as Waterways Keystone

"Illinois is the American center of the world's greatest waterway," former Gov. Charles S. Deneen declared yesterday in a debate against a Chinese mandarin at the Covenant club. The mandarin was a mythical character embodying all the wisdom of the Chinese empire. He argued Illinois could not be a great state as compared with the Chinese states because it is too young. Mr. Deneen showed that Illinois has done more for educational, cultural, social, and commercial advancement in 100 years than any other commonwealth or any other state of any country.

"In a few years we will have a navigable system from the Atlantic ocean, through the St. Lawrence river, the great lakes, into the Chicago river, finally into the Mississippi, and the Gulf of Mexico, and from there to the Panama canal."

LOOP THEATER ACTOR MISSING; SLAIN FOR "GROUCH BAG," THEORY

Edward ("Eddie") Badger, who played the part of the sheriff's assistant in "The Tavern" at Cohan's Grand, has disappeared. Charles Vion, manager of the company, told the detective bureau last night that he feared the actor had been slain for the money he carried in a "grouch bag" around his neck. He left the Revere house, 417 North Clark street, at 7:30 Friday night, but failed to appear at the theater. According to members of the company, Badger was saving to produce a new act in vaudeville.

PSYCHOLOGIST TELLS WHY BOY STOLE $772,000

William Dalton's $772,000 robbery of the Northern Trust company was explained yesterday by Prof. Robert H. Gault of the department of psychology of Northwestern university in a lecture before the Evanston University guild.

"He was mentally normal," he said, "but he permitted himself to think of the easy profits that would accrue if he took advantage of his employer. Eventually the thought dominated him and led him to commit the act. I agree with many experts that feeble-mindedness or other mental maladies comprise the greatest single cause of crime. Because a youth has a mental ailment predisposing him to crime it does not mean his case will not yield to hygienic treatment."

Prof. Gault concluded with the admonition that, although education would correct mental weakness, corporations should realize "education is useless unless the student feels he is a part of the organization, and can attain financial independence."

INVESTIGATE WOMAN'S DEATH.

The inquest into the death of Mrs. Anna Musella, 1741 North Hermitage avenue, who died Friday, supposedly from the results of an illegal operation, was continued yesterday to March 22 to allow time for further investigation by the police. Mrs. Celia Maros, 1741 North Hermitage avenue, a midwife, is held at detention home No. 2 pending the result of the inquest.

ROBERTSON LAYS SLEEP PLAGUE TO PSYCHIC FREAK

Says Scare Over Disease Suggests It.

Encephalitis lethargica, the mysterious disease that causes its victims to sleep for days and sometimes weeks before their deaths, killed thirty-one Chicagoans during the first eleven weeks of 1921, according to the city health records.

This represents an increase of approximately 300 per cent in the death rate as compared to 1920, when forty-nine deaths were reported during the entire twelve months.

Steady Increase Shown.

The record of the sleeping sickness told in cases and deaths for 1919, 1920 and the first eleven weeks of this year is as follows:

	Cases.	Deaths.
1921 [11 weeks]	113	31

In 1918 not a case of the disease, which physicians find it difficult to diagnose and treat successfully, was reported.

Health Commissioner Robertson says that "suggestion through newspaper stories" is responsible for the increase.

"Despite the figures I do not believe Chicago has any more encephalitis lethargica than it had three years ago," he said. "The disease has been popularized by newspaper stories.

Calls Disease "Very Rare."

"As a result many of the heart-kidney diseases, which cause the patients to sleep for long periods before death, are being diagnosed as sleeping sickness. There is such a thing as encephalitis lethargica, but it is very rare."

Not Mere Jawbone but Backbone Counts Here

There's a man in Chicago who thinks he's just a bit more lonesome than anyone else in the town. He's trying to find company.

"I want to announce the formation of a new organization," he told the city editor hurriedly; "an exclusive affair—only one member now—that's me—and only one or two in a million eligible, but I wanta find 'em.

"It's the E. L. V. A.—the Extra Lumbar Vertebra association. The X-ray says I've got one of the dummed things—a little more backbone than most people—and I wanta get in touch with others in the same boat and see what we can do about it. Couldn't you publish an announcement and ask 'em to communicate with E. L. V. A., care of the city editor of THE TRIBUNE?"

One E. L. V. A. request, but here it is.

50 NEW STREET IMPROVEMENTS TO BEAUTIFY CITY

Prepare Big Extensions of Chicago Plan.

Studies involving fifty new street improvements, designed to enhance Chicago's material advancement and at the same time give it the symmetry and beauty of Paris are being made by the Chicago plan commission.

Charles H. Wacker, chairman of the commission, whose dreams of lake shore development and improvement of five west side thoroughfares are on the way to realization, believes "moral and recreational betterments must go hand in hand with improvements which will relieve downtown congestion and end haphazard expansion."

Mr. Wacker again lays emphasis on the need of "perfect circulatory mediums" to relieve the loop and recommends plans for an outer quadrangle, to consist of Twenty-second street, Halsted street, Chicago avenue and Michigan avenue [1], as indicated on the accompanying map, and an inner quadrangle, composed of Twelfth street and Michigan avenue, be pushed to completion [2].

Some Proposed Improvements.

The commission is at work on other improvements, some of which have been tentatively recommended. Others are merely suggestions on which the commission's engineers are at work. A partial list of the proposed new improvements which the commission has under consideration follows:

ARCHER AVENUE — Widening from Twenty-second street to city limits to form a great diagonal traffic artery from the heart of the city through the southwest side, connecting the exterior highway system. [3]

WELLS, LA SALLE, DEARBORN, MARKET and FRANKIN STRRETS —Widened and extended through the south side railroad terminal district to be created by the straightening of the river, would be tributary to the new Archer avenue. [4]

BLACKWELL STREET — Relocating, extending, and widening to 120 feet from Eighteenth street to Archer avenue in connection with south side terminal development. [5]

For Wider Streets into Loop.

LA SALLE STREET — Widening from Randolph street to Lincoln park and from Jackson boulevard to Roosevelt road. [6]

PLYMOUTH COURT—Development from Polk street to Fourteenth street in connection with general south side terminal plans. [6]

POLK STREET—Widening from Clark street to the river to connect with widening of this street from Canal street to Halsted street, now under way, to make a through east-and-west street. [7]

Section and half-section line streets —Development of all such streets in outlying areas, including widening in some instances.

SHERMAN STREET—Southern extension beyond Taylor street dependent upon final south side terminal and river straightening plans. [8]

Better North Side Artery.

STATE STREET—Widening from the Chicago river to Division street as a connection between the heart of the city and the north side. [9]

BRYN MAWR AVENUE—Widening from Lincoln avenue to Rogers avenue and from Robey street to Ashland avenue in connection with the Robey street improvement. [10]

CLARK STREET—Widening from Devon avenue to northern city limits. [11]

FOSTER AVENUE—Widening and extension from Central Park avenue to Kostner avenue. [12]

LINCOLN AVENUE — Widening from Western avenue to northern city limits. [13] Extend Sheridan Road.

SHERIDAN ROAD — Extension along lake front from Grace street to northern city limits as part of Lincoln park development. [14]

WRIGHTWOOD AVENUE — Development from western city limits to Logan Square and from North Keeler avenue to Crawford avenue. [15]

CHARLES STREET — Widening from Ninety-fifth street to Vincennes avenue in connection with the Ashland avenue improvement. [16]

COTTAGE GROVE AVENUE — Extension from Twenty-second street to Milwaukee and Ashland avenues as a great southeast and northwest diagonal thoroughfare. Much of the extension would take the form of a viaduct over railroad yards. [17]

FIFTEENTH STREET—Widening to eighty feet from State street to Clark street; with treatment between Clark street and the river dependent upon south side terminal and river straightening plans. [17]

FOURTEENTH STREET—Same as Fifteenth street. [17]

SIXTEENTH STREET—Widening to eighty feet from State street to Clark street and extension from Clark street to the river. [17]

WENTWORTH AVENUE—Widening to eighty feet from Sixteenth street to Archer avenue. [17]

On Far South Side.

LAKE CALUMET REGION—Improvement and development of Cottage Grove avenue, One Hundred and Third street, One Hundred and Eleventh street, One Hundred and Thirtieth street and Stony Island avenue and additional connections. [18].

Asks an Early Trial in Alleged Drug Violation

Dr. Edmund Converse, 64 West Randolph street, and John H. Montgomery, a druggist, were arraigned before Judge Landis in the District court yesterday charged with violation of the Harrison anti-narcotic act. Both pleaded not guilty. Capt. John B. Boddie, assistant district attorney, asked for an early trial. "The government intends to make these test cases," he said.

SOLDIERS PATROL SPRINGFIELD, O.; CITY IS QUIET

Springfield, O., March 12. — The streets were deserted tonight and civil and military authorities agreed race rioting was at an end.

Sheriff Jones ordered citizens to be off the streets tonight. All stores closed at 6 o'clock, street cars stopped running an hour later, and by 8 o'clock police and the militia were patrolling deserted streets. The police were on foot, while the guards toured the city in motor trucks, armed with machine guns and rifles.

James White, 17, a Negro, who shot Patrolman Joseph Ryan last night, was in an auto smashup near West Jefferson, en route to the state reformatory. Another machine was obtained and White taken to Columbus.

SCHOOL HEAD 'FIRED,' 46 GIRLS GO ON STRIKE

Danville, Va., March 12.—[Special.]—Forty-six of the sixty-five boarding pupils at Averett Baptist Girls' college announced they would not return to the college at the end of the session. They held an indignation meeting today following the dismissal of President Clayton E. Crosland by the trustees.

The trustees resented his allowing the girls to dance together. He smoked too much, some thought. So the board voted, 13 to 6, to oust him.

Crosland, a Rhodes scholar with A. B. A., from Wadham college, Oxford, said his foes on the board were guilty of "ungentlemanly, cowardly, mean, and un-Christian action," and charged he was brought there on misrepresentations.

Prices at the North American are based on the actual cost of food; the cost of cooking; and a necessary charge to cover rent, light, heat and other expenses. We never consider what other restaurants charge nor figure what we ought to get. We charge only what our costs show to be fair prices even though by doing so we discard precedent and create comparisons which put most bill of fare prices to shame.

Day after day restaurant and hotel men tell us we are selling our food for too little money. They base their statements on what they charge for food never better than ours and often not comparable to ours in either quality or portions.

In one sense they are right. We know the quality and size of food portions other restaurants serve: We know their prices: And we could get more money and still keep our prices far below others. But we believe that the restaurant which is fair with its patrons and charges them what food is worth—not what it can get—will be the winner in the long run.

For 65 cents we serve a whole breast of a milk-fed chicken with bacon and giblet gravy. At most any other good restaurant or hotel that same breast of chicken costs anywhere from $1.00 to $1.50. We could charge more and still save you money. But our prices are based on what food is worth and not on what we can get. For sixty cents we serve a great big portion of the finest roast beef money can buy. All over the country you will pay from 90 cents to $1.25 for a cut of roast beef no better.

Honest prices such as these have made the North American popular. If you don't dine here regularly you are overlooking something.

CITY'S AID CALLS RENT GOUGERS "CAPTAIN KIDDS"

Speaker Tells Lawyers of Peril to the City.

Members of the Lawyers' Association of Illinois sat back in respectful silence yesterday at a luncheon in their rooms in the City Hall Square building as champions of harassed tenants brought home in forceful language reasons why the Kessinger enabling act is necessary for the salvation of Chicago rent payers.

In a stirring speech in which he pledged the aid of the city hall organization, William D. Saltiel, assistant corporation counsel, declared the exploits of Capt. Kidd and Jesse James appear as tame as the pranks of Sunday school pickpockets when compared to the transactions of profiteering landlords and real estate agents.

"The profiteering landlord has lost his sense of social responsibility," declared Mr. Saltiel. "The police power should be invoked. By the passage of the Kessinger-Dailey bill we cannot only bring about a resumption of building but can also stop exorbitant rental charges until such a time as we will have enough houses.

"The landlords who are guilty of profiteering plainly misconstrue the slogan 'Boost Chicago!' They are doing all in their power to make this town a forbidden city."

Kessinger Explains Bill.

An explanation of the bill was made by Senator Kessinger. He pointed out that it does not declare apartment buildings a public utility and that the bill does not create a state rental commission. He said many persons have been misled into believing things which the bill does not do, and declared that if passed it simply will give the city council of any city the authority to create a local rental commission, which can be dispensed with by city ordinance at any time the city so desires during the next five years. At the end of that time the bill automatically goes out of existence.

Prof. Walter F. Dodd, authority on constitutional law, who drafted the bill, explained the measure is part of the program of the Illinois housing commission, appointed by former Gov. Lowden, to put an end to the housing shortage.

Vette precipitated a verbal duel with A. R. Jessurun, secretary of the Chicago Tenants' Protective league.

"The proposed Kessinger bill is unconstitutional and in addition the action of the tenants in putting up their strike signs is criminal conspiracy," said Mr. Vette.

"The lawyers in New York said the same thing of the bill there, but when it came up to the Supreme court it was held constitutional," replied Mr. Jessurun. "We prefer to have the Supreme court of Illinois pass on our bill and not Mr. Vette."

Complete Springfield Plans.

Final arrangements for the trip to Springfield on board "the tenant special" Wednesday were completed at a meeting of the executive board of the tenant organization last night. More than 1,000 members are expected to appear before the committees of both houses. About 800 have already signed up to go, it was announced.

The train will leave at 9 a. m. on Wednesday over the Chicago and Alton railroad from the Union station. The cars will carry banners with various inscriptions and slogans. The train will arrive in Springfield at about 1:30 p. m. and the tenants will parade to the capitol building, headed by a band.

Vette Attacks Bill.

Ald. John H. Lyle also spoke in behalf of the tenants, while John L. Vette, attorney for the Chicago Real Estate board, presented the arguments of the landlords.

More than 500 tenants have signed up to go to Springfield on board "the tenant special" train on Wednesday to lobby in behalf of the Kessinger bill before the committee of both houses, according to an announcement made by officials of the Chicago Tenants' Protective league. The train will leave over the Chicago and Alton at about 9 a. m. and will arrive in Springfield shortly after noon. A procession through the streets to the capitol building will follow the arrival.

The final sendoff meeting, to be held Tuesday evening in the Broadway armory, will be preceded by a parade of several thousand tenants, headed by a band. The procession will start at Wilson avenue and Broadway and will march north to the armory at Thorndale avenue.

Two auto trucks with signs advertising the meeting toured the Wilson avenue district last night, while boy scout drum and bugle corps within attracted the attention of the throngs.

WIFE OF JEWELER LOSES $2,500 GEMS IN DOWNTOWN SHOP

MRS. W. S. SPARROW.

Mrs. W. S. Sparrow, wife of a jeweler residing at 6144 Kimbark avenue, yesterday reported to the police the loss of gems valued at $2,500 in a downtown store. The jewelry, which was in a small bag, disappeared from a room while Mrs. Sparrow was having a fitting for a corset. Seven articles were heirlooms. A checkup is being made by the police.

Miss Catherine McCahill to Wed F. K. Lane Jr.

New York, March 12.—[Special.]—The engagement of Miss Catherine McCahill, daughter of Mrs. James McCahill of Lake City, Minn., to Franklin K. Lane Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin K. Lane of Washington, D. C., was announced today at her home.

Mr. Lane, whose father was secretary of the interior during President Wilson's administration until the early part of 1920, served during the war as a lieutenant in naval aviation.

Miss McCahill is a graduate of the Madames of the Sacred Heart.

STREET ARAB, 15, SHOT TO DEATH STEALING AUTO

Shot to death when he attempted to steal the automobile of Anthony Puidack, 1117 Marquette road, the body of Earl Garner, a 15 year old street waif, was found lying between two apartment buildings at 6726 and 6728 South May street early yesterday.

ANTHONY PUIDACK

For a time the death of the boy was a mystery. The bullet wound in his back led police to believe he had been murdered. However, inquiry by Detective sergeants under Acting Captain Patrick McCauley revealed that Puidack had shot at a boy who had attempted to steal his automobile from his back yard shortly after midnight. It was established, through friends of Garner, that he made two previous attempts to steal Puidack's automobile.

Escapes from Parental School.

Three weeks ago Garner, whose father, Joseph Garner, lives at 4029 Cottage Grove avenue, escaped from the Parental school at Bowmanville. Some days later he met Peter Galzaretta, an Italian boy living at 7006 South Wood street, who took him to his home and let him sleep in the basement.

Sunday Garner told Galzaretta he knew how to make some easy money and said he was going to steal Puidack's automobile. Puidack, however, had an electric alarm attached to the door of the machine and it rings a bell in the house if the door is opened.

Tells of Shooting at Boy.

"Shortly after midnight the bell rang," Puidack told the police. "My wife and I went out. As I came up I saw some one in the machine. When he saw me he jumped out and started to run, then stopped, and put his hand towards his pocket. I thought he might have a gun and would shoot so I fired one shot at him and he ran away. I had no idea I had hit him."

As the boy ran past Mrs. Puidack she noticed he had on a brown suit and a red sweater. Garner wore clothing of that description. He ran about 300 feet before he dropped dead.

INCOME TAX BUREAU TO BE OPEN TODAY; DEADLINE NEARING

CHARLES M. CALLNER, the chief of the income tax division of the office of the collector of internal revenue, announced yesterday that the income tax bureau in the federal building will be open today from 9 until 3 o'clock. The substations will be open until 1 o'clock this afternoon. The stations are at 415 North Clark street, 4750 Broadway, 1224 Milwaukee avenue, 803 Madison street, 6240 Kimbark avenue, and 712 West Sixty-third street.

These bureaus are being kept open for the convenience of the taxpayer who is unable to take advantage of their services on working days.

THE TRIBUNE income tax bureau will be open tomorrow and Tuesday until 5:30 o'clock. All the necessary blanks are still to be had at this bureau. All returns must be in the hands of the collector of internal revenue by midnight on Tuesday.

P. J. McA. writes: "Will you kindly advise me if members of the United States naval reserve force on inactive duty are subject to income tax?" Answer: Yes.

THINKER, DOER, BUT NOT SPIELER —THAT'S HOOVER

May Be Administration's Constructor.

This is the fifth of a series of pen sketches of the members of President Harding's cabinet. Tomorrow Eye Witness will discuss Secretary of State Hughes.

BY EYE WITNESS.

Washington, D. C., March 12.—[Special.]—I have no hobby except work.—HERBERT HOOVER.

This administration has too darn much energy. I'll tell the world Mistah Hoover sure is a go-getter, but I wish somebody'd teach him how to rest a little bit. It wasn't this way in the old days.—HOOVER'S AGED COLORED DOORKEEPER.

It is Hoover's thought and not his personality that commands here.

His personality is pale, his voice light, his face round, boyish, unlined, his manner unaffected and unspoiled.

So far as those superficies go he might be any "nice fellow."

He wears a blue sack suit and clings thriftily to a half smoked, dampish cigar, and with his elbows resting on the mahogany arm of his office chair he makes two gestures with his forearms. One is up and the other is down. He likes the phrase "Here's a typical case" and that phrase helps to characterize him, for he is ever concrete.

"In the long view," is another of his favorites.

"In the long view," he said, "we are going to meet from Europe a form, a degree of competition, we have never met before. To meet it means greater national efficiency."

Ready with Typical Cases.

Without further preamble he brought in the concrete illustration of what would contribute to such efficiency, saying, "Development of electric power from here to Bangor would effect a saving of thirty to fifty million tons of coal per annum."

And again, when he was touching

CONSTRUCTOR

Secretary Hoover Wants to See Jam of Goods Moving.

HERBERT HOOVER.

the multifarious and interrelated problems of foreign trade and shipping board and internal transportation, came this: "Transportation does not end at seaboard and we ought to consider these steamship lines as just an extension of our internal transportation."

And still again—very concrete in the matter of the crying economic scandal of non-standardization in a hundred lines readily capable of it:

"There are eleven different sizes of automobile wheels in this country. Four would meet the requirements of the trade without sacrifice to excellence of products. To reduce this number of sizes would reduce needs and storage costs, etc., one-half. It took ten years to agree on a standard car coupling in this country. Attainment of a standard car wheel meant equal effort and time—and the work is not done yet. What we need is an industrial or economic Esperanto. Take f. o. b. Merchants of this country mean two things when they say that. What we want to do is to have them get together and say what they DO mean.

Standardize Qualities.

"So much of this need not be governmental. Why not voluntary standardization? If we could get a standard modern building code it would contribute substantially to reduce building costs. Simplify things in common everyday use, but not at the sacrifice of quality. Standardize qualities. The foreign trade tendency is to refuse goods from the United States, and the quibble is usually based on quality."

Much close packed economics in all that. How simple it all seems now that he has said it!

Mr. Hoover wants a much elaborated bureau of domestic commerce, and points of contact between it and the trade. "Take a typical case," he said. "We want a business functionary here from the leather trade"—and he went on to tell why from the leather trade especially.

A Spendthrift of Work.

Hoover's favorite pastime is work. His hatreds are waste and departmental overlapping. His ideal of good government—good administration, I mean—is one $5,000 a year man doing a man's work instead of five $1,000 a year "poor little clerks puttering about."

"Yes, but," said one of his listeners, "if you had the $5,000 a year job to give you'd have to have the congressman's brother to fill it."

That brought a big laugh from Hoover—the first I ever heard from him. It was a real guffaw and he got pink.

He continued:

"It's my belief this administration is going to take its courage in its hands and not worry about discharging a few poor little clerks. It's going to go to the roots of things and find out in its work for reorganization what the purpose of such a department as this—for example—is. So long as a department has nine different purposes it's not going to function completely. All these things are going to depend on what is evolved here as the theory of government."

Watches His Step.

When he said some of his long-visioned things he sometimes threw in the note of caution by saying "I may be fooled."

He watches his step, no fear.

Of stupid overlapping in two certain bureaus he said, "Whoever runs the . . . service ought to run the . . . service, for they run parallel in a hundred ways. To combine them probably would result in a saving of 50 per cent."

When I asked him whether I might quote that, he replied, "Yes, but don't say which two bureaus, or you'll have 'em both in here on my neck."

Hoover talks better than he writes. When he writes he leaves out all his dear "typical cases" and "concrete illustrations" that he so likes to have you "take." He gave me a typewritten digest of all he talked over in an intimate way, and there was hardly a responding sentence in it, nor a quotable. It was routine as paint.

Not a Spellbinder.

And he talks in private far, far better than he talks in public. At the National Press club's hobby party, where he had a great audience, he was almost zero. He was forlorn and faltering, and a secret sorrow seemed to be grinding in his insides. His genius is not publicity, but putting two days' work into one—and formulation. That is to say, showing others how to do it.

Talking on that line he puts it so alluringly that he makes zealots.

The Washington correspondents take him seriously and like to listen to him because he stimulates them and opens up vistas of news.

Distinctly it is not because "he has a personality." He hasn't. Besides they get fed up with "personalities."

The fact is that the man in the cabinet who has done the most dramatic civilian work in the world of our time is the least dramatic figure in the cabinet.

He does not prate. He formulates.

He is quiet-voiced, unemotional, but an emotionalizer.

When you come to think of it, he is one of the two members in the cabinet whose names were ever on everybody's lips—Hughes the candidate for president and Hoover, the baby feeder.

Also I define the four outstanding members of the council of ten with whom we have already visited in this series, thus: Hays, organizer; Weeks, director; Mellon, creator; Hoover, formulator and constructor.

He is the first secretary of commerce that ever drew a crowd of correspondents to his conferences. They came today by tens and by the score, until the room was packed with pressmen, cigar smoke, and ideas. Redfield used to draw five or six hearers; Alexander, fewer.

Just now Hoover's mind is full of the thought, as he puts it, that "this administration can and perhaps will make its mark on history by the reorganization of business."

If it does not, he sees penalties in store for the nation.

Deplores Coal Labor Waste.

He says that "probably the most evident tendency coming out of the European war has been what you might call the nationalization of trade," and he adds that we must shape ourselves to such new tendencies and get to the bottom of the fundamentals from which they spring.

If we do not, he believes our standard of living has got to sink to the European standard.

He put that very bluntly.

He says that in the bituminous coal field the average working year is 174 days.

That to him is a fearful thing because a result of such intermittency is that such an interest as the bituminous coal mines has a complement of labor that could, if not intermittently employed, produce the whole annual coal output of the country.

Biggest Job Starts Goods Moving.

When I asked him what is the biggest problem this country confronts, he replied:

"The most important problem this country has is that it is just jam full of goods that aren't moving. The answer is to start them."

The crying needs of our economic life are in his opinion "leeway and mobility."

A book could be written on those two words as he visions them.

I loved to listen to Hoover thinking constructively.

When I got home I found that the women want to hear about him, too, for my general director asked the first thing, "What is he like?"

"Nice, simple, low voiced, direct, good humored, utterly unspoiled, and very wise and fundamental," said I. They tell me here that I might know him ever so long and not have reason to change a word of that offhand estimate.

Dr. Pinkston's Corn and Callous Remover will stop that awful pain in hard corns on top of toes, soft corns between toes, callouses on bottom of feet and on bunions, and will remove them by the roots without pain; no chance for infection. Most all painful corns and callouses have pus cavities in them, and my preparation will remove them both by the roots.

My bunion reducer stops the pain at once, removes the soreness, swelling and inflammation. It will reduce an old bunion ½ to ¾ its size, and will cure a bunion that is just starting. It penetrates to the bone and softens up the chalk deposit and absorbs it. This same preparation will stop the pain in nephritis, rheumatism, varicose veins, cramps in the feet and legs; it's the most wonderful pain killer known to science.

My antiseptic foot powder will stop that excessive perspiration of the feet, burning sensation, foul odor, cracking of the skin between the toes, that parboiled appearance, and removes all soreness and discomfort. These preparations are guaranteed to do what I claim for them, or money refunded.

WORK, AND ENJOY THE WORLD

We are in a troubled epoch. It promises rapid change. "Great issues, good or bad for all mankind," must be decided.

We need the guidance of trained minds. Yet, over two years after the great war, need we sit idly among the ruins?

The greatest loss of the war is the men it killed. That we can neither replace nor measure. The reconstruction of the world will be slow, but it will come.

Business today may be a quivering body, the prey of disease, anemic, but all it needs is a vital serum. Its sure cure is work.

The war was worth while. By equality of sacrifice it saved the world for equality of living. Peace is worth while, but only by work.

This country, its government, should be run for the good citizens who do hard and regular service, the backbone of the electorate, those who work and yet have time to enjoy the world.

Enjoyment without work is what? Ask your conscience.

ROAD CONTRACTS BOOSTED TO AID JOBLESS ARMY

$490,000 of Proposed Work Goes to Labor.

BY OSCAR E. HEWITT.

County commissioners favoring road construction predicted yesterday that the board will award contracts for 19.3 miles at an estimated aggregate cost of $[illegible], tomorrow.

"Of that total about $490,000 will be given to labor," commented President Ryan. "We will not only get more needed roads, but we will go that far toward relieving the growing unemployment.

"True, $490,000 for labor is only a drop, but it is a beginning. If the county proceeds, others will start. I think the price is reasonable under present conditions, and when the roads are finished we will have valuable assets for Chicago and its metropolitan area."

McKinlay to Fight Contracts.

Commissioner McKinlay said that he will never vote for roads at an average cost of $42,283 a mile and insisted the contracts will not be awarded.

"The taxpayers voted a bond issue of $[illegible],000,000 for roads in Cook county," he said. That was a year ago last fall, and it was then figured that the $[illegible],000,000 would build 165 miles at the then estimated cost of $31,000 a mile. If the roads are built at present prices more than 40 of the 165 miles of promised roads cannot be constructed."

In answer to that view came from Commissioner Busse. He said: "That means no section of the county should have needed roads unless 165 miles are built. No one has appeared to protest against the building of roads now at present prices, but many have asked that the construction program proceed. If we do, getting the best price and best construction obtainable, we will fall short of the 165 miles.

"When the money is all spent, I firmly believe the people will not only approve of what we have done, but willingly vote another bond issue for still more roads. If we decide not to proceed, I want the highway department abolished, because I am opposed to using up the $3,000,000 bond issue in salaries.

How Prices Have Jumped.

Superintendent of Highways Quinlan has prepared data showing that the price of cement was $1.65 a barrel in 1916 and $2.29 now, that stone was $1.50 in 1916 and $2.55 now, that labor was 25 cents in 1916 and $1 an hour now, and that teams were 60 cents and $1.50 an hour now.

He also reckoned that a cost of $42,283 a mile for concrete highways means $7,000 to labor, $12,000 for materials, $4,000 for freight and $7,000 for overhead expense and profit.

PLOW COMPANY SLASHES PRICES OF FARM TOOLS

Farm implement prices are now on the slides as a move to help readjust the cost of production problem of the farmers, whose products have dropped to a lower price level than has any other commodity group.

A cut of approximately 15 per cent in all products of the J. I. Case Plow Works company, effective immediately, was announced yesterday by H. M. Wallis, president of the company. The reduction will affect tractors, power farming implements, and tillage tools of all kinds. The company is among the first of the large concerns to announce a price cut in its complete line and it is the second cut since last fall. "The reduction," said Mr. Wallis, "is not based on present production costs of farm implements, but it is made to meet the popular demand of the farmer and to be helpful in the readjustment of business."

COUNTIES MAY COMPETE FOR ROAD BUILDING

New Suggestion by Governor Expected.

BY E. O. PHILLIPS.

Springfield, Ill., March 12.—[Special.]—The policy that Gov. Small and the state administration is to adopt on the roadbuilding proposition is to be disclosed to the legislature the coming week, according to the present understanding. This was intimated by Representative Holaday, chairman of the house steering committee.

Representative Holaday expects to introduce Tuesday a bill to permit counties to become bidders against private contractors under the $60,000,000 bond issue bill, not only for building roads within the county that makes the bid, but in any other county.

Vermilion County's Offer.

Vermilion county, Representative Holaday's home, already has made a proposition to build all the state roads within the county at a flat cost of $30,000 per mile. This is $7,000 a mile lower than the lowest bids submitted to the state at the recent bidding, and thrown out. Vermilion county also offers to complete the state road system within Champaign county, lying between Danville and Champaign.

The Holaday bill will be for the purpose of authorizing counties to become bidders, and to permit the department of public works to make contracts with counties.

Would Reduce Contractors' Profits.

It is urged that a county, such as Vermilion, already has plenty of roadbuilding machinery, and that it would enter the general business of roadbuilding upon the basis of performing the work at cost, which means that part of the percentage of contractors' profit that figures in other bids would be eliminated.

Whether this is the initial step in the state-wide plan Gov. Small is to announce remains to be demonstrated. The prevailing belief is that the governor will urge that the state itself proceed to build the state system, and ask for sufficient funds to purchase the machinery, organize a construction department within the department of public works, and go to it.

Unions Ask Professional Men's Fees Be Reduced

St. Joseph, Mo., March 12.—Representatives of trades unions here today appealed to the Commerce club to use its influence to have physicians, lawyers, and other professional men reduce their fees.

CRANE OFFERS BIG REWARD FOR GIRL'S ASSAILANT

In an effort to prove false the charge he attacked Louise Sturm, a 15 year old girl, in the shadow of the Grant monument in Lincoln park last January, Herbert P. Crane Jr. yesterday offered a reward of $2,000 for first information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person perpetrating the crime.

The reward is offered through Crane's attorneys, Bangs, Frankhauser & Colby, in advertisements placed in today's newspapers. In addition, 3,000 circulars are to be distributed.

The offer reads: "I, Herbert Prentice Crane Jr., being publicly charged with having assaulted Louise Sturm, a girl alleged to be under 15 years of age, at Lincoln park, just west of the Grant monument, on Jan. 26, 1921, in the afternoon at about 5:30 o'clock, and being innocent of the charge, do hereby offer the sum of $2,000 for first information leading to the arrest and conviction of the party convicted of the crime.

"HERBERT PRENTICE CRANE JR.,
"Address me care of my attorneys, Bangs, Frankhauser & Colby, First National Bank building."

CITY HALL SLATES LEADING JUDGES FOR THE DISCARD

Rival Camp Plans to Fight Bench Raid.

Retirement of several judges who have served for years in the Circuit court became a probability yesterday when further gains were made by the Thompson-Lundin forces in their fight to control the Republican judiciary convention. Among the judges who expect to be refused renominations in case the city hall forces the rule are such old timers as Jesse A. Baldwin, Jesse Holdom, Kickham Scanlan, Oscar M. Torrison, and Charles M. Thomson.

[STEFFENS Photo.]

To this list may be added, Hugo M. Friend, Frederic R. De Young, Farlin H. Ball, and Charles A. Williams, all of whom were appointed to their places by Gov. Lowden.

The decision of Judge De Young that Edward R. Litsinger forfeited his rights as Fifth ward committeeman by moving to the Twenty-first ward was the principal gain of the Thompson-Lundin forces yesterday. The decision, if it stands, takes several voters from the Deneen-Brundage forces in the judicial convention when it is held. This loss, together with that of the country votes controlled by George W. Paullin, is believed by the city hall men to assure their control of the judiciary convention. The city hall claims that another Deneen-Brundage committeeman is about to join it.

Brundage-Deneen leaders, however, dispute these claims of the Thompson-Lundin men. They met in Mr. Brundage's office and decided to fight for time. Accordingly, Homer K. Galpin, chairman of the old Republican county committee, issued a call for a judicial convention on Monday, April 25. This date was fixed in the hope that before that time a decision might be obtained to reverse recent decisions by Judge De Young, all of which have been legal victories for the Thompson forces.

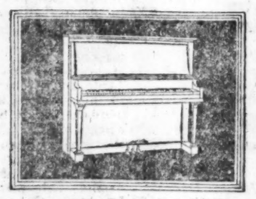
CABLE

Three Typical Cable Values

Baby Grand—$750
This charming small grand is a timely example of Cable value giving. It possesses the singing tone quality of instruments priced very much higher. Finished in the new English brown shade of mahogany.

Player Piano—$485
Here is a player that has been sold during the past twelve months from $600 to $650 in all parts of the country. It is simply, yet substantially built. Can be played by hand as a straight piano, or enjoyed by all in the family as an easy to play player. Here is an unusual value.



Upright Piano—$385
The product of a great quality factory. We put our big stocks of raw material and our purchasing power behind it, concentrating on one type, one size, one style, shipped in carload lots at the old freight rate; therefore, this last year's price.

NO matter how scarce or high priced pianos may be elsewhere, you will find these special offers of ours the very utmost in value giving.

In the first place, our selling plan is right. We are manufacturers as well as retailers, and even when we offer merchandise of other makes, rest assured our guarantee of quality is behind the goods, and in addition, our guarantee of value.

Take, for instance, either the grand or the player at the special price quoted. Each is made in a plant which concentrates on just one piano—the manufacture of that particular instrument, and no other, in but one size, one style, one type.

Few manufacturers have ever reached the point to enable them to go to their public with such high quality at such exceptionally low prices.

It is this selling plan of ours that puts the fullest measure of elasticity into your dollar. And finally, we offer you

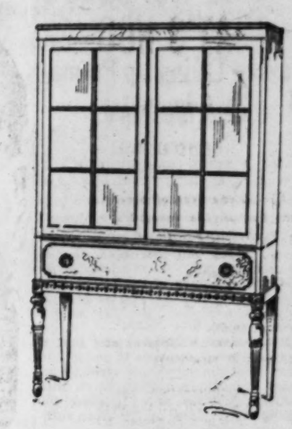
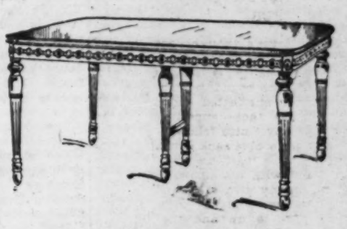
Scholle's Semi-Annual Sale of Good Furniture



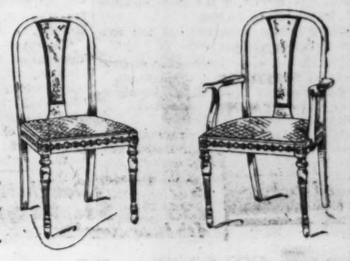
Louis XVI. Walnut Dining Room Suite: Sideboard, Extension Table, Serving Table, 5 Chairs and 1 Arm Chair.

	Regular Price	Sale Price
9 Pieces	$1,300.00	$650.00
China Cabinet to match.	260.00	125.00



YOU should visit this store before the close of this semi-annual sale; even though you do not need furniture, the bargains offered and the great variety of new things will afford entertainment which is well worth the time.

We enjoy having people take us at our word, and come here to see the pretty things, whether they expect to buy or not; that is really the way to prepare to buy intelligently and satisfactorily.



The store that presses a sale on the visitor is pretty apt to be one whose merchandise cannot stand up under comparisons, and so the sale must be made before the customer has an opportunity to learn how much better she can do elsewhere.

We guarantee satisfaction; not an uncommon thing to have promised you; but our making good on this guarantee is so uncommon in the cheerful way it is done, and the freedom from question or argument, that the Scholle guarantee has come to mean something in a class by itself.

Therefore, you can see that it is part of that plan to ask you to come here to post yourself, and to make comparisons of goods and prices, to help towards making sure of your complete satisfaction when you do buy.

Rugs

You can buy any rug you may want from our rug department; we have a wonderfully selected stock of fine domestic and oriental rugs.

MONDELL THINKS EARLY TARIFF BILL HOPELESS

Favors Taking Up Permanent Measure.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., March 12.—[Special.]—After a conference with President Harding Representative Mondell of Wyoming, Republican leader of the house, tonight expressed opposition to a temporary tariff bill as advocated by Chairman Fordney of the house ways and means committee, and by Senator Penrose, chairman of the senate finance committee.

Representative Mondell said that if any emergency measure is possible in advance of the permanent tariff he believed it should be confined to an anti-dumping provision and a provision for basing import dutes on American rather than foreign values.

"If it were possible to take the Payne-Aldrich bill and after changing it somewhat pass it speedily through the house and senate so it would be on the statute books in six weeks or two months after we met I think it might perhaps be wise to do it," said Representative Mondell. "But I have grave doubts as to whether this can be done. I am not at all certain that such a bill thus introduced would not, when it reached the senate, be opened up for a great variety of amendments delayed, so that instead of securing what is suggested—prompt action on a temporary bill—we might find congress considering for months a measure, which, starting as a temporary one, would finally come to be considered as a permanent measure and entirely made over."

MILLER MADE CUSTODIAN OF ALIEN PROPERTY

Washington, D. C., March 12.—[Special.]—Thomas W. Miller of Delaware, former member of congress and eastern campaign manager for Gen. Leonard Wood during the Republican preconvention period, was named by President Harding today to be alien property custodian, to succeed Francis P. Garvan. Mr. Miller retired from congress in 1917 and enlisted as a private of infantry. He served twelve months overseas, was raised to lieutenant colonel, and received two citations. He is one of the incorporators of the American Legion.

Other nominations sent to the senate by the president were:

Fourth assistant postmaster general—Harry Hilton Billany of Maryland.

Commissioner general of immigration—William Walter Husband, St. Johnsbury, Vt.

Collector of internal revenue for Iowa—Lars Bladine, Cedar Falls, Ia.

United States attorney, western district of Missouri—Charles C. Madison, Kansas City.

Solicitor bureau of internal revenue—Carl A. Mapes, Michigan, renominated.

The senate today confirmed the nominations of Mark W. Potter, New York, for member of the interstate commerce commission, and Thomas O. Marvin of Massachusetts, for member of the tariff board.

Harvey to London

Editor's Friends Say He Has Accepted Ambassadorship to Great Britain.

GEORGE HARVEY.

[Photo Copyright: Underwood & Underwood.]

Washington, D. C., March 12.—George Harvey, editor of Harvey's Weekly and the North American Review, is understood to have been definitely selected by President Harding as ambassador to London to succeed John W. Davis, who now is returning home. The nomination may go to the senate before the present extraordinary session ends.

The understanding is that all the Republican members as well as the Democratic members now in Washington have expressed approval. In the 1916 elections Col. Harvey supported Charles Evans Hughes, and last year he supported Mr. Harding.

Before turning to the magazine field he had had a long career as a newspaper man. He was born in Peacham, Vermont, fifty-seven years ago, and was educated at Peacham academy.

BENSON WANTS FREE TOLLS FOR PANAMA CANAL

Washington, D. C., March 12.—[Special.]—Following closely upon instructions from President Harding to continue to exercise the functions of chairman of the shipping board pending the appointment of new members, Admiral Benson today announced his support of free tolls for coastwise vessels through the Panama canal and for the abrogation of commercial treaties.

The stand of Admiral Benson caused speculation as to whether President Harding will appoint him as one of the minority members of the shipping board. It is considered a certainty that Admiral Benson will not be named as chairman, but he might be appointed as one of the three Democratic members.

Daugherty Quashes 400 Profiteering Indictments

Washington, D. C., March 12.—[Special.]—After study of the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States holding the anti-profiteering provision of the Lever act unconstitutional, Attorney General Daugherty today instructed all United States attorneys to dismiss prosecutions pending in their districts under that provision of the act. This order affects about 400 indictments, 150 charging profiteering in coal and 350 charging profiteering in food.

FLAT TAX ON CORPORATIONS SEEMS LIKELY

Excess Profits Levy to Be Replaced.

ARTICLE NO. 7.

Washington, D. C., March 12.—[Special.]—Sentiment among many Republican members of congress inclines toward an increased flat tax on corporation earnings as a partial substitute for the excess profits tax.

Whether this course should be followed or a tax imposed on undistributed earnings of corporations is one of the most perplexing problems confronting the ways and means committee.

That the excess profits tax must be replaced by some form of corporation profits tax is contended in order that corporations may be on the same relative basis as individuals and partnerships, so far as taxation is concerned.

Subject to Normal Tax Only.

If the excess profits tax were repealed and no new corporation profits tax added, earnings of corporations would be subject only to the normal tax of 10 per cent. Individuals and partnerships pay not only normal taxes, but surtaxes on all net income whether it has been spent, saved, or retained in the business.

Where stockholders of corporations pay surtaxes on profits which are distributed as dividends no surtaxes are paid on the profits not distributed. It is urged, therefore, that when the excess profits tax is repealed, some equivalent or compensatory tax should be placed on the corporation in lieu of the surtaxes paid by other taxpayers.

Unless this is done, it is declared that a heavy premium would be given to the corporation.

Tentative Plan Ready.

Former Secretary of the Treasury Houston and Dr. Thomas S. Adams, chairman of the advisory tax board of the treasury department, have been inclined toward a tax on undistributed earnings of corporations as a partial substitute for the excess profit tax.

Representative Fordney, chairman of the house ways and means committee, leans toward an increased flat tax on corporation earnings. Dr. Adams, in discussing the relative advantages of the two schemes, admits that both have merits and both have real objections.

A bill recently introduced by Representative Longworth, a Republican member of the ways and means committee, repeals the excess profits tax and imposes an additional flat tax of 5 per cent on top of the present 10 per cent normal tax. Chairman Fordney also favors action of this sort.

What Estimates Show.

The amount estimated to be collected during the coming year from the 10 per cent tax on corporation incomes is $600,000,000. If the corporation tax were increased to 12 per cent it would produce $118,800,000 additional.

An increase to 15 per cent would produce about $300,000,000 additional. An increase to 16 per cent would produce $465,000,000 additional, which would more than make up for the loss of $450,000,000 revenue through the repeal of the excess profits tax.

The Longworth bill, besides an additional 5 per cent tax, repeals the present $2,000 exemption on corporation earnings. Elimination of this exemption would produce $58,000,000 additional.

Might Prefer Flat Tax.

With the exception of public service corporations, it is expected that most corporations would much prefer a flat tax of 15 per cent to the present 10 per cent normal tax plus the excess profits tax. Public service corporations at present, as a general rule, have failed to make enough money to be subject to the excess profits tax, and have paid only the normal tax. By an increase of the normal tax to 15 per cent a serious hardship would be imposed upon this class of corporations, which are unable to increase their charges except by permission of public service commissions.

Many public service corporations, it is recognized, would be unable to obtain any further increase in charges, and the additional tax burden might bankrupt them. To meet this situation it has been proposed that public service corporations remain under the 10 per cent tax, and be exempt from any additional tax that may be imposed.

ONCE IN UNIFORM, GEN. SAWYER WILL MOBILIZE NEWSMEN

Washington, D. C., March 12.—[Special.]—One of the prominent figures about the White House today was Brig. Gen. C. E. Sawyer, who has been named as private physician to the president and chargé d'affaires of the general welfare work of the government.

Gen. Sawyer was asked when he would appear in his uniform.

"I'm going to get a new uniform next week," he said. "A lot of the newspaper men have been kidding me about it, but I'm going to get one all right. And as soon as I get it I'm going to go down on the White House lot and mobilize those newspaper men and order them about."

HARDING TO HAVE A 'PAULINE'—GIFT OF CHICAGO MAN

Washington, D. C., March 12.—[Special.]—W. A. Brewerton of Chicago and Libertyville, Ill., today offered to present President Harding with a "petful" Jersey cow, George Christian, secretary to the president, says that the offer may be accepted if a place can be found to keep the animal.

Mr. Brewerton in a letter to the president said:

"It is my hob'by to raise good Jersey cows and to place them where they will be most appreciated. I beg of you that you do me the honor to receive within the next few weeks such an animal.

"I take it you are familiar with the superior quality of the product of the Jersey cow and therefore will not dwell on the matter of the personality which these animals possess and which my own daughter refers to as 'petful.'"

Mr. Brewerton is president of the Sangamon County Mining company, the Chicago office of which is in the Marquette building.

DRESSES

WHICH WE HOPE THIS

SALE WILL SELL AT ONCE

NOT ONE MORE THAN THIRTY DAYS OLD

Attention, Please! Women of Chicago: March 13, 1921.

On January 1st, 1921, our Dress Stock had been turned so completely by the Clearance Sales at that time that we had practiaclly not one old dress in the house!

How different the situation on March 1st! (Proving the instability of the present market conditions.)

We find ourselves at the present moment with a tremendous new stock of Spring Dresses, purchased at what we thought most opportune prices, and with such assortments as we have never had before!

THINK! WITHIN THIRTY DAYS THIS IS WHAT REALLY HAS HAPPENED!

Markets have again fallen, the labor scale has been greatly reduced; silks have not recovered from their first blows. Are we, then, to be caught napping in the face of such a crisis? Absolutely NOT!

We feel equal to the emergency and are therefore taking you, the public, into our confidence, and ask you to believe us when we tell you that this great dress stock of ours has been reduced to such a level that will overcome immediately this extraordinary drop in prices.

We shall not, therefore, lose command of the acknowledgment and esteem of the Chicago women as being the lowest priced Specialty Store for garments of the better kind.

CITY'S EXPENSES MAY FORCE TAX RATE UP TO $2.15

Officials Discuss Boost at Conference.

With the $8,000,000 bond issue to ward off the 1920 deficit within its grasp, the city administration began considering plans yesterday to increase revenue to meet an even larger deficit this year.

Pending action by the legislature to increase municipal revenues, the council finance committee has stopped all work on the 1921 budget. The city is going ahead on the financial basis of 1920. Appropriation for 1921 on the basis of the needs of the city, as estimated by the finance committee, would mean a deficit of about $11,000,000.

Tax Rate Boost Looms Up.

Possibility of increase in the tax rate for Chicago loomed large at a conference in Corporation Counsel Ettelson's office yesterday. Those present were Mr. Ettelson, Deputy Controller Gosslin, Assistant Corporation Counsel Hornstein, Ald. Richert, chairman of the finance committee, and Speaker Dahlberg of the house of representatives.

Mayor Thompson's oft repeated advice that "teeth be put in the tax laws" by a provision making the failure to file an accurate schedule of both real and personal property punishable by imprisonment was discussed. There is small possibility of more revenue from that source, however, before 1923.

Rate May Go to $2.15.

The conferees were thus brought face to face with the apparent necessity of an increase in the tax rate of from 25 to 50 per cent, or a proportionate reduction in salaries, which would probably take the form of reductions in man power.

One of the conferees declared that, unless revenue from some other source is provided the present city rate of $1.43 for general corporate purposes will have to be increased at least to $1.75 and perhaps to $2.15 if the city is to continue functioning on the present basis.

'MYSTERY MAN' IN $120,000 WHISKY DEAL IS ELUSIVE

Federal agents had received no word late last night concerning the success of eastern operatives in locating the mysterious "W. S. Greenbaum," who shipped $120,000 worth of whisky from Wilkesbarre, Pa., to Chicago. The search began Friday night following seizure of the liquor. The federal agents believe that with Greenbaum's arrest a new booze ring, greater even than that credited to Michael Heitler, will be uncovered.

George and Abe Marco, consignees of the liquor, persist in denying knowledge of Greenbaum's identity. Both have been released on bonds of $2,500 each.

"We believe a ring of saloonkeepers was in on this deal, just as in the Heitler case," said Joseph Callahan, chief of the federal agents. "Every effort will be made to get at this ring."

Meadowlarks Do Not Kill Grapes, Expert Says

Evidence that two meadow larks were spooned on a grape arbor vine in California is not sufficient proof to exterminate the species as killers of the grape crop, T. Gilbert Pearson, president of the National Association of Audubon Societies, told the members of the local societies at a meeting at the Hotel Sherman yesterday. Pelicans, he said, were unjustly accused of eating food fish in the Gulf of Mexico. As for the American eagles, he said that they were unjustly accused of eating food fish and song birds. The bounty on them, he said, had caused 15,000 to be slain.

WAR DIVORCE

MRS. BERTHA H. SCHOENWALD.

EXHIBIT MAY NET BOOSTERS, NURSE SCHOOL $1,000,000

$224,350 Space Sold for Pageant.

Promoters of the Pageant of Progress, the boost Chicago exposition to be held on the Municipal pier this summer, expect to make it the biggest financial success in the history of municipal exhibitions.

Estimates of the most conservative of the big show's backers place the sum which will be drawn from exhibitors and through the gate at $600,000. The more enthusiastic believe there will be not less than 2,000,000 paid admissions, which, with the sale of exhibit space, would bring the total receipts well over the $1,000,000 mark.

Much Space Already Sold.

Already nine of the sixteen sections into which the pier has been divided have been sold. The price per section is $27,150 for 10,860 square feet. The nine sections have brought in $224,350. The sixteen sections, which vary slightly in area, will bring in approximately $400,000 if all are sold.

Plans are being worked out to sell 1,000,000 tickets sold in advance gate fore the pageant opens its doors on July 31, making the income from this source $300,000. The admission at the gate will be 50 cents, and some of the promoters believe $500,000 is a fair estimate from this source.

Other promoters believe that with 1,000,00 0tickets sold in advance gate admissions will fall far short of the million mark, cutting the $500,000 figure to around $100,000.

Rents Pier at $10,000 a Year.

Henry J. Kramer, business manager of the pageant, has rented the pier from the city for five years for $50,000. The rent for this year's pageant will therefore be $10,000. In preparing the pier for the exhibition $100,000 will be spent, according to Health Commissioner Robertson, and a similar sum will go to provide entertainment for the visitors.

Mayor Thompson announced recently that all profits from the pageant will be divided between the Chicago Boosters' Publicity club, Inc., and the health department school of home and public nursing.

WIFE'S PHOTO ON BATTLE VICTIM CAUSES DIVORCE

Marine Searches Fallen Comrade, Then Sues.

Sergt. William G. Schoenwald and George Carliss, marines, fought side by side in many of the big battles of the world war.

Carliss was killed in the battle of Landreville, in which they went "over the top" together. His chum hastily searched his clothing for mementoes. Instead he found a picture of his own wife, Mrs. Bertha H. Schoenwald.

It was mailed to Chicago and yesterday, after viewing it, Judge Lewis granted Schoenwald a divorce.

"My son wrote me that he met other soldiers in France who admitted having taken his wife to cabarets and other places," said George Schoenwald of 1853 Cleveland avenue.

The father was the only member of the family to appear in court. He said his son was still in Germany with the army of occupation. In 1917, when the son was sent to France, Mrs. Schoenwald went to live with her parents-in-law, he said.

"My son gave her his bankbook and everything he had," said the father. "But she went out with other men so much and kept such late hours that we finally had to put her out."

A transcript of the son's testimony, which he signed before a judge advocate in Germany, was read in court.

Maid Leaps 2 Floors in Burglar Scare; Breaks Hip

Frightened because she thought a burglar was trying to get into the house, Elin Nelson, maid in the home of Harry Hillman at 4742 Ingleside avenue, jumped from a second story window last night, striking a concrete pavement and fracturing her right hip. The supposed burglar was Joe Hillman, a brother of Harry, who had come to attend a birthday party and was trying to enter the house with an old key given him by the latter. The house had been burglarized a week ago and a new lock put in.

North Chicago Girl Weds in a College Romance

Kennebunk, Me., March 12.—Joseph Edlin of New Bedford, Mass., son of a wealthy mill owner, and Helen Levinson, daughter of Attorney Solomon Levinson of North Chicago, have been married at Biddeford in a college vacation romance. Edlin is a student at Boston university law school, and the bride is at Smith college. The couple met last summer in Kennebunk. The wedding ceremony took place in an ante-room of the Biddeford courthouse, with the clerks as witnesses.

SOLDIERS WILL BE TAKEN FROM HOME FOR POOR

Service Men, Ill, Rebel at Wound to Pride.

A Tribune reporter has investigated charges that former service men are poorly cared for in hospitals selected by the government. In dealing with agitation for government controlled hospitals, his reports will consider the contention that the three distinct departments now primarily responsible for the condition of the former service man should be consolidated. The first article follows:

Adverse criticism of some hospitals to which the government has sent men who served with the colors for treatment culminated in a definite promise of prompt remedial action yesterday. Former service men now at the Oak Forest tuberculosis sanitarium, which is under the same general supervision as the Cook county infirmary, are soon to be transferred, it was announced.

The announcement followed a conference between Dr. C. H. Lavinder, assistant surgeon general of the United States public health service, and W. R. McCauley, state commander of the American Legion.

Will Transfer Men.

"Mr. MacCauley reported that veterans under treatment at Oak Forest are discontented, and asked that they be removed at once," said Dr. Lavinder last night. "I agreed to have the men transferred as soon as other hospital room can be provided. Mr. McCauley said the Legion would find the required accommodations. I am, of course, glad of this offer of aid.

"I believe that Oak Forest sanitarium, as a hospital, is satisfactory. But reports indicate our men object to the 'poor farm' atmosphere."

WHAT VISITOR FOUND

Of more than 20,000 discharged soldiers now in hospitals throughout the country, very nearly 2,000 are in institutions of this state. Almost three-fourths of the latter are in hospitals in or near Chicago.

The Oak Forest sanitarium ranks as a contract hospital, to which the government has "farmed out" eighty-five former service men for treatment.

The question as to what they were given to eat was the first one put to the men by the reporter. Of eighteen men interviewed, fourteen complained of the food; of the remaining four, one was enthusiastic in praising the fare. Dr. Henry G. Wildman, in charge of the tuberculosis patients, said the food "might be better prepared if we had more modern kitchen equipment."

But, as in the case of criticism made by some visitors, the chief grievance nursed by the Oak Forest men involves not the food, but the fact that they are kept at a poor farm. Euphemists may refer to regular inmates at Oak Forest as county wards or chrges —the former service men think of them as "paupers." Their resentment of the association is so intense as to be largely responsible for the apparent poor morale that prevails.

"Uncle Sam marched me straight from the trenches to a poor farm," one man is reported to have told Mr. McCauley. He died two days later.

Five Hundred Tuberculosis Patients.

The Oak Forest sanitarium is under the same general supervision as the Cook county infirmary. Its buildings, however, are about one-eighth of a mile from the poor farm group. It has about 500 tuberculosis patients. Many of these are county charges; others pay for treatment.

In the principal sanitarium unit there are three buildings. In these are the dining rooms, kitchens, recreation rooms and eight wards. In each of two outlying cottages, twenty beds are occupied by former service men. They have ten beds in a third cottage.

There are three single rooms and six double rooms at the disposal of discharged soldiers. Two very sick men sometimes occupy beds in a small room. It may be their fate to see one another fail day by day. The effect on both has been objected to.

The food for all tuberculosis patients, county charges, paying patients and service men, is prepared in one kitchen. The Tribune reporter ate an evening meal at Oak Forest. Salmon, which the men styled "gold fish," featured the menu. There were bread, butter, and tea or coffee in the general mess, but no milk. Men confined to their rooms, no doubt, had milk.

Special Orders of Food.

Miss Bessie Tygett, in charge of the diet kitchen at Oak Forest, said she prepares as many as fifty special orders at a meal—of eggs, steaks, and the like. Interviews with the men, however, seemed to indicate that not all of them have benefited by this special service.

The food the former service men have is considered better than that served other patients at Oak Forest, although prepared in the same kitchen. Service men eat at one side of a general dining room, county patients on the other. A second dining room is for county patients only.

Dr. Wildman has five doctors assisting him in the tuberculosis division. He said he needs at least four more, but that the pay—$146 a month for juniors and $188 for seniors—is not sufficient to attract them.

Dr. Inas P. Rice represents the public health service, examining all veterans admitted. The Red Cross also has a woman on duty there.

Despite any and all criticism of Oak Forest sanitarium, there is considerable to recommend it. The physical condition of its buildings is good. Much of its equipment—particularly in the X-ray room—is superior to that found in other hospitals. It has a greenhouse that is the pride of patients and officials alike. It is far removed from the tumult and soot of the city. And, finally, attendants, from Supt. Bailey and Dr. Wildman on down, evince a genuine, sympathetic interest in all patients.

AMERICAN LEGION NOTES

Logan Square Patrio post will meet Monday at 8 p. m. at the Logan Square Athletic club, 2615 Milwaukee avenue. Department Commander William R. McCauley will speak on the Illinois membership campaign. At its last meeting this post passed a resolution commending the Americanism of Judge Landis.

There are 6,600 discharge certificates, many with checks attached, and 4,800 Liberty bonds being held at Washington for proper addresses of ex-service men. The lists will be on file at Western Union post, 427 South La Salle street, from 2 to 5 o'clock tomorrow. Ex-service men desiring this or other information are urged to call.

Ravenswood post will meet Tuesday night at Lasker's hall, 4717 Lincoln avenue.

On Tuesday evening, March 15, at 8 o'clock, a rally will be held at the Washington park administration building, Fifty-seventh and Cottage Grove avenue. State Commander William R. McCauley will talk on the accomplishments of the legion and the future program of activity. All legion members are cordially invited.

The schedule of meetings in the service and membership campaign of the American Legion is as follows:

Monday, March 14—Odd Fellows' hall, 4221 Irving Park boulevard, 8:15 p. m. Victory, Keys, Jefferson Park, and Leviathan posts. At Logan Square A. Murphy and Cosmano Enter Not Guilty Plea

"Tim" Murphy and Vicenzo Cosmano were arraigned before Federal Judge Landis yesterday on indictments charging them with participation in the $100,000 Pullman mail robbery. Both men pleaded not guilty. Judge Landis did not set the date for trial. Thomas Schupe, under indictment in connection with the Union station mail theft, in which ten bags of registered mail were seized, also pleaded not guilty.

Bind Watchman, Rob Two Safes, but Get Only $60

Robbers were only 50 per cent efficient in their attempts to loot the safes of two companies early yesterday. They got $40 by blowing open a safe in the office of the A. S. Irvine Coal company, 3618 Cottage Grove avenue, but failed to get $20 from a safe of the Haggard & Marcussen company, 1109 West Thirty-seventh street, after they had overcome and tied Terence O'Neil, 1519 West Fifty-second street, the watchman.

Forty Taken in Week-End Drive Against Gambling

In the state's attorney's "week-end" drive against gambling forty men were arrested in a raid in Pullman yesterday afternoon. A roulette wheel, a handbook, and numbers of pairs of dice were seized as evidence. The raiding party was led by Detective Sergeant Benjamin Newmark, with a house in the rear of a saloon at One Hundred and Nineteenth street and South Western avenue as the objective.

Electricity a source of comfort and convenience in every home.

Suggestions & Data for the HOME ELECTRICAL

"The Home Electrical"

THE ANSWER TO A QUESTION OF VITAL IMPORTANCE TO EVERY HOME OWNER

"CAN I afford electricity?"

The answer is found in "The Home Electrical"—the answer to a question with which every householder is at some time confronted.

"The Home Electrical" is the name of a booklet which should be in every home. In simple language, with beautiful illustrations, this interesting brochure solves the problems of electricity in the home in a way that cannot fail to be a source of inspiration to every householder.

To make homes happier

Prepared by Habirshaw, manufacturers of insulated wires and cables that have been the accepted standard for over thirty years, "The Home Electrical" sets forth in fullest detail suggestions for the manifold economies and conveniences of electricity in the home—suggestions whose value has been pre-determined by years of experience and research at the very heart of the electrical industry.

"The Home Electrical" takes the reader through every room of the house, and with graphic illustrations, floor plans and straightforward descriptive matter, points out approved methods of home electrification—to the end that through mechanical means the heavy burdens of housekeeping may be abolished and home life surrounded by every comfort and convenience.

THE idea that electricity is still a luxury is a fallacy which should be exposed by every progressive American. Volume production of its essential materials has been constantly decreasing their cost, and electricity is no longer a luxury.

For example, Habirshaw insulated wire and cable—everywhere recognized as the standard for all electrical installation—through the economies of volume production and the nation-wide merchandising organization of the Western Electric Company, distributors of quality materials and appliances, is brought to every active market of the United States, at minimum cost to the consumer.

To get "The Home Electrical"

"The Home Electrical" with its sound, practical information will aid you materially in formulating your installation plans with a qualified architect or electrical engineer or contractor.

Any of these men will be glad to furnish you with a copy without cost or obligation, and when the time arrives for actually putting your ideas into effect, technical skill and practical experience, plus their contact with the sources of progressive electrical knowledge, such as the research departments of great organizations like Habirshaw, is a guarantee that your home will have the advantage of the latest developments.

Free: Ask any architect, electrical engineer, contractor, or your central power station for a copy of "The Home Electrical"

OUR front cover this month depicts a blustery, snowy March day in the early history of old Fort Dearborn. The Sentinel at the massive hinged, main gate has halted two itinerant Indians on their shaggy little ponies. The game, slung across the back of the nearer mount, indicates that they have come in the capacity of traders.

The fur trade was the first industry practiced in Chicago, and it extended from the St. Lawrence to the Mackinac and from Mackinac to the gulf of Mexico, with Chicago as the portage place.

POLICEMAN BEAT HER FOR SPITE, WOMAN'S CHARGE

Judge to Investigate Raid on Family Party.

Mrs. Gertrude Pollo, 22, appeared before Judge Oscar Hebel yesterday and accused Sergt. Harry Powers of raiding her home, locking her up in the Hyde Park station "without cause," then beating her "unmercifully."

She declared the alleged act was the result of a family episode which occurred ten days ago. Walking suddenly into her mother's home at 4950 Blackstone avenue, she said, she surprised Sergt. Powers with her mother.

Eyes Discolored.

The young woman's eyes were discolored, her face and lips were swollen, and her arms bandaged. Judge Hebel said that on account of her appearance he would take personal jurisdiction of the case, and continued the hearing until Monday.

Mrs. Pollo is the daughter of Mrs. Edith Dagenhardt. Last week she and her husband, George Pollo, a salesman employed by H. W. Pfaff, a real estate dealer at 11 South La Salle street, moved to the home of friends at 4325 Grand boulevard.

"Friday night we were all sitting in the parlor talking when the door bell rang," said Mrs. Pollo. "We opened the door and Sergt. Powers, with three policemen, told us we were all under arrest.

"At the station I was separated from the others. 'I'll get you,' said Sergt. Powers, and he took me to a room, locked the door, and beat me. The last thing he did was to kick me."

Women Given Blood Tests.

Those arrested with the Pollos were Mr. and Mrs. Reuben M. Sterling and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel S. Sundbury. They charge that they were held at the station that night without booking. Yesterday the women charge they were taken to the Iroquois hospital and given blood tests.

Mrs. Pollo said that when she asked to know the reason for her arrest Sergt. Powers accused her of the theft of $65 from her mother. She, with her husband, were put under bond yesterday for larceny, while the others were charged with disorderly conduct. Sergt. Powers could not be reached at the station yesterday.

HERE'S REAL HEIR TO A SLICE OF PHILLY'S HEART

Chicago Man Traces Line to Fortune.

Although there is still some doubt as to the authenticity of the rapidly growing claims of the Baker family upon the heart of Philadelphia, there is no misgiving in the mind of Myron C. Baker, 900 Belmont avenue, as to his right to benefit should the claims prove valid.

MYRON C. BAKER.

He contends he is the true and legal great-grandson of the man who, it is alleged, owned the $800,000,000 tract of real estate in the Quaker City. However, Mr. Baker is in no hurry. He has not even consulted an attorney as yet.

How He Will Prove Claim.

He sat in his living room yesterday and showed a TRIBUNE reporter how he will prove his claim.

"Now, if you will look on page 516 of this book," he said, taking down a copy of the "Biographical and Genealogical History of Indiana," "you will discover my father's name. It shows that my father's grandfather was Jacob Baker and that he was born in Ludwigsburg, Baden, Germany. He came to America and settled in Pennsylvania.

"It was this Jacob Baker who acquired all that property in Philadelphia. I have many papers and records and documents to prove it. There will be no trouble about connecting up my relationship. There are seventeen true great-grandchildren. We will prove our heirship."

Traced Family Years Ago.

Mr. Baker said that his family several years ago collected a fund and had the entire history of Jacob Baker traced, even to his parents' estate in Germany.

"A cousin of mine has all of those records," said Mr. Baker. "They will be produced."

"If you get the money, what then?"

"Well, I have a long time to live, you know," he said. "I'll take my daughter, Emma, and her husband, and we'll have a little trip. But there's no use worrying about that now. There is no hurry."

"Let's see—what would one-seventeenth of $800,000,000 be?"

"O, never mind—never mind—we've got a lot of time."

QUASHES EDITOR'S WRIT.

Des Moines, Ia., March 12.—The Supreme court has sustained the motion of the attorney general of the state to quash the writ of certiorari sought by Dan Drost, an editor of Rock Island, convicted at Davenport for libel.

ANTI-SALOONISTS DEMAND VETO ON U. S. JOBHOLDERS

'Name Bone Drys,' Notice to Senators.

The Anti-Saloon league announced, through its official organ, the American Issue, yesterday, that it intends to be consulted in the disposition of federal patronage in Illinois.

Appointment of recognized "drys" to all offices which have to do with the enforcement of the prohibition laws in Illinois is its principal demand. The league lists the appointments upon which it intends to pass as follows:

United States marshal.

United States district attorney.

State and regional prohibition directors.

Notice to Senators.

"Among the men prominently mentioned for these offices," the league says through the American Issue, "are some whose appointment would not have the approval of the Anti-Saloon league. Some of them are men whose personal sympathies and official records are absolutely wet.

"The appointment of such men to any of the offices mentioned will be considered as an act inexcusably unfriendly to prohibition on the part of whoever is responsible. Senator Medill McCormick, Senator William B. McKinley, and the Illinois congress, who control the appointment of prohibition enforcement officials in Illinois, will be held responsible by the Anti-Saloon league for the men selected.

"The Anti-Saloon league makes no plea for the appointment of individuals. But the Anti-Saloon league demands that enforcement officials shall meet certain requirements. To be satisfactory they must be true blue, dyed in the wool drys. They must be earnest, active, aggressive, able men in sympathy with the purpose of the work for which they will be responsible."

New Converts Barred.

It is added that no recent converts to the dry cause will be considered fit, and men who are in favor of law enforcement but not in sympathy with prohibition will be rejected.

The league also announces a program of prohibition legislation. One bill is planned to increase the power of the state to obtain injunctions against places which sell liquor and will also regulate the granting of liquor permits by state laws. A proposed appropriation bill will greatly increase the funds placed at the disposal of the attorney general for enforcing the state anti-liquor laws.

PAROLED BEFORE NOON, IS BACK IN CELL BY NIGHT

Paroled from Joliet penitentiary, where he was serving a sentence for robbery, yesterday morning, John Zucka, 18 years old, 1721 West Twenty-first place, was back in jail yesterday afternoon. On his way home from the penitentiary he met some acquaintances, who treated him to "moonshine." When he got home he started a quarrel with his stepmother, and then tried to attack her with a carving knife.

JOHN ZUCKA.

Neighbors, hearing the disturbance, notified the police that a murder had been committed. When the flivver squad arrived John was found chasing his stepmother and seven little brothers and sisters around the apartment with the knife.

HOFMAN TO SPEAK ON POLAND.

Albert Hofman, vice president of the Eureka Thread mills, is expected to arrive in Chicago Monday from Poland, where he went to obtain information on conditions. He will speak at a massmeeting next Sunday afternoon.

DEATH NOTICES

OBITUARY.

A. C. Harding, Brother of City Controller, Dies

Abner Clark Harding, brother of City Coptroller George F. Harding, died at his home, 2725 Prairie avenue, Friday night after a short illness. Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon. Interment will be at Monmouth, Ill. Mr. Harding was the son of George F. and Adelaide M. Harding and was born Dec. 31, 1857. He was a graduate of Harvard, class of 1880. For many years, with the exception of a time during the war when he was with the United States shipping board, he was associated with the controller in the real estate business.

L. C. Doggett, Head of Brokerage Firm, Is Dead

Lewis Chittenden Doggett, president of a brokerage firm in the Monadnock building bearing his name, died yesterday at his home, 5476 Everett avenue. Mr. Doggett, who was born in Chicago 61 years ago, was vice president of the N. K. Fairbank company for a number of years. He

LARGE SELECTION

Lyon & Healy Apartment Grands

Prices Now Reduced

Genuine Apartment Grands all bear the name of Lyon & Healy. If the name "Lyon & Healy" does not appear on the fallboard then it is not a genuine Apartment Grand and does not contain the features which are in such great demand.

The term "Apartment" is our exclusive property. It was originated by us to describe the small Grand Piano which is first in its field—that of the modern small apartment.

The recent reduction in price has in no way impaired the quality. The tone is a delight, while the style and workmanship are freely acknowledged as a standard.

REDUCED PRICES

Pianola Pianos and Aeolian Player Pianos

Prices Now Reduced

Especially attractive are these exceptionally fine pianos. The recent reductions in price on both the Pianola Piano and the Aeolian Player make them values of uncommon interest.

There are a number of very pleasing models in various finishes in our new fourth floor salesroom. Here you may hear many different players side by side. This is a significant feature which should not be overlooked.

All the player roll numbers, Melodee, Q. R. S., and Duo-Art, may be obtained in our greatly enlarged roll department. The largest stock and facilities in Chicago assure you of satisfaction.

Steinway Grands

The Supreme Achievements

How the memory thrills at the music of the Steinway! It stirs thoughts of the long-ago years when the songs of the heart were enriched by its exquisite tones.

Three-score years ago, even as now, the Steinway was the ideal piano. In many a family the Steinway which grandmother played is today a cherished possession—its durability a tribute to superior craftsmanship.

The Duo-Art Reproducing Piano

On our fourth floor we have devoted a suite of rooms exclusively to the Duo-Art Piano. Here this supremely modern instrument is shown in an unequaled manner. No expense has been spared to assist in the visualization of the Duo-Art in the home.

MARCH 13, 1921. A *

"INDICTED PLAYERS INELIGIBLE"—LANDIS

CLASS SHOWN BY ALL-STAR FIVES OF CONFERENCE

Evenly Matched Teams Make Selection Hard.

"BIG TEN" SELECTIONS

FIRST TEAM.

Right forward	Oss, Minnesota
Left forward	Taylor, Wisconsin
Center	Dean, Indiana
Right guard	White, Purdue

SECOND TEAM.

Right forward	Birkhoff, Chicago
Center	Dunne, Michigan
Left guard	Williams, Wisconsin
Right guard	Kaufman, Iowa

THIRD TEAM.

Right forward	Arnston, Minnesota
Left forward	Walquist, Illinois
Center	Halliday, Chicago
Right guard	Vail, Illinois

BY ALBON HOLDEN.

Picking the all-star team of the Big Ten conference for the season of 1921 presents several unusual complications. Never has such a tight race been the result of a year of conference athletics in any sport.

The men chosen are named from a careful study of the ten weeks' season, in which every team was seen in action at least twice, and the opinions of coaches and officials have been considered.

Picking the best two forwards in the conference is a puzzling task, for there were nearly a dozen real stars. Capt. Oss of Minnesota and Capt. Taylor of Wisconsin are named on the first team. Oss is an athlete of rare speed and strength. He is a streak on the floor, a fine passer, and an unsurpassed basket shooter. Taylor, perhaps, lacks his flash, but was the most consistent performing forward in the conference. He scored well above any other man in baskets.

Birkhoff Close Up.

But these two men have only a shade on Birkhoff of Chicago and Capt. Karpus of Michigan. When Birkhoff was at his best he was the marvel of the "Big Ten," but no man could play twelve such games in a season as he did against Illinois in his final game. Karpus is more of Taylor's type, less flashy, but steadier.

For the third team Arntson, the dribbling and long shot phenom of the Minnesota team, and Walquist of Illinois, who was a great floor man, are named. But this does not exhaust the list. Vollmer, Chicago's under-the-basket freak, Miller of Michigan, Knapp of Wisconsin, Eversman of Purdue, Shimek of Iowa, a man with a deadly eye, Blair of Ohio, another fine scorer, and Marxson and Dehority of Indiana were all good. Had Carney of Illinois not been kept out most of the season with a football injury he could not be crowded off the first team.

Poor Year for Centers.

The situation in selecting centers is exactly the opposite. It was a year of poor centers, only a few of whom measured up the average of past seasons. Capt. Dean of Indiana is placed on the first team, and he was easily the best of the lot, a man capable in every department of the game. Dunne of Michigan earns the second team berth because of his terrific fighting ability, and the third team post goes to Halladay of Chicago, a rare long shot, but a poor jumper and erratic floor player.

Mcintosh of Wisconsin finished well and Reitsch of Illinois and Coffing of Purdue were fairly good men.

Fine Guards in Action.

The guard material was less plentiful than the stock of forwards, but contained some fine athletes. Capt. White of Purdue was the class of the conference as a scoring man, running away with the honors in the point total. He was a fine basket maker and the leader in free throws. The retiring Capt. Crisler of Chicago would make a good back guard for his assistant. No man in the conference gets the ball off the backboard on the rebound and starts it down the floor as well as Crisler. He was a star at covering a scoring opponent under the basket.

Williams of Wisconsin is chosen as scoring guard on the second team. As a floor man he was without equal in the "Big Ten," but he could not be compared with White of Purdue in basket making ability. Capt. Kaufman of Iowa was just a shade behind Crisler, a man who was steady on defense and a fine passer in a floor combination.

Third Team Choices.

For the third team, Capt. Vail of Illinois, a good all-around man, and Miller of Purdue are nominated. A tougher job for an opponent than getting past Miller could not be found on a basketball floor, but his lack of other necessary qualifications keeps him on the third team. There were other good guards, Williams and Rea of Michigan being a fine combination, and Enke and Kearney at Minnesota were equally good. McGuire of Chicago, Thomas of Indiana, and McKenzie, Northwestern's best scorer, were prominent forwards.

The Inquiring Reporter

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

Today's Question.

Do you think the trade of Nemo Leibold and John Collins for Harry Hooper will strengthen the White Sox?

Where Asked.

Michigan avenue, between Randolph and the river.

The Answers.

John Muller, 4207 North Winchester avenue, restaurant keeper—I think the White Sox are making a mistake in trading Leibold and Collins for Hooper. Both of these men are good ball players, and Collins is a favorite with White Sox fans. Besides, I understand that Hooper does not want to come to Chicago.

Valentine Engelman, 1520 Laurel avenue, machinist — I am not much of a White Sox fan, as I go to the Cub games, but I hate to see Leibold and Collins leave the Sox team. I think that Hooper will fill the gap that will strengthen the team this season, as he is a great slugger.

James McNair, 3817 South Campbell avenue, clerk—It looks to me as if the White Sox were losing two good men and getting only one good man in return. I think the White Sox manager should have bought this man outright if he wanted him, instead of trading two for one.

William Hamm, 3124 Fifth avenue, student—I think Hooper is the greatest ball player in the country, and that the Sox are lucky to get him. His fielding and hitting cannot be equaled. If he will play for the White Sox as he has in the past it certainly will strengthen that team.

Sylvia Wolf, Bradley hotel, student—I think the trade will strengthen the Sox. Hooper is a general utility man and will be of more value than the other two. The Sox need good batters, and if they are able to pick up another man of Hooper's class they will be all set for the season.

Kramer Is Knocked Down but Comes Back and Wins

Philadelphia, Pa., March 12.—Danny Kramer of Boston defeated Eddie Wimler of Pittsburgh in a fast eight round windup at the National A. C. tonight. Wimler scored a clean knockdown in the first round with a right to the jaw, but Kramer only took the count of three then arose and fought Wimler to a standstill. Wimler was badly punished about the body in the closing rounds.

HOLDOUTS SLOW UP EARLY WORK OF BROOKLYN TEAM

Slab Staff and Morale Robins' Pennant Hope.

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

New Orleans, La., March 12.—[Special.]—It is seldom one finds anything new in the spring training camp of champions. That's exactly the situation in the camp of the Brooklyn club this spring. Not only that, but at present writing one doesn't find all of the old ones on hand, for, as often is the case following the winning of a championship, the big trouble the next year is with holdouts.

WILBERT ROBINSON

When the boys win a pennant, they get money eager, and four of Brooklyn's sturdy players are affected that way.

At present Zack Wheat and Hy Myers, both fine outfielders, and Burleigh Grimes and Sherrod Smith, both sterling pitchers, haven't accepted the terms offered. In fact, all except Myers are far away from the figures offered, and President Ebbets, who is here, states in most positive words that the players never will be offered what they ask. All have been offered increases, according to the boss.

Harder Job Than in 1920.

Thus there is possibility of dissatisfaction on this club this year, and that is always a bad condition. Brooklyn didn't have a big edge on some of the clubs last year. So it looks as if it will be a much tougher job this time.

Just the same, it is a strong club, especially in the pitching department, and one that should be up there, providing the fellows play with the same spirit they showed in 1920.

Col. Robbie is recognized as one of the wise men of baseball. Quite in contrast to John McGraw and Branch Rickey, he is letting his men start their work in an easy going manner. Last year the Robins were in better condition on opening day than any of the major league clubs. He started them in an easy going way that time.

Wise Baseball Heads.

Robinson has something more than twenty-five exhibition games—many against the New York Yankees—to be played before opening day. Robbie says these games should put the fellows in shape.

Then, one should remember that his team is one of veterans, with seven pitchers who have been through the mill.

Robbie doesn't have to send them through grinds of practice. He doesn't have to teach them the tricks of the slab. He doesn't have to drive them to get them into condition. They know how to get ready.

His infielders, outfielders, and catchers, are all men who have been in the game and won pennants. There are only half a dozen or so recruits that must be under his watchful eye.

Pilot Worth Fighting For.

Ever since Robinson took the job in Brooklyn, the morale of the players has been high. He has a way about him of winning the confidence and respect of his men, and with no exceptions they swear by him.

The portly manager doesn't need to make rules because rules aren't needed. His men will battle for him because he is on the square, and kind to them. Brooklyn doesn't look like a club with pennant strength, but what strength it has is sure to be used to the utmost. It didn't look like a team of pennant strength a year ago, but it rode through on its spirit, morale, and pitching.

Based on the figuring that Mr. Grimes and Mr. Smith will decide that they have been offered more money to play ball than they can make in any other walk of life this summer, and for that reason will join the team, Robbie will once more present a great pitching staff. He has lost only Rube Marquard from last year's staff, and in his place he has the more or less famous "Dutch" Ruether.

Isn't This a Sweet Staff?

Ruether, with Grimes, Smith, Jeff Pfeffer, Al Mamaux, Leon Cadore, and Clarence Mitchell, make up the "big seven" of the pitching staff. All are men of such sterling worth that instead of having four regulars to take turns, Col. Robbie has seven if needed.

Then, George Mohart and John Mijus, who spent all of last year pitching for the Brooklyn batting practice, are still on the job and ready to try their stuff on an enemy instead of friends.

Three recruits are in the camp, and one looks like he will stick, perhaps to aid in batting practice, but possibly take an occasional turn in a game. He is Sam Post, 6 feet 2, left handed, and with Portsmouth, Va., last season.

Same Catching Staff.

Pittsburgh drafted him and then asked waivers, and here he is with the Robins. The others are young Phelps, also a left hander, from the semi-pro fields of Buffalo, and young Mr. Schrieber from the Florida league, who was tried out last year.

The catching staff is the same that waded through the work last season, Otto Miller and Krueger doing most of it, with Zack Taylor on hand for bullpen service. Young Mr. Mills, from Atlanta, at present holding out for some unknown reason, may report.

Big Ed Konetchy is likely to remain on first base as long as he continues to clout the ball at a .300 clip. Schmandt is on hand for the job any time the veteran falters. Pete Kilduff, who developed into a regular second

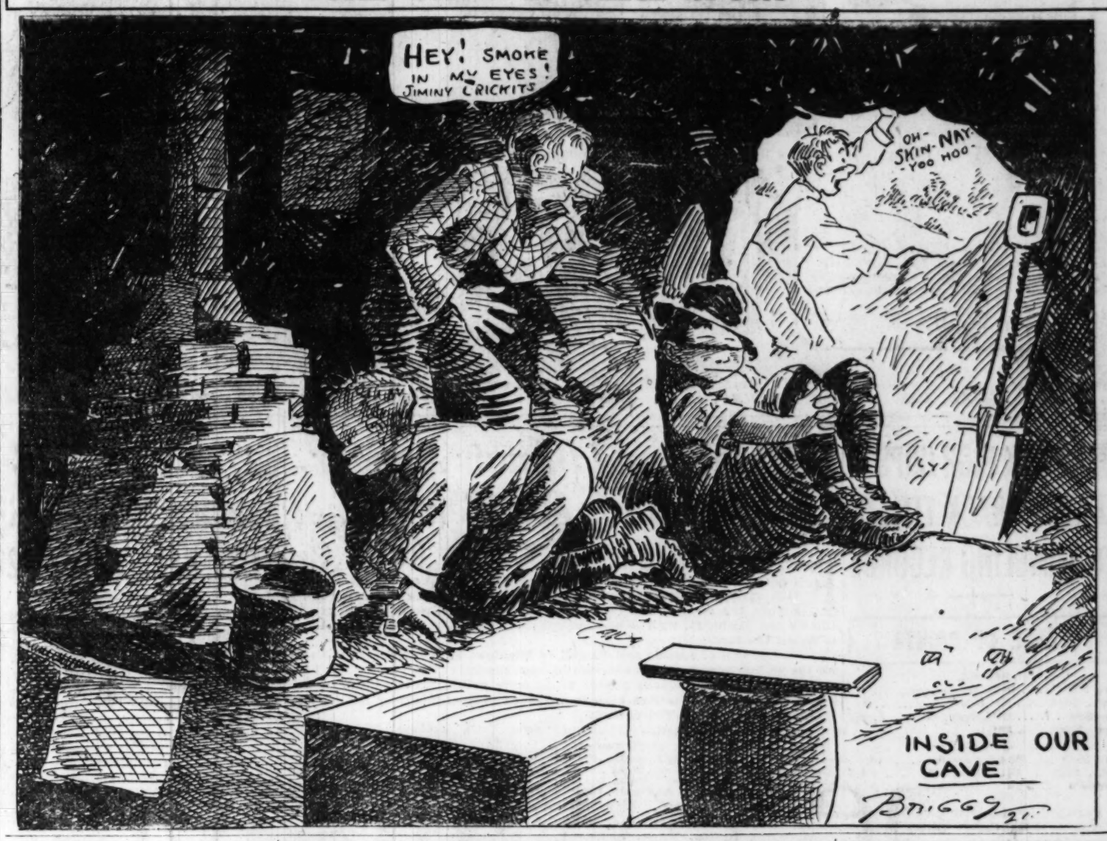
THE DAYS OF REAL SPORT



BOY STAR BEATS 20 CHESS RIVALS IN I. A. C. GAMES

Samuel Rzeschewski of Lodz, Poland, pitted his exceptional 9 year old chess brains against twenty players of half a dozen of Chicago's biggest clubs in a simultaneous exhibition at the Illinois Athletic club last night and won all twenty games.

SAMUEL RZESCHEWSKI.

Miss Alma Wells, the only woman in the twenty to oppose the youthful master, put up a spirited contest of two hours before she was maneuvered to defeat before the brilliancy of the lad. One of the best matches against young Rzeschewski was that of E. T. Gundlach, who lasted about twenty moves.

Greeted with Applause.

As Sammy came down the stairs of the club to the room in which the games were played, he was greeted with applause, which the pale faced lad acknowledged with a nod. He immediately went into the square reserved for him inside the twenty adjoining tables at which his opponents were seated. He allowed a slight delay, as he posed for the motion picture men, and then asked to start play.

One of the principal matches, that against Horace Levison, was won by Rzeschewski, when the Chicago player resigned at the twenty-second move. Following are the moves in this game:

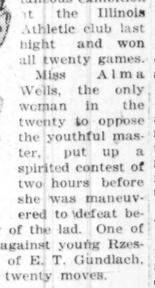
Galleries are Crowded.

A remarkable turnout was attracted by the appearance of the 9 year old boy who had met and defeated experts of the chess board on both sides of the Atlantic. A platform was erected in the center of the club's 60 foot swimming pool, drained for the occasion, and the games were played in the pool, with every move before the eyes of the well dressed throng which jammed the natatorial room and galleries of the club.



MISS ALMA WELLS.

The local players who opposed young Rzeschewski were recruited from the Hamilton club, Chicago Elks, City Press and Engineers club, and the Illinois A. C.

The local players made a good showing against Sammy, compared with the combinations he has faced in other cities of this country. Up to the twelfth round, the Polish boy had not checkmated an opponent.

Competent local observers, in analyzing his play, declared that the European boy showed profound command of the game, and a power of deep combination never before attained by a person of his age.

How Players Lined Up.

Following is the way the local players faced Rzeschewski:

Board.	Player.	Board.	Player.
1	Horace Levison	11	Samuel Spira

The young expert will play another picked squad of local players at 8 o'clock tomorrow night at Sinai Social center.

In the Wake of the News

REGULATING OUR CONDUCT.

THE bill introduced into the Illinois legislature "to prohibit gambling on any intercollegiate affair" is another of those futile efforts to regulate our personal conduct with which the country seems obsessed.

Such a law would be practically impossible of enforcement. No doubt it would prevent open betting, of which there is little. It might frighten a few new students. But the sophisticated collegian, who is an adept at evading annoying restrictions, would find ways to wager sub rosa if he so elected.

The place to stop college betting is at the source, rather than with the ultimate consumer—by sentiment, rather than compulsion. If betting is harmful to college sport—which we think it is when carried to excess—campus sentiment should eradicate it.

Time was when the average citizen, whose respect for city and state laws was shown by their violation with impunity, never monkeyed with Uncle Sam. Then came prohibition. Without arguing the merits of this law, a large part of our population thought its right of personal liberty was being taken away. No measure has ever done so much to weaken respect for federal law.

In our opinion, there is too much regulatory legislation on the statute books of state and nation.

When Susan smiles
My heart backfires and misses,
While wandering hope enraptures and beguiles;
'Tis clear her lips are not alone for kisses
When Susan smiles.

When Susan yawns
Down all the castles tumble,
As sharply clear, the action's meaning dawns;
Then wretchedly for hat and coat I fumble
When Susan yawns.

MARKET LETTER.

"WHEN the sap rises in the trees, buy stocks," is a market adage which leads some observers to predict an April betterment. The flaw in this reasoning is that most of the saps were squeezed out in the December slump and are still running, but not toward the bourse. On the other hand, saps seldom buy until the sap has risen in the trunk (or stock).

Reparations disagreement and the railroad situation were responsible largely for last week's quotations, now down until only about one-third of the January rise remains.

The railroads are in the position of the head of the family who observes a monthly deficit in his household budget and tells the missus expenses must be reduced. She agrees, and tells him to cut out smoking. That's the stand of the railroads' employés.

The bad news is with us and insistent. Any silver linings or any convincing improvement in business could be the signal for a substantial rally.

Poker Variations.

Dear Wake: Seven Card Ikey: Start with man on your left, dealing two cards face down to each player and one card face down in center. Betting starts, after which another card is given remaining players, then betting and raising, and continue with betting and raising until each player has three cards face up. Then another card face down is given remaining victims, and center card, usable in all hands, is faced. The fish holding the best hand gets the tainted dough. SLIM.

HAMILTON CLUB IN SPORT REVIVAL

The Hamilton club, which heretofore confined its activities to swimming, billiards, bowling, and whatever athletic activities pertain to the game of politics, is preparing to enlarge its sphere in athletics. It has an ambition to rank with the Chicago Athletic association, Illinois Athletic club, and the University club.

Plans have been made to install the finest gym in the country and the swimming tank is to be enlarged. The gymnasium will have a running track and the room is so arranged it can be converted into an arena for boxing or wrestling bouts and billiard matches. It will have a seating capacity of 800.

Four additional bowling alleys are planned, and also some squash courts.

JOHNNY WILSON AND O'DOWD TO BOX FOR $60,000

New York, March 12.—[Special.]—A purse of $60,000 was the crystallizing medium which finally induced Johnny Wilson, world's middleweight champion, and Mike O'Dowd of St. Paul, former holder of the title, to affix their signatures to contracts for their fifteen round title battle Thursday night at Madison Square garden.

It is said that Wilson will receive at least $40,000 and O'Dowd in the neighborhood of $20,000.

RUSCH AND DAD CRASH PINS FOR COIN AT A. B. C.

Buffalo, N. Y., March 12.—[Special.]—Chicago's father and son pair—William Rusch, Jr. and Sr.—featured the rolling in the American Bowling congress tournament today, along with Jack Reilly of Chicago, who flailed the timber so hard in doubles and singles events that he landed in sixth place in the all-events.

The Messrs. Rusch, Jr. and Sr., hit off a money count of 1,189 in the doubles. The lad gained 642 in the doubles, came back with 621 in the singles, and, with 540 in his doubles, went well up in the all-events with an 1,803 total.

Many Leaders Toppled.

The day was replete with money counts by bowlers from several cities. New faces appeared in third place in the doubles and third in the singles. Grand Rapids, Mich., taking them both. C. Breuer and H. Hoppe of the Furniture city counted 1,227 in the doubles, while Vic Ottenwess made 659 in the singles.

Jack Reilly of Chicago was close behind with his 655, which was aided materially by a heavy 246 count in his second singles game. Seven Chicago pairs went into the doubles money, and fourteen individuals from the Windy city hit money games. Chicago scores:

Brucks Roll 2,735.

Though the Brucks of Chicago strengthened up tonight by adding Jimmy Blouin as leadoff man, they failed to roll in the form that made them the 1920 world's champions, but they did manage to get within the money by tapping out a 2,735 score. Of 11 Chicago teams rolling, five placed for prize money, the Battistini Bros. leading with 2,824. Others were Metcalfs, 2,750; Birks Beverage, 2,726; Gen. John Swift Post American Legion, 2,638.

RULING BY JUDGE FOLLOWS REPORT OF TRIAL DELAY

Postponement Asked by State and A. L. Attorney

BY I. E. SANBORN.

Whatever action is or is not taken by the state, county or city, regarding the indictments against eight White Sox players "et al.'s," in connection with the world's series scandal of 1919, the athletes involved will have to show Judge K. M. Landis a clean bill before they can play in organized baseball.

JUDGE K. M. LANDIS. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Conflicting reports, emanating yesterday from the state's attorney's office and from local baseball headquarters, were the occasion of action by Judge Landis placing all the implicated ball players on the ineligible list, as a protection to the national pastime.

Delay in Trial of Players.

From the state's attorney's offices came the report that when the baseball scandal cases are called tomorrow before Judge Dever the prosecution will make a motion to have them taken from the call. This would be equivalent, in the present congested state of the criminal court docket, to delaying trial of the indicted ball players until next fall.

States Attorney Crowe later denied this was the purpose of asking for delay. He explained that the assignment of four atorneys to prosecute the baseball cases entailed the allotment of time to become familiar with the evidence, but that it was not the intention to postpone action longer than necessary to insure a successful prosecution.

A. L. Attorney Asks Time.

Former Judge Barrett, who was employed as special counsel for the American league, also is desirous of more time to acquaint himself with the evidence in the case, and planned to ask for a continuance to allow him time to familiarize himself with the case.

Thomas Nash, attorney for several of the indicted players, is said to be pressing for an immediate hearing and tomorrow will insist on a trial or a dismissal of the cases.

This complication put organized baseball in the unenviable light of appearing to seek delay through fear the cases against the indicted players will not hold up in court and that numerous embarrassing complications might result through dismissal of the cases or acquittal of the ball players.

"Players Ineligible"—Landis.

Commissioner Landis, however, cut the gordian knot yesterday with one breath. When told of the possible delay in the prosecution of the scandal cases he said:

"I deeply regret the postponement of these cases. However, baseball is not powerless to protect itself. All of the indicted players have today been placed on the ineligible list."

This means the implicated players will have to show a clean slate to the high commissioner of organized baseball before they can engage in the sport, regardless of what action is or is not taken by the civil courts.

In the absence of President Johnson of the American league, his secretary, William Harridge, said it was his understanding that former Judge Barrett desired to obtain a postponement of the cases only for a fortnight or so until he could familiarize himself with the case.

May Repudiate Confessions.

President Comiskey of the White Sox, also an interested party, is on the way back from California, due to arrive in town some time today.

That the prosecution anticipates possible repudiation of their confessions by Cicotte, Jackson and Williams was indicated by a statement issued by Chief Justice Charles A. McDonald.

"The testimony taken at the grand jury hearing," he said, "would bring about the conviction of every person implicated. There is no doubt about that, but if certain persons repudiated their statements it might cause difficulty. The case is not before me now and the only comment I can make is to say I hope justice will be done speedily."

Kauff Goes to New York for Trial.

Regarding the Benny Kauff case, Commissioner Landis said yesterday that Kauff went to New York with instructions to wait there until the case now pending against him in the Gotham courts was decided. The said case has to do with the possession of an automobile which was alleged to have been stolen.

Kauff entered a general denial to the charges contained in Zimmerman's affidavit implicating him in a plot to throw the final game of the Giants' series here in 1919.

BAN FAVORS ACTION.

Excelsior Springs, Mo., March 12.—Ban Johnson, president of the American league, who is visiting here, said today when he heard the report from Chicago that the state's attorney there would move at the opening of the baseball trial Monday that the case be postponed until next fall, he believed it would be impossible to start the trial of the nine players Monday.

"I am in favor of having the case threshed out immediately but if the gathering of evidence and other court procedure requires more time, I am in favor of putting the case over until fall," said Johnson.

CEDAR RAPIDS, IA., FIVE IS VICTOR IN MIDWAY TOURNEY

BY ALBON HOLDEN.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., was crowned national interscholastic basketball champion of the United States by its victory over West Lafayette, Ind., in the final game of the third annual University of Chicago tournament last night. The Iowa boys piled up an easy win by a 43 to 19 margin.

Crosby High of Waterbury, Conn., which was easily the second best team in the meet, was defeated, 25 to 24 by Cedar Rapids, in a semi-final game in the afternoon, but won third place by defeating Lane Tech. The north siders got the fourth place medals.

Iowans Have Eye for Basket.

The final game was the only lopsided battle of the last two days, with Cedar Rapids having a wild night in basket shooting. The West Lafayette defense collapsed, and Jenson, Swenson, Hines, Yerkes, and Barnes of Cedar Rapids, who seemed to be mostly arms and legs last night, scored twenty-two baskets. Bryan and Lennon were the only two scorers for Lafayette.

In the game for third place, Fiore, the star running guard of Crosby, was knocked down in a collision, and was unconscious for fifteen minutes. After partly recovering, he broke away from doctors who were reviving him and dashed back onto the floor. He recovered later. It was thought his jaw was broken in the fall.

Close Call for Cedar Rapids.

The two best games of the day were the semi-final contests in the afternoon. The champion Cedar Rapids team had a narrow escape, winning from the Waterbury team, 25 to 24, shutting off a wild spurt that threatened to take the title down east. West Lafayette downed Lane, 21 to 19, in another hot conflict. Lineups of night games:

GOPHER TOSSERS WALLOP PURPLE

Minneapolis, Minn., March 12.—[Special.]—The Gopher basketball team closed its season here tonight with an easy victory over Northwestern, 29 to 13, and thereby gained a tie with Illinois for second place in the big ten standing.

The contest was featured by the great sportsmanlike manner in which Neal Arntson, stellar forward, aided Capt. Arnold Oss, his running mate, to take the lead as conference high scorer of field goals for the season. With seven field baskets Oss passed Capt. Taylor of Wisconsin for high scoring honors in the conference. The Minnesota captain has a total of 44 field goals against 41 for Taylor. Lineup:

COCHRAN VICTOR OVER HOREMANS

Detroit, March 12.—Welker Cochran of San Francisco defeated Edouard Horemans, European champion, in a 2,600 point 18.2 balk line billiard match that closed tonight. The final score was, Cochran, 3,600; Horemans, 3,505. Horemans' high run of the evening was 214, while Cochran's best inning netted him 123. During the high run of 214 Horemans went to the rail for the first time at the eighty-ninth shot. In the afternoon Cochran counted 300 while Horemans was making 128.

Michigan and Illinois Appear Best Bets for Big Ten Games

FOLLOWING the announcement of entries for the annual indoor track and field games of the Western Intercollegiate Conference Athletic association at Northwestern university gymnasium on Friday and Saturday nights, the struggle for honors appears to rest between the old rivals, Illinois and Michigan, with Wisconsin and Minnesota having outside chances to defeat the favorites.

Coaches Gill of Illinois and Farrell of Michigan have nominated athletes for the various events who are certain to come through. The Orange and Blue and Maize and Blue squads appear to be more evenly balanced than other teams, whose representatives have been beaten in dual meets by Illinois and Michigan performers. The entries:

BLINKS SETS RECORDS AS MAROON SWIMMERS TRIM BADGERS, 46-22

In a meet featured by two record breaking events, the University of Chicago swimming team defeated the University of Wisconsin, 46 to 22, at Bartlett gym last night. Edward Blinks, Maroon sophomore star, broke the national intercollegiate 220 yard record by one second, swimming the distance in 2:30. He also bettered the conference 100 yard record, doing the century in :56 4-5. Chicago won the water basketball game, 12 to 0. Summaries:

Relay—Won by Chicago [Jenkins, Yegge, Rivers, Blinks]. Time, 1:24 1-5.

Fancy diving—Won by Collins, Wisconsin; Schuh, Chicago, second; Koch, Wisconsin, third.

40 yard swim—Won by Blinks, Chicago; Bach, Wisconsin, second; Davies, Wisconsin, third. Time, :19 3-5.

NOTES OF THE CUE PLAYERS

WITH the amateur balkline and pocket billiard championships out of the way, the last of the national events will be the three cushion championship which will be decided at Detroit the latter part of this month.

Walter Brewer and Arthur Hahn of the Hamilton club will be among the entries, while the Chicago Athletic association will hold an elimination tournament among three of its best players to determine its representative. William B. Huey, who won the title in the tournament held at Chicago last year, will not defend it.

J. Howard Shoemaker, who won the national amateur pocket championship for the eighth successive time last week, is a native of New Jersey, where he was born forty-three years ago. He started playing pocket billiards at 18 years of age, and one of his first opponents was John Gleason, a brother of Kid Gleason of the White Sox.

Gleason at first played 50 balls to 8 by Shoemaker but in a year's time Shoemaker could defeat him on even terms. Shoemaker has met some of the leading professionals and won a number of games from them. Shoemaker represents the Imperial Belting company of Chicago in the east.

Midwest Baseball League Will Meet Here Tomorrow

A meeting of the Midwest league, successor to the Chicago Baseball league, will be held in Hotel LaSalle tomorrow night.

LEAD STILL HELD BY KIECKHEFER IN CUE TOURNEY

STANDING OF PLAYERS

	W.	L.		W.	L.
Kieckhefer	14	1	Steffanson	6	9
Capron	12	3	Dougherty	5	9
Le Gros	12	4	Lundgren	5	10
Kenney	10	4	Jacobs	5	10
Gredick	10	7	Shea-Carlin	4	10
Engel-Singer	8	6	Harris	3	12
Walker	9	7	Moreau	2	13

Though Augie Kieckhefer can no longer boast an unbroken string of victories in the Chicago Billiard league three-cushion race for the Blake trophy, the Recreation left hander, nevertheless continues to lead the field in the city angle competition.

Kieckhefer has won fourteen games and lost one, Joe Capron unexpectedly upsetting the former world's champion at Leflingwell's Wilson avenue room Thursday night. Capron's victory brought the veteran up to within a game of Augie in the standing, but Kieckhefer made short work of Joe in their return battle at the Recreation room Friday evening.

Best Game of Season by Augie.

Augie, on the latter occasion shot the best game of the league season turning the tables on Capron, 60 to 35 in 53 innings. The winner, not satisfied with three runs of 5, ended the contest with an unfinished cluster of 9.

The victory gave Kieckhefer his old lead back and if he retains his present fine form, the other men following in his wake surely have their work cut out to catch him.

Capron also is playing fine billiards and is second in the race with twelve wins in fifteen starts, which is going some.

Double Win by Le Gros.

Charlie Le Gros scored a double victory last week and clings to third position with twelve wins in sixteen times out. Leonard Kenney is fourth and Bert Tredick, the latter sustaining a recent setback, next in order.

FOOTBALL RULES BODY TAKES SLAP AT PRO OFFICIALS

New York, March 12.—Change of the rule governing a safety, and a suggestion bearing on the status of officials who take part in professional games, were made at the annual meeting of the football rules committee, which closed here today.

COACH A. A. STAGG. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Following a safety, the rule was changed to read that the ball shall be put in play on the 30 yard line, instead of the 20 yard line. The alteration was made because of the difficulty of spectators in differentiating between a safety and a touchback.

Would Bar "Pro" Officials.

The committee suggested to the central board of officials, which has charge of selecting officials for games, that after the season of 1921, no college football official who shall officiate in a professional game shall be eligible for any further college football contests.

These were the outstanding changes and recommendations made, although there were a number of minor alterations in the code for the purpose of clarifying the rules for checking certain plays.

It was ruled that in the future the referee shall toss the coin for the call of the opening play of a game and the winning captain, having named his choice of such play, cannot revoke suoh decision.

Legislate Against Clipping.

In an effort to curtail "clipping" or cutting down a player from behind, the committee elaborated by the rule on unnecessary roughness to include running into, diving into, or throwing the body, against, a player obviously out of the play, either before or after the ball is dead.

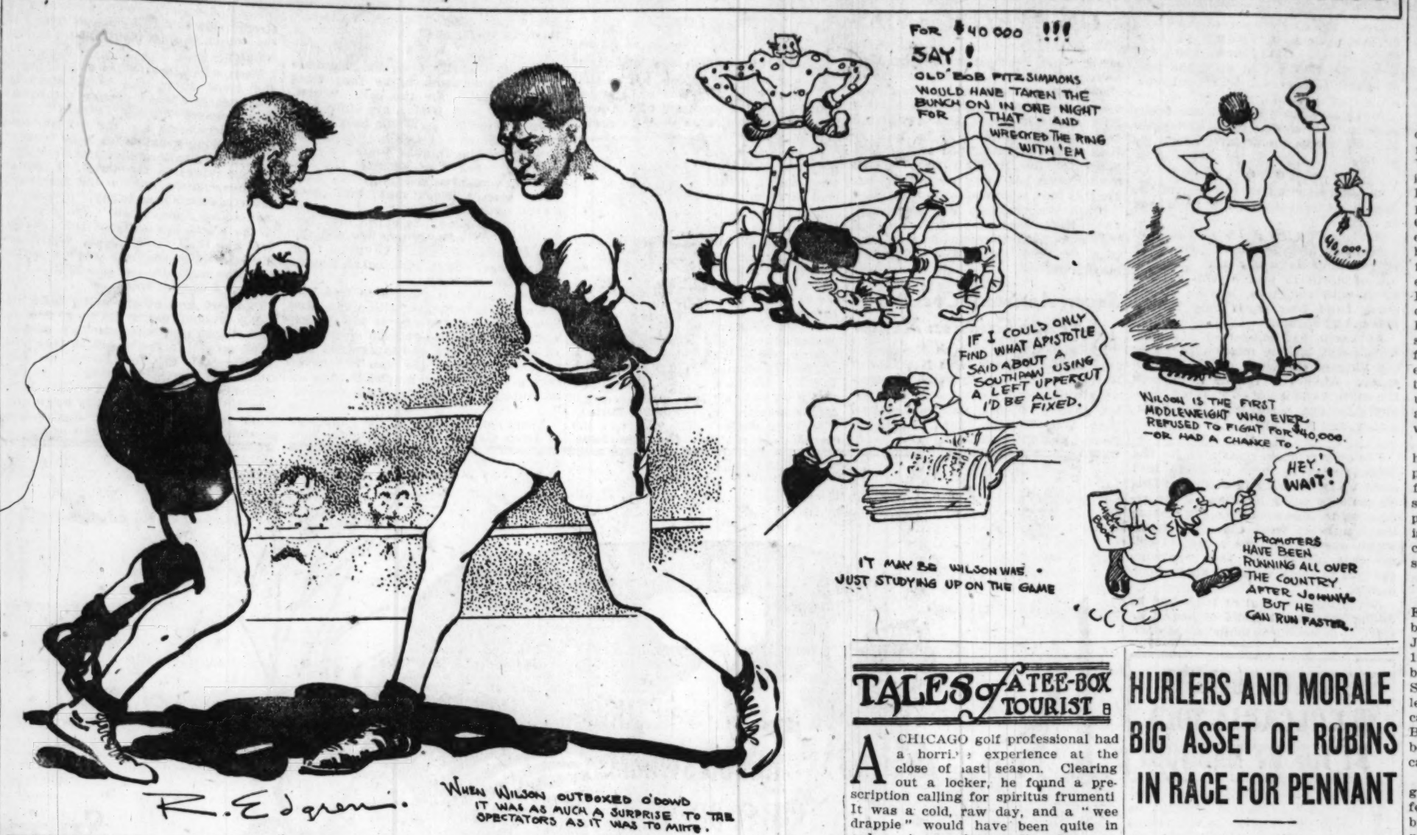
The penalty, which stands as a loss of fifteen yards, was extended to include such loss on the kickoff following a touchdown, in case such score should result in the play in which the penalty was incurred. No objection was raised to such play where the player thrown is taking part in the play.

Oppose Professional Games.

The rules committee went on record as opposing professional football, holding that the game was one which tradition made strictly a college one. The recommendation of the central board of officials suggesting the debarring of officials from college games who officiate at professional contests was the only action approved.

The situation was somewhat similar to that in connection with the numbering of players. The committee has been on record for several years as being in favor of such numbering, but has decided that such a ruling cannot be made mandatory, owing to the unsettled complications which would arise from such a ruling.

IT ISN'T LIKE THE OLDEN DAYS IN THE MIDDLEWEIGHT CLASS



BY ROBERT EDGREN.

WHEN Johnny Wilson won the middleweight championship from Mike O'Dowd at Boston last May—twelve rounds and a referee's decision—it was as much of a surprise to the rest of the world as it was to Mike. Outside of Boston there was a general impression that Wilson was some sprightly newcomer. Nothing of the sort!

This is Wilson's eleventh year in the ring. The general public didn't know much about him simply because he wasn't very much more than a "pork and beaner" until he hopped into fame over Mike O'Dowd's unwilling head.

Wilson's record wasn't bad, yet there was little in it to suggest the coming champion. Born in New York in 1893, he began fighting in 1911. His right name is John Panica and he is of Italian descent. In his first two years among the preliminary boys he won fifteen fights with knockouts, lost one, and fought a number of no-decision affairs. After that for a few years he went along with a large percentage of wins and a few scattered defeats.

Loses Four Bouts in 1916.

In 1916, for instance, he won eight fights and lost four, being beaten by Wild Bill Fleming, Joe White, Tommy Robson and Silent Martin. He lost three fights in '17 and two in '18. In 1919 he won eight [six with knockouts] and fought three draws. He outpointed Leo Houck and Augie Ratner. The rest of the men he fought were little known. He wasn't up among the middleweight contenders.

Since winning the title Wilson has been of a mild and retiring disposition. Tex Rickard some time ago offered him $40,000 to meet Mike O'Dowd, Jeff Smith, Battling Ortega, or Boy McCormick, and Wilson couldn't hear the offer then. Tommy Ryan, Billy Papke, Kid McCoy, Stanley Ketchel or Bob Fitzsimmons—former champions—would have fought heavyweight Jack Dempsey for that money. Fitz would have jumped at a chance to fight all of the four men Rickard named, in one night, for $40,000.

Signs to Fight O'Dowd.

The latest big offer, however, rang too loud in Wilson's ears and he finally has consented to fight O'Dowd on St. Patrick's day in New York. Wilson has agreed to fight for a percentage of the gate on March 17.

Since winning from O'Dowd he has boxed twelve rounds, no decision, with Soldier Bartfield, ten no-decision with Young Fisher, gone ten to no-decision with George Robinson and stopped Steve Choynski and one or two other unknown third raters.

Wilson is a "southpaw" boxer, and like K. O. Brown, Lew Tendler and some of the others affecting the advanced right hand, he can swing a fairly wicked left. He has very light legs, good arms and shoulders, big hands, a short neck and a heavy jaw—all good points in a fighter's makeup. He also has speed, some skill, grit and endurance.

But taking Wilson and all his rivals together, the middleweight class never before was so shy of real championship material as it is today. It's an off season for middleweights. Once the class ranked with the heavyweight in popular favor. No more.

When the original Jack Dempsey was king of the middleweights, he and John L. Sullivan and Jack McAuliffe were known as the "Three American Jacks."

Dempsey Under 150 Pounds.

Dempsey was a corking boxer. Bob Fitzsimmons, who beat him, was even greater. Dempsey would be called a welterweight today, as his best fighting weight was far below 150 pounds. Fitz weighed little over 150 when he beat Dempsey and only 158 when he whipped big Jim Corbett for the heavyweight title. If he were alive and in his prime today there'd be no "contenders" to challenge his right to the middleweight championship.

Tommy Ryan, who took the middleweight title after Fitz drifted into the heavyweight class, was a great boxer, with a crashing knockout punch. Fitzsimmons was a physical freak, with a heavyweight's height, reach, and frame. Ryan was a normal middleweight. After Ryan retired several good middleweights claimed the title.

Joe Thomas, now in business is Boston, was a real champion, and it took Stanley Ketchel and three terrific fights to put him out of it.

Brief Reign by Papke.

Thunderbolt Billy Papke had a brief reign when he knocked out Ketchel and then lost the title back to Ketchel again. Frank Klaus, the rugged iron worker, was a corking middleweight champion while he lasted. George Chip had class until the joke champion, "Al McCoy" Rudolph, a southpaw like Wilson, happened to knock him cold with a wild swinging left uppercut. Rudolph stalled along with the title for years, sticking to safe no-decision bouts, until he grew fat and slow, when Mike O'Dowd bumped him down and out.

Two other middleweights claimed the title from time to time, with fair reason. Mike Gibbons was fast as a streak, a tricky, shifty, hard hitting middleweight and almost unbeatable at his best. He lost interest in the title chase when he found all the other claimants dodging him. Anyway, Mike had saved his money, owned a home in St. Paul, and another on a lake up in the woods, where the fishing is good. He didn't want anything more. After Mike had served through the war as boxing instructor at Camp Dodge he practically retired.

Jeff Smith was a title claimant. He fought two no-decision bouts with Mike Gibbons, beat George Chip, Adrian Hogan, and Bernard in France; Pat Bradley, Jimmy Clabby, and Eddie McGoorty in Australia; Young Ahearn and many other well known middleweights. He lost a twenty round decision to Carpentier in France and won from Les Darcy in Australia in five rounds, afterward losing to Les in two. He lost a fifteen round decision to O'Dowd in New York last November, which was his only reverse in a long time. O'Dowd was the aggressor, but Smith showed superior skill and hitting power and lost through being overcautious.

Boy McCormick is a tall, clever youngster, who has been coming on fast during the last year, boxing very well in the northwest. Battling Ortega is hard nut to crack, and down in Pennsylvania there's a youngster, Al Miller by name, who may fight his way to the top in the middleweight class. Aside from this small list the middleweight bunch looks fairly hopeless. There are no Ketchels in sight just now. But you never can tell when a new one will spring up.

Final Mat Bouts Today in I. G. U. Tournament

National and sectional champions will compete in the finals of the I. G. U. wrestling tournament at the Swedish-American A. A. gymnasium, Barry avenue and North Clark street, today. J. Vorres of the Greek Olympic A. C. and F. Meyer of the Chicago Hebrew institute have qualified for the finals. They were members of the American Olympic team last year. Today's bouts will start at 2:30 o'clock.

Postl Picked to Referee Stecher-Gardini Bout

Charley Postl has been selected to referee the finish match between Joe Stecher and Renato Gardini at the Ashland auditorium Thursday night. The show is being staged by Forges post of the American Legion. A semi-wind-up and two preliminaries will support the main event. R. H. Fitzsimmons is arranging the matches.

TALES of a TEE-BOX TOURIST

A CHICAGO golf professional had a horrible experience at the close of last season. Clearing out a locker, he found a prescription calling for spiritus frumenti. It was a cold, raw day, and a "wee drappie" would have been quite in order. A second inspection, however showed the prescription had been written by a doctor in San José, Cal. His dream of playing the nineteenth hole was nothing but a dream.

HURLERS AND MORALE BIG ASSET OF ROBINS IN RACE FOR PENNANT

sacker last year, is back looking better than ever. Ivan Olson will be at short and Jimmy Johnston at third.

In the outfield Wheat, Myers, and Griffith look like the regulars again. Little Bernie Neis may improve enough in hitting to crowd into a place. Bill Lamar is another capable extra man, and a recruit—young Mr. Hood from the Salt Lake club—is a bright prospect.

It looks like a possible sensational infielder has been found in a young collegian named Keeley, who comes from St. Mary's in San Francisco. He is a regular whirlwind on the infield. He reported in fine shape because of playing winter baseball on the coast. Buster Caton, former Pittsburgh shortstop, is on hand for utility work, and a youngster named John Thomas Sheehan, a Chicago lad, who did well at Winnipeg last year, is here to try to break into the infield.

"I always figure pitching the big thing in baseball," Robinson said when asked about his chances. "I feel sure I have the pitching strength, with seven seasoned men, any of them capable of taking a turn. They won for me a year ago. I believe they can do it again."

YOUNG SOX HURLERS SHOW REAL CURVES; PLEASE KID GLEASON

Waxahachie, Tex., March 12.—[Special.]—Two of the most promising members of the White Sox pitching staff, Joubert Davenport, southpaw from Sioux City, and "Shoe-el" Hodge, right hander, holdover from 1920, were enroleld today in Kid Gleason's curving corps. Both are giants standing about 6 feet 3 inches, and each possessed of terrific speed, but up to now neither appeared effective when called upon.

The best news is that these fellows have shown remarkable aptitude in picking up curves after spending a few moments with Gleason in the shadows of the fence. The Kid expects both to improve rapidly and he is confident they will be important cogs in the pitching machine this season.

Johnson, McClellan Report.

Two new arrivals in the persons of Ernie Johnson and Hervey McCellan, both infielders, were reported today. Johnson, who played with the Sox in 1913 and for the last two years has been shortstop and manager of the Salt Lake club of the Pacific Coast league, where he hit .338 last season, came in this morning from Laguna Beach, looking fit. McClellan, who has been utility infielder for two seasons, came from Maysville, Ky.

Owing to the heavy condition of the grounds following yesterday's rain, the fellows did not practice this morning but limbered up on a long hike. At noon the sun was boiling hot, and Gleason marshaled his forces and gave them a drill that lasted almost three hours. He drove them harder than usual, as there will be no practice tomorrow.

Others Appear Today.

Earl Sheely and Eddie Mulligan, the other members of the Salt Lake infield, are due tomorrow, while a train arriving Monday is expected to deliver Eddie Collins, Amos Strunk, and Eddie Murphy, all from Pennsylvania.

Forty-eight Pirates Go to Work at Hot Springs

Hot Springs, Ark., March 12.—Bringing one of the largest aggregations of any major league club to the south, the Pittsburgh team of the National league arrived at the spring training camp today. The party numbers forty-eight, which includes practically all of last year's regulars and a large number of rookies.

BLUES BUY CATCHER BLACKWELL.

Kansas City, Mo., March 12.—The management of the Kansas City Association club tonight announced the purchase of Fred Blackwell, a catcher with the Pittsburgh Nationals Columbia, 26 to 21, in an intercollegiate league basketball game tonight.

OFF DAY FOR CUBS, RAIN PREVENTING VERNON CONTEST

Pasadena, Cal., March 12.—[Special.]—Rain ruined the chances of the Cubs' first exhibition game with the Vernon club of the Pacific Coast league today and also caused the ever hopefuls to sit idly in the Green hotel. A few games of billiards comprised their work, and except for the two meals the men were allowed to eat the day was a total loss.

"SPEED" MARTIN. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

It rained copiously and continuously, contrary to the press agenting of the oldest inhabitants, who spoke feelingly of this being a record "for the last forty years."

Evers Signs Coast Catcher.

The Cub boss let loose one piece of information. He signed a youthful catcher named Johnny Dill. This lad hails from Brawley, Cal., which is in the Imperial valley, which is so hot they raise cantaloupes in February and a terrific thirst in August.

Just what is the need of a fifth catcher does not appear on the surface, but it is likely that the Cubs tied up Dill for the purpose of turning him over to some club to which the Chicago team is indebted. The young man worked winter ball at San Diego and came under the watchful eye of "Speed" Martin, who recommended him to Evers.

Hope to Play Vernon Today.

The Cubs are scheduled to play at Vernon tomorrow, weather permitting, and the arrangements which were made for today will obtain on the morrow. Slim Love, formerly of the Yanks, and Frank Shellenbach, a discarded White Sox, are scheduled to pitch against the Bruins. Shellenbach is considered quite a hurler out here and would be back in the majors if he had more ambition.

President William L. Veek is due here March 19, when the annual separation of the sheep from the goats will take place. The Cubs owe Portland some talent in part payment of Outfielder George Maisel, so Veeck and Evers will decide what men are to depart. One of the older pitchers may be included.

Red Sox Holdouts Worry Frazee and Hugh Duffy

Boston, Mass., March 12.—The holdout situation, involving several Boston American players, is reported in dispatches from the Hot Springs, Ark., training camp as a cause of increasing anxiety to Manager Hugh Duffy. Unless some of the delinquents appear for practice soon, it is said that H. H. Frazee, president of the club, will make a couple of trades.

BABE FANS AIR 3 SEISMIC TIMES, BUT YANKEES WIN

Shreveport, La., March 12.—[Special.]—Babe Ruth knocked most all the air out of Gasser park this afternoon with his terrific swings against them. Shreveport Texas league pitchers and did not have the satisfaction of hitting a ball past the slab.

The game, the first nine inning affair of the season for the Yankees, was played on a soggy field. The Yankees won, 7 to 3.

Ruth carried his bat back to the bench three times after going out on strikes. With Fewster on third in the first frame, Babe took two hard swings and a third strike was called. In the third he was first to bat, and Umpire George Moriarty again called the third strike after two fouls.

In the fourth inning Babe was retired on a weak roller along the infield. In the seventh Babe went out on a high foul, and in the eighth surrendered his third strikeout.

JOIE RAY UNABLE TO DEFEND HIS NATIONAL TITLE

New York, March 12.—Joie Ray of Chicago will be unable to defend his national title in the 1,000 yard run at the National A. A. U. indoor games here March 19, it was announced today. Officials of the union were informed by the national champion that the tendon strained at the Olympic games last year and injured again in a recent race was bothering him again and he intended to rest for the outdoor season.

EGG-VAN KEMPEN COP FIRST PLACE IN SIX DAY RACE

New York, March 12.—Oscar Egg and Peter Van Kempen of Switzerland won the six day bicycle race in Madison Square garden, which ended at 11 o'clock tonight.

Maurice Brocco of Italy and Willie Coburn of the United States were second and the German team of Walter Rutt and Willie Lorenz, third.

The German riders were lapped in the last few minutes by the other leaders.

Pardridge of Chicago in Del Monte Flight Final

Del Monte, Cal., March 12.—M. A. McLoughlin of Denver, who won the qualifying round yesterday of the Pebble Beach gold vase golf tournament here, was eliminated in the semi-final round today. He was defeated by A. E. Beermond of Oakland, 1 up.

Fred Le Blond Jr. of Los Angeles won the other semi-final from Dr. William Moffatt, Utica, N. Y., on the nineteenth green.

The finalists in the second flight are Fred Le Blond Jr. of Los Angeles and A. J. Pardridge of Chicago.

Badgers Beat Catholics in Dual Track Events

Madison, Wis., March 12.—The University of Wisconsin defeated Notre Dame university, 51 to 35, in a dual track meet today. The Badgers led in practically all of the events.

CENTENNIAL CLUB STANDS 12TH IN NATIONAL SHOOT

Increasing its lead to 210 points over the nearest local rival, the Centennial Rifle club took a wealthy grip on probable first honors in the Chicago end of the National Rifle association's annual team shoot. Last week's competition marked the fifth round in the ten-week tourney.

Arms and the Man, which is the official organ of the N. R. A., places the Centennial club twelfth in the nation-wide tournament. A. J. Huebner and L. E. Butts, both of Centennial, headed the shooters from all nine local clubs for the fifth round, scoring 189 and 183 respectively. Mrs. Walter Wolff, Centennial, was fourth. Team results and leading individual scores follow:

FOR PLAYERS OF WHIST
By A. R. METCALFE

HOW NOT TO PLAY.

WONDER what a bridge player thinks about?

Briggs' cartoon would apply perfectly to thousands of players who go through the correct motions of playing cards, so far as the fingers are concerned, but whose minds appear to be A. W. O. L., or off duty. The deal below shows what should be done:

THE HANDS.

S—10, 7, 4, 3.
H—A, K, 9, 5, 3.
C—None.
D—10, 9, 6, 2.

S—A, K, Q, J, 6.
H—Q, J, 6.
C—9, 8.
D—A, 7, 4.

S—8, 5.
H—10, 8.
C—K, 7, 6, 4, 3.
D—Q, 8, 5, 3.

S—9, 2.
H—7, 4, 2.
C—A, Q, J, 10, 5, 2.
D—K, J.

Score, 0—0.

THE BIDDING.

South dealt and bid one club; west, one spade; north, two hearts. East and south passed, west bid two spades, north and east passed. South bid three hearts, west three spades, north doubled, and the bidding closed. North had the initial lead.

THE PLAY.

Tricks.	N.	E.	S.	W.

West secured nine tricks.

The original play of this deal was a horror. The declarer played the queen of diamonds from dummy at trick three, led clubs from his own hand, and was obliged to cut in with the jack of spades to prevent north from making a trump trick.

North and south secured two tricks each in hearts, diamonds, and clubs and one trump, the declarer losing 300 points.

Simple reasoning on the part of the declarer at trick three would have been as follows:

The play of the deuce and four of hearts had already shown that south held three cards in that suit. The failure of north to lead a club marked south with six clubs, leaving in the south hand four cards only in diamonds and spades.

As south had supported his partner's heart bid, he must have either the king of diamonds or a singleton space. After two rounds of trumps the south hand could be counted absolutely for one heart, the king of diamonds, and six clubs.

The only problem remaining for the declarer was to force south to lead clubs up to the king in dummy. This he could do easily by drawing the remaining trumps held by north, taking the last heart from the south hand, which would have been a card of exit for that player, and then throwing the lead to south with the king of diamonds.

North lost the deal at trick two by taking the second round of hearts instead of switching to diamonds at once.

WATER TO BOIL WHEN THESE POLO PLAYERS MEET IN I. A. C. POOL

What promises to be one of the greatest series of water polo games ever held in Chicago will take place April 6 and 7, when the National A. A. U. water polo championships will be decided in the Illinois A. C. pool, with teams from both seaboards and those of inland clubs as contestants.

Charles A. Dean, chairman of the athletic committee of the Tricolor club, yesterday received word from the Olympic club of San Francisco that the coast organization will be represented by the same team that defeated the I. A. C. last year for the title, 5 to 4.

Previous to receiving word from the Pacific coast, Chairman Dean was notified that the New York A. C. would send its best aggregation to the games. In addition to the strong I. A. C. team, Coach Harry Hazelhurst of the Chicago A. A. yesterday announced his team would be a contestant.

With four of the best water polo teams in the country entered, the games should be among the greatest ever held in the city, with the possible exception of the blood battles between squads of the C. A. A. and New York A. C. before the rules were changed.

When the I. A. C. lost its title to the Olympic club last year, Perry McGillivray and Bill Vosburgh were not members of the local team. Both of these players are important cogs in the tricolor water machines.

COHEN TO MANAGE CIRCLES.

Harry Cohen, for ten years manager of the outdoor and indoor baseball teams for the Dodger Trainings, has resigned to accept the same position with the Chicago Circles, another west side organization, it was announced last night.

STORIES OF TORTURE IN BULGARIA TOLD BY YUSSIFF MAHMOUT

YUSSIFF MAHMOUT, the Bulgarian heavyweight wrestler, an eight year warrior in war ridden Europe, has located in Chicago. Mahmout is 36 years old, but doesn't look it. He looks in fine condition and says he never felt better. He weighs 192 pounds.

YUSSIFF MAHMOUT. [Copyright: Fox.]

Few men in sportdom have occupied the spotlight when not in competition as much as Mahmout. During his absence from this country he has been reported dead no less than a dozen times. He was reported killed in the mountains of Turkey and in Bulgarian warfare.

Mahmout is managed by Emil Klank, the man who handled the late Champion Gotch, and Klank, in the absence of an interpreter, does most of the talking.

"It cost Mahmout a pretty penny to get out of Europe," said Klank. "He doesn't say how much, but it was a lot of money. Mahmout was in war service, serving two years. He escaped injury.

"When the bolshevik movement gained power those who had money were bled for it and Mahmout tells tales of atrocities almost unbelievable. The bolshevists knowing that he had money and finding no other way of obtaining it made a victim of a friend, cruelly put a torch to his body, and burned him until the Bulgarian released him from torture with coin."

MIDWEST TRACK MEET AT N.W. GYM ON APRIL 1 AND 2

Dana M. Evans, newly appointed as professor of physical training and director of athletics by the trustees of Northwestern university, has announced that the annual middle west interscholastic track and swimming meet championships will be held in Northwestern gym April 1 and 2. The plans for the Purple's high school meet, which has been held since 1911, are this year more elaborate than ever.

From the response of schools to which invitations were sent it appears that more than fifty squads will compete for the team and individual honors.

WOODS AND WATERS—By Larry St. John

TREE LORE.

TREES always have played an important part in the affairs of mankind. Scientists tell us that man originally was an arboreal animal, and the accounts of the creation state that it took place in a garden or grove.

In bygone days men looked upon trees with a great deal of reverence.

The oak is a masculine tree and is looked upon everywhere as the emblem of rugged strength. The Greeks, who linked the trees with their religion, dedicated it to Jupiter, while the ancient Romans, Druids, Tartars, and Norsemen also connected it with their deities. The oak was the sacred tree of Thor the Thunderer, hence the saying, "Beware of the oak, it draws the stroke."

This is literally true, for scientists and old woodsmen agree that trees "poor in fat," like the oak, willow, maple, ash, elm, poplar, are more likely to be struck by lightning than "fat" trees, such as the beech, birch, or chestnut. The Indians sought shelter under a beech tree during thunder storms, whenever possible. We have never seen a beech that had been struck by lightning.

The beech should be called the "lovers' tree." Wherever you find one you will see that idle lovers have cut their initials, enclosed in interlocked hearts in the smooth bark.

If the oak is a masculine tree, the red maple is feminine, with a feminine love of finery, for she is always bedecking herself in red from spring until autumn, when she is arrayed like an Indian bride. He who has never seen a clump of red maples blazing on an autumn hillside has been cheated.

Trees are necessary to the happiness of trout fishermen. Trout thrive best in shaded waters, and the burning of stream side foliage by forest fires has done much to spoil trout fishing in this country.

Even when forest fires do not touch the trees along the main streams, they nearly always denude the banks of the small "feeder creeks" and these streamlets are the natural and ideal rearing grounds for baby trout.

A forest fire is one of the most terrifying things in the world. It defies the imagination; as the old fashioned advertisements used to say, "it must be seen to be appreciated." No country in the world has suffered from forest fires like the United States. Some one has said, aptly, that one tree can make a million matches, but one match can destroy a million trees.

Campers and others going into the woods should never leave a fire to burn itself out, and smokers should be as careful in the woods as they are indoors. All this, of course, is "old stuff," but worth repeating. I do not believe that any man who has ever seen a "burnt over" country needs any other preachment on the destructive possibilities of a careless spark.

STOP! READ!! THINK!!! ACT!!!!

¶ In these strenuous times, the wonderful service we render will be quickly recognized by thrifty buyers. We invade every field of commerce. The extent of our operations and the unique position we have gained by original—different—methods are briefly outlined on this page. Our greatest difficulty has always been to properly present to the public the nature of our business. Upon this depends the success or failure of this announcement to fully convey the importanec of our company to you, in all your buying. So, read every word—here's a message of deep interest.

¶ For more than a quarter century we have "blazed the trail" to true bargain buying. Practically all of the world's great expositions—innumerable commercial plants, factories, railroads, industrial institutions and the material from great projects has been successfully dismantled and handled by us. And the benefits of these great undertakings have been uniformly distributed to the people of the nation.

¶ Today we are recognized as the leading buyers of dependable material and merchandise offered at forced sales. Our $10,000,000.00 "spot cash" buying power gives us the first pick and choice of the world's finest products. Our keen, posted buyers keep our mammoth warehouses filled to overflowing. An endless stream of supplies in every line continues to reach us with clock-like regularity—bought at huge price reductions. And we sell as we buy, bargains only—nothing but bargains—in material and merchandise of quality at unmatchable bargain prices. Familiarize yourself with our business in all its branches. Write for particulars upon anything you need.

¶ From a modest beginning we have outgrown the facilities of our gigantic 20 acre plant here in Chicago. Today our branch factories, plants and warehouses occupy a prominent position in America's leading cities and on the Isthmus of Panama. Our success is but the natural result of honest, fair, square public dealing with the support and patronage of thousands of satisfied buyers who are firmly bound to us by the service we render and the money we have saved for them.

¶ And now, we are better equipped than ever before to make substantial savings for you upon everything you need. Those familiar with these great "price wrecking sales" of ours will need no reminder of the benefits we offer. They will be quick to take advantage of our treasure stocks of bargains. You can safely follow the performance of millions who never think of buying anything until our vast stocks are consulted.

¶ Get acquainted with this great institution—America's cosmopolitan shopping center. Ask for any or all of our numerous free catalogues —they tell an interesting story of our achievements in the genuine bargains they contain. Take advantage of the many expert engineering services we render. Thirty great departments are waiting here to do your bidding. We offer an invaluable service to any individual or commercial plant. We are waiting to build, improve or furnish your home—construct your factory and equip it from end to end to establish you in any field of production. Or better, visit our main headquarters here. Be our guest. You'll be amazed by the size and extent of our stocks.

LET'S GET OUT OF THE PHILIPPINES.

Gen. Wood will go to the Philippines to find out what conditions now are in the islands. Secretary of War Weeks says that he will report on the Filipino possibilities of self-government. W. Cameron Forbes, formerly governor general of the islands, may accompany Gen. Wood.

We believe that if the Filipinos are ever going to be able to govern themselves they must be ready by this time. A generation has been raised under American direction and there is a great deal of self-government now.

The United States has been so much more a schoolmaster than a ruler that thus far the Filipino instinct for complete liberty has not been violent. It has petitioned and waited. We have promised to withdraw and we believe that the only reason we are not out now is because of a moral reluctance to turn the Filipinos loose if there is any question as to their ability to manage themselves.

They say they are satisfied they can get along and they are becoming restless. We shall not be astonished if Gen. Wood finds that there are the makings of an insurrection in the islands. The Filipino agitators may believe, from the history of the two American parties, that the Democratic was more in favor of granting independence than the Republican.

If they get the idea that a Republican administration means an indefinite delay for Philippine independence there may be a foolish outbreak which would be bad for the United States. It would postpone sensible action on our part. That is to get out of the Philippines.

The islands have considerable of the nationalistic unrest of Asia and the Filipinos can remind the United States that it has promised to grant them freedom. They may be very badly advised and they may get into a great deal of trouble when they are free, but that is not our problem.

Their desires and our interests both travel in the same direction, and we ought not to lose much more time in satisfying both. The United States would not dream of trying to acquire the Philippines now if they were on the open market. Americans would say that was no direction in which to run a frontier. It is too exposed and it means too too little.

It interferes with proper defense plans. The Philippines are our hostages to Japan. Our presence in the islands is just such a thing as we should resent if Japan were on this side of the Pacific. It is a complication in international relations which are complex enough without it.

The United States now has the best chance it is likely to have to make a decision and get out. If we get into trouble with the Filipinos themselves or with the Japanese then we'll be forced to the foolishness of trying to retain something we do not want.

Any trouble which the Philippines could cause the United States would involve inexcusable waste. If they cost us any lives we shall be very blamable.

Hawaii is worth whatever is required to protect and hold it. The Philippines are not worth the complications they may cause. Our position with regard to Japan will be stronger if we do not offer the Japanese the opportunity to say that we resent them on our side of the Pacific, but we are encroaching on Asia.

Without being in reality Asiatic land grabbers we are in the position of land grabbers. Japan waited for a good time to oust Russia and for a good time to oust Germany. France may be next or we may be next.

It will be inexcusable if we ever get into a war in the Philippines or over them. The Filipinos say they can govern themselves. Here at least their word is good.

MAKING THE SEA DRY.

The Pacific coast agrees with the Atlantic that American government operated liners running dry will have difficulty in meeting wet oceanic competition. Ex-Secretary of the Interior John Barton Payne, who was chairman of the shipping board, has told the congressional committee considering the development of the American merchant marine that prohibition cannot be enforced on passenger ships and have them commercially successful.

We presume it is true that passenger lists originating in or near such Babylonish ports as New York and San Francisco will not be satisfied with ginger ale and near beer on shipboard. A great many sons of Anak departing from New York want to look at the Statue of Liberty facing hopefully to sea and then depart with her benediction to the bar.

A ship within which habit conforms to the conscience of America will not get the business of these citizens. They will want to leave the United States temporarily but completely behind them at the three mile limit and have a Valhallan interlude. However, a great mass of travel flows from the corn belt and the plains during the summer. School teachers, vestrymen, retired plumbers, elders and deacons, superintendents of Sunday school, members of literary societies and of culture clubs, seeking educative contact with the old world, will prefer dry boats and the ice cream soda of their normal habit. They are entitled to the support of their government and they ought to find available a prohibition line. Some of our disarmament advocates say that the United States should disarm without regard to what other nations are doing and thus compel the world by a moral act. Here again is a chance for a moral act to lead the way and shame the foreign liners into closing their bars.

There is, moreover, a remedy available if Americans by their disinclination to take dry boats threaten the ruin of our passenger shipping. Make them take our dry boats. Forbid them to go abroad in wet boats. We may not be able to control their habits when they land on foreign shores, but we can see what kind of a ship they take in getting away. All that is necessary is to amend the Volstead act to provide that no citizen of the United States shall be granted a passport unless he takes passage on a ship in which nothing containing more than one-half of 1 per cent alcoholic content is sold and no American citizen returning from Europe shall be admitted unless he comes on a one-half of 1 per cent ship.

That will prevent the wine kegs of foreign boats from ruining our shipping and it might even make the seas dry.

STATE MOTOR POLICE.

The purpose of the proposed state constabulary is to protect the country roads, small communities, rural districts, and the countryside generally. It is recognized that as the state extends its good roads it brings the countryside closer to the activities of criminals. Bad roads may isolate small communities and thus protect them, but if the state is opened up with good roads it is opened not only to the benefits of communication but to the activities of criminals.

This is to be remedied by providing a mobile body of state constabulary, which will patrol and which will be available in emergency. The prime purpose of the advocates of the state police, or at least of most of them, is to give protection. We do not seek to create another agency for the handling of strikes and industrial conflicts.

To serve the essential purposes of constabulary for the protection of country roads the state police would necessarily be motor police, patrolling on motorcycles and probably using speedy cars for emergency work. The criminals they will have to handle will use fast cars. The state police must.

They will not be, if they are organized properly for their work, a body of state cavalry. There is some labor opposition to state constabulary because it is thought of as a body of mounted men having no local sympathies or affiliations, ready to ride down crowds of people. This is the Cossack idea.

It would be ridiculous to say in the law that the state police should not use horses, but they should be organized, by law, as motor police. That is a common enough organization of police in cities, parks, and suburban towns. It should be extended to the state.

ABOLISH THE FOUR MONTHS' INTERREGNUM.

The four months which have passed since the election of Mr. Harding have represented a serious loss of government headway at a time when vigorous constructive action was sorely needed. This was not primarily the fault of the outgoing administration or congress. The situation compelled it. The administration and its party had been denied a vote of confidence at the polls. They were no longer agents of public will. All they consistently could do was close up shop. This was true of defeated congressmen. The government was out and yet it could not get out.

It is hard to assay the cost of this condition, but it was considerable, for four months in our present situation is time enough to get a good many pressing things done. Some day we may pay an even steeper price for this holdover system. We ought to have sense enough to abolish it before that happens. There is reason enough in our recent experience to impel action if congress will consider the public good in this respect.

In the late congress two joint resolutions were offered proposing constitutional amendments to effect this change in our system. The first provided that the president take office on the second Monday of December, and the second that senators and representatives take office on the first Monday. But the subject will have to be taken up anew and should be early in the new congress. If advisable to avoid opposition the change might be fixed after existing terms expire, but certainly the less delay in establishing the reform the better. Ratification by the states is certain.

Editorial of the Day

TOM MARSHALL.

[From the New York Herald.]

When Thomas R. Marshall was elected vice president for his first term he bore the reputation of being a radical in politics with leanings toward socialism. He leaves the senate chamber today a broader, bigger man than he was when he entered it, with no hue of radicalism attaching to him.

Helping to solve the grave problems which continually face the nation, brought into immediate personal contact with the powerful and unselfish men who keep the social fabric of the country intact, Tom Marshall has developed in knowledge, in understanding, in the spirit of Americanism. Through association with those who are laboring to upbuild the United States he has expanded his horizon and increased his intellectual breadth. He will return to Indiana a more vigorous American than he was when he went to Washington in 1913.

In the violent discussion brought about by the president's absences from the United States in 1918 and 1919 a situation arose which would have inflamed the ambition of a man of badly controlled passions, or seriously embarrassed a man of undue sensitiveness, had such an individual happened to stand first in line of succession to the chief magistrate. It requires little imagination to picture the turmoil a Burr would have created had an opportunity of this kind been offered to one of his characteristics. It is to the everlasting credit of Mr. Marshall that at no time during the period of the president's absences was the vice president's name brought into dispute or his conduct challenged. He was not only innocent of intrigue, but even the tongue of gossip, whether merely irresponsible or malicious, could find no excuse to fix upon him the suggestion of intrigue. Tom Marshall had to walk straight to win that tribute to his integrity and disinterestedness.

Unaffected, simple, straightforward, willing to allow his natural emotions to find expression and to let his heart have its way, Thomas R. Marshall has made a fine place for himself in the affections of the American people.

ENCORE RONSARD.

I can not think he was but chanticleer,
Crowing the easy conquests of a court
In careless stanzas, chanted half in sport
And half in hope his flattery might endear
To arching brows their facile sonneteer;
Rather I mark the vital soul's import,
Grave 'neath the smiles, too candid to distort
To a mere elegance his mood sincere.

So I have called him master and have sung
My fondest songs feigning to follow him,
And longing that my plaintive lips might limn
My love with some faint echo of his tongue.
Taut are the strings and tuneful of my heart
Could I but pluck them with the master's art.

PETRARCHINO.

THE school of journalism may be interested in an extract from R. M. Lucey's new book: "Originality in newspaper production is one of the hardest things in the world to accomplish. Short of printing the matter upside down or sideways, or leaving blanks for the intelligent reader to fill in as he chooses, there is practically no scope for innovations."

THE 360TH.

Sir: Have just received a message from my landlord (God bless him!) in which he says "to sign immediately is principally the most important thing." What degree of importance would you attach to it? CHICK.

ON the rent receipts of one landlord, and perhaps on those of others, is the affecting assurance: "Prompt payment of the rent makes a strong tie between landlord and tenant. Please remember that you agreed in your lease to pay monthly in advance." The congregation of tenants will arise and sing, "Blest be the tie that binds!"

VISION OF PARADISE.

After Bhartrihari.

One sayeth, "surely this is paradise,
To lie close tented in her tender eyes";
And one "for me, the nightingale and rose";
And one "for me, the converse of the wise."
Yea, all these things are pleasant in men's sight.
But those there are that hunger for the might
Of silence, and the brotherhood of stars,
In cool, calm spaces on the mountain height:
Where down the gleaming path of Luna's beams
Old memories advance; and youthful dreams
Personify the radiance of night,
Dissolve the gloom, and lead the soul to light.

GUSS IS ALL.

[From the Clearfield, Ia., Enterprise.]

The residence and store of Mrs. Beery at Guss, Nodaway township, was burned last Thursday morning. That is about all there is to Guss.

OUTSIDE of Cook county the following excuse, received by a school teacher, might be considered a bit outré: "Steve can't go to school yesterday, we was not at home."

THE THOUSAND AND ONE AFTERNOONS.

XXXII.

'This romantic barber has become intolerable,' interrupted the housebreaker, 'and I protest against being obliged to listen longer to his imaginary conversations.' 'If you knew as much concerning barbers as highwaymen, Mr. Wild,' said Valentine, 'you would know that romance and barbers have been notably associated in the past.' 'I am as anxious as another to get away,' said Nathan Weatherwax, 'yet I confess I find this barber's story not uninteresting.' 'Proceed, Mr. Shagpat,' said the Police Captain, and the barber made him a gesture of courtesy.

I decided that the letter must be kept always on my person (he resumed), and this caution was speedily justified, for one day my quarters were thoroughly ransacked, but so skillfully, so professionally I may say, that I might not have known it if I had not expected a search. I must now introduce to your honors my first brother, who was a cook on the Gull and who played a large part in the story which I am unfolding.

'Did I not say,' again interrupted the housebreaker, 'that we should all be here till the cows came home?' This barber has seven brothers, and I warrant we get a story about each of them.' 'Are you, then, utterly without gratitude?' demanded the Police Captain. 'If this worthy barber had not fished you out of the river you would now be warming your heels in some corner of hell.' 'Had I anticipated this scene I should have begged him to throw me back,' said the housebreaker. 'Silence, all!' commanded the Police Captain, and Mr. Shagpat took up his tale.

When the steamer tied up at her dock in Chicago (he continued), my brother and I repaired, as was our habit, to a small hotel on North Clark Street. After the evening meal I put on my most presentable clothing and for the first time acquainted my brother with my secret mission. 'Should I not return in two hours,' I said, 'you will understand that something has gone amiss, and will seek me.' With this brief agreement I set forth on my adventure, and conducted my journey to the west side of the city with extreme circumspection, as it pleased me to believe that my footsteps were dogged. I scrutinized every person in the street car, but could detect no sign of surveillance, and though I looked over my shoulder more than once when I left the car and walked to Warren Avenue, no one followed me. When I reached the number I sought I paused to survey the vicinage. It was well lighted, and as unromantic as a brickyard, but, as your honors know, romance is not in our surroundings but in ourselves.

MARIE-LOUISE had a rather trying experience, as her recently published diary indicates. When Napoleon was in a bad humor she let him grumble as he pleased. "There is nothing that quiets men so much as this," she wrote.

IN THE SPRING THE BACHELOR'S FANCY LIGHTLY TURNS TO THOUGHTS OF COOKS.

[From the Des Moines Register.]

I want to keep house for a German bachelor on a farm; I like it on the farm, don't like town life; am a German lady, good cook, housekeeper, and can do everything on a farm. Was raised on a farm. It will soon be spring and you will soon need a cook and housekeeper. I want a place that seems like home to me.

"LADY going to Chicago soon wishes to reduce expense. What have you?"—Loz Onglaze Times.

A couple of old tires, if that will help.

SPRING.

The young wheat over the black mold soft
And the Red-bird, carolling "Spring" aloft:
The gold corn stacked and the dry husks grey,
And young leaves etched in a tangled spray:
Light that trembles on blades of green
And boughs with the blue sky bold between:
A low moon, hesitant, over the hill—
And "Spring—Spring" quivers the Red-bird's trill.

DOROTHY.

"VAMPIRE bats," we read, "are numerous and dangerous in South America." But unless one goes for the ride it is not necessary to travel beyond the equator.

"I PENNED this prayer in 1916," writes D. C. W. "Four-fifths of it is original":

"O Lawd, give Thy servant this mornin' de eye of de eagle and de wisdom of de owl; connect his soul with de gospel telephone in de central skies; 'luminate his brow with de sun of heaben; pizen his mind with love for de people, turpentine his 'magination; grease his lips with 'possum oil; loosen his tongue with de sledgehammer of Thy power; 'lectrify his brain with de lightnin' of de word; put 'petual motion in his ahms; fill him plum' full of de dynamite of Thy glory; 'noint him all over with de kerosene oil of Thy salvation, and sot him on the fire. Amen!"

WE abstract from the Daily Abstracter of Salt Lake City the information that Florence Sheets is suing Olin Sheets for divorce. The primary class in headlining might work on that.

YOU know the infallible sign of spring: father on the back porch, cleaning last fall's mud from his golf shoes.

PALESTINE, WAR, SCIENCE.

THERE was an ancient prophecy that Palestine will be delivered from the Turks when the waters of Egypt should flow into it. When the Egyptian expeditionary force started out to capture Palestine they planned to fulfill the requirements of the prophecy. The plan was to start from the region of the Suez canal and march across the Sinai desert, following the route taken by the ancient kings of Egypt and Assyria. To come closer home they proposed to follow substantially the course taken by Moses when he led the chosen people out of Egypt, according to some authorities.

Exodus xvii. recounts the threatened rebellion of the Israelites on account of the scarcity of water. "And there was no water to drink, wherefore the people did chide with Moses and said, 'Give us water that we may drink. Wherefore is this that thou hast brought us up out of Egypt to kill us and our children and our cattle with thirst?'"

The route across this desert, the eastern half of which is almost waterless, was followed by Napoleon's army. But those forces were small compared with a modern military force, and the few scattered desert wells which sustained the earlier forces were not equal to the needs of the British expedition.

To the east, regarding the Sinai desert as an insurmountable barrier, lay the Turkish troops. The water supply of the canal district is furnished by an open aqueduct which takes water from the Nile not far from Cairo. Seventy miles down this open ditch aqueduct the water supply main for the expeditionary force was placed and at Kantara a water purification plant was located. The open ditch water, by this time very much befouled, was sedimented, filtered and treated with chlorine. After that it was pumped to the troops through a 12 inch water main laid on the surface of the ground. As the troops advanced this pipe was lengthened. Finally it was 147 miles long. Counting the seventy miles of flow in the ditch, Egyptian or Nile water was carried 220 miles across the Sinai desert into Palestine, thus fulfilling the old prophecy.

The surface waters of Egypt not only carry the germs of typhoid, cholera and diarrhoea, but they are infested with snails, and these transport a kind of tropical liver trouble that causes much sickness in that section. The water first was passed through screens to remove the snails. After that the gross dirt was settled out and then it was passed through pressure filters of a type widely used in this country. Finally it was treated with one part chlorine to each million parts water.

The attacking troops found the desert no barrier. They remained healthy. Palestine was redeemed.

There are many American communities with high typhoid death rates, because they do not take the precautions to supply their people with pure water—precautions taken in Palestine which made the success of the expedition possible.

HE CAN HAVE CEREALS.

Mrs. B. E. J. writes: "My baby is 11 months old and weighs about 25 pounds. He has been healthy, with the exception of croup a month ago. For five months he was breastfed. Since then he has been partially fed on Eagle brand condensed milk, with milk of magnesia. Now the breast milk is almost gone and he has Eagle brand milk. In addition I give him crusts, gravies, oatmeal, jelly, and orange, prune, and apple juice. I think he should begin on cow's milk.

"1. What is your opinion?

"2. In what strength should certified milk be given at first and how increased?

"3. Should certified milk be boiled to make it more safe and how long at the boiling point?

"4. Should other food be given in the milk?

"5. The baby has six teeth and two more are appearing. A week ago I noticed that his upper lip has grown down between his two front teeth, which are large. What should be done about it and how soon?"

REPLY.

1. I agree with you.
2. About 3 parts milk to 1 of water.
3. To boil milk makes it safer always. Heat it until it simmers. Not necessary to let it boil.
4. By all means. An 11 month old baby can have cereals, fruit juice, gravies, soups, hard bread, finely chopped vegetables.
5. I do not know what you can do about it.

AN ENTERTAINING TONIC.

J. C. W. writes: "1. What foods are best for a person who is nervous?

"2. Are warm baths before retiring beneficial?

"3. What vegetables besides beets and spinach contain much iron?

"4. What good is grapefruit? Does it help the digestive system?

"5. Is one egg in milk and chocolate strengthening to any extent?

"6. For a tonic, do you think elixir of iron, quinine, and strychnine is good?"

REPLY.

1. Nervous is an indefinite term. As a rule a nervous person is one who has not trained himself in nervous control. The need, therefore, is for training, not for special foods. There are no special nerve foods.
2. Warm baths are soothing.
3. The foods richest in iron are oatmeal, whole wheat, dried peas and beans, spinach, prunes, and raisins.
4. Grapefruit contains antiscorbutic elements, minerals, and some carbohydrates. It is of no special help in digestion.
5. Elixir of iron, quinine, and strychnine is about as entertaining a tonic as is available. Taking it will do you no harm. If you enjoy taking medicine you might very well keep your hand in by taking it.

DESCRIBE NOSE AILMENTS.

L. T. writes: "Please tell me of an authoritative work on the pathology of the nose."

REPLY.

In a catalogue of medical books I find no work on pathology of the nose. If you are interested in a work on the nose for physicians among the best are by Ballenger, Coakley, Coolidge, and Kyle.

WHICH DO THEY PREFER.

H. T. writes: "1. Kindly tell me how to get rids of nits. I have tried many things, but none have helped.

"2. Please do not say kerosene and sweet oil, as I cannot walk around the office with my hair smelling of kerosene."

REPLY.

1. Hot vinegar and a fine tooth comb.
2. Which do your office associates prefer—kerosene or lice? There is no reason for smelling of kerosene. The kerosene can be washed out after one hour. Dry partially and then wash with hot vinegar for nits.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

Letters for this department must be signed with names and addresses of the writers.

DESPERATE.

Chicago, March 5.—[Friend of the People.]—How can we bribe our aldermen or street inspectors to provide service for our alley? I live on South Sacramento avenue and for the last three years there has not been a garbage wagon down our alley. I would appreciate anything you might do to have this menace taken care of. J. T.

This district is not densely populated and therefore service is not as regular as in others, which is usually weekly. Complaint has been taken care of and the alley is now in good condition. THOMAS H. BYRNE, Superintendent of Streets.

NEW YORK BONUS.

Gary, Ind., March 6.—[Friend of the Soldier.]—Did the state of New York pass a bonus bill providing bonus for the men who enlisted for the war from that state? Would my present residence in the state of Indiana bar me from this bonus if I enlisted in New York? H. D.

The New York state bonus bill passed Nov. 2, 1920. The bill stipulates that unless the ex-service men from New York were residing in that state on the day the bill was passed they cannot collect the bonus. From statements given in your letter we could not possibly say whether you will be able to collect the bounty or not, but advise you to write for a copy of the bill, and proper blanks on which to make application for the bonus. The board in charge of this will decide your case.

THE PRICE OF DEBATE.

Chicago, March 7.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—1. If a party walks into a store and selects merchandise, which after taking it home he discovers does not fit or approve with his taste, can he return it and demand a refund in cash?

2. Please advise me what necessary legal action could be taken in order to compel merchant, who refused to refund the money and hold it in order to force one to buy something else, to return the cash? G. B. B.

1. No.
2. None.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

HE NEED NOT FILE.

Winnetka, Ill., March 6.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Please advise me whether a married man, earning less than $2,000 a year, has to file an income tax? C. G.

No.

Letters about income tax should be sent to The Tribune Income Tax bureau.

SETTING THE PACE.

Chicago, March 7.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—What would be a fair rent for a landlord to charge for a six room flat on the north side, frame building, stove heat, gas light, building in good condition (just repaired and newly painted), good transportation facilities, and in a good neighborhood? P. W.

According to the realtor's schedule, as published in The Tribune March 5, in Ravenswood, etc., if the building has no porch or sun parlor, the rate would be $35 to $50.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

READY FOR THE MARKET.

Oak Park, Ill., March 5.—[Friend of the People.]—Kindly advise me as to how to go about putting a patent article on the market. C. A. G.

Study the market in question, first hand and through books. Talk with people who have handled similar problems. We are not in a position to advise more specifically.

PROVIDED FOR.

Delmar, Ia., March 6.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—My father-in-law has been deceased twenty years and the large estate has never been divided. If my husband laves no will would I get a widow's third or would it all go to my children? A. S. H.

You would take a widow's third.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

WHY NEGROES COME NORTH.

Chicago, March 10.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The suggestion of Observer in Sunday's TRIBUNE, that colored men from the south out of work in the north should go back to their old employers, prompts the counter suggestion that southern employers drove these colored men from their plantation homes by enforcing peonage, paying starvation wages, and denying to them the rights which are safeguarded to workingmen everywhere in the north. The white employer who told Observer how well they would treat their colored brethren if they came back did not tell him what made them leave.

The Negro loves the "sunny south," its traditions, its "best people," its cotton fields, its "sugar cane and corn," but lynchings, burnings, kuklux klans, starvation wages, and labor contracts which provide prison penalties built the "black man's burden" and turned the flower of hope into ashes of despair. Hence the exodus.

The Negro exiled from his southern home will suffer hardship in the none too friendly north, but he finds here no peonage, no kuklux klans, lynchings rarely, no tissue ballots, no Jim Crow cars, no prison labor contracts. The north winds sting, and sometimes the colored man's pork chops are uncomfortably far apart; but, shivering and hungry, he has appealing consolation in the thought that in the north he has a "white man's chance," and he is willing to labor and to wait.

F. L. BARNETT.

SWORDS, SPURS, AND SALUTES.

Chicago, March 7.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Lieut. Carl Wanderer's attorneys say the board of state alienists have decided that Lieut. Carl is "insane, a boy of low mentality, a person with the mind of an 11 year old child." But that didn't keep Carl Wanderer from being made a lieutenant in the United States army during the war. I wonder if therein you can find an excuse for the ninety-three court martials handed out to the 150 enlisted men of base hospital No. 12, A. E. F.?

A TWO YEAR SUFFERER OF SWORDS, SPURS, SALUTES.

NO BONUS WANTED.

St. Charles, March 9.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—"One Who Has Been a Hero for the Last Ten Years" surely has a bad case. Wonder if he was "inducted" into the service during the world war or really volunteered?

If he volunteered, didn't they pay him what it was agreed he would get; if he was "inducted" into the service, "blew in by the draft," what's he kicking about—wasn't it the law of his country that called him?

As a veteran of the Spanish-American and Philippine wars, not to mention the "Boxer trouble," and also of the late world war—a member in good standing in the United Spanish War Veterans and of the American Legion, I get sick and a little weary to hear you "yaps" yelping for a bonus.

When we returned from the Philippine islands we resembled pumpkins in color, our health was broken from chasing gugus, sleeping in rice paddies, and drinking impure water; we wiggled along until the next call came without even getting a pension, much less a bonus, but when the recent trouble started we "got the fever" and "heard the call" and "fell in"; and if there's any fellow needing bonuses, excusing present company, I believe the Philippine boys are "it."

Let's forget it, and settle down to being 100 per cent pure Americans, and if there's to be anything "handed out" to any one, I say give it to the boys who really need it, and not to the red cheeked lads who came back better men physically than they were when they went "over there."

"Let's all be Americans now!" Let's all support a 100 per cent American in the presidency, and try and get this old idea of "paid patriots" out of our mind!

I never served for a bonus and I doubt if this lad did, and so why stampede oneself into being a "red" just because Uncle Sam don't wish to go broke now in order to try to pay a debt that never was contracted; let's be glad we won! WM. D. HARRINGTON.

THE AUTOMOBILE PIRATE.

Painesville, O., March 8.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—If the automobile license plate were made a permanent part of the car it was assigned to, there would be a sudden disappearance of present day automobile thefts and attendant holdups and bank robberies. Pursuit and identification would be too sure and too simple to warrant the risk.

When license plates were first adopted it was to provide just this sort of protection—as well as to create revenue.

So long as automobiles were the "playthings of the rich," and beyond the reach or understanding of thugs, thieves, and plugugles, it worked very well. Traffic violations, speeding, accidents, and other such misdemeanors of the owner or his chauffeur were the chief offenses in those days.

No cars were stolen, because the second hand market as we know it now did not exist. No cars were employed in holdups or robberies for the same reason that airplanes are not so employed today—they were too scarce, conspicuous, and difficult to operate.

When, therefore, a license was issued for a certain car it stayed on that car. There was not sufficient incentive to remove it.

But not so today. For thieves and their ilk there is every incentive. And they have never yet failed to gratify it. Result? The license today, so far as its identifying function is concerned, is a dead letter.

The state should seal the plate to the accredited car at the time the license is issued.

Will you not give this suggestion a little thought and consideration, and employ it for whatever it may be worth in combating that skull and crossbones of today—the automobile pirate?

BLOCKADING GERMAN PORTS

A British fleet is reported to be bound for the north German ports of Bremen and Hamburg to effect a blockade of these cities until Germany meets the allied terms. The blockade is not planned to be as rigorous as it was during the war, but still it will be severe enough for Germany to notice. The arrows on the map show the spots where the allies are putting pressure on Germany. The German people so far have not made any retaliatory move, their plan being nonresistance.

TABLOID BOOK REVIEW

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

Last week's best sellers at a leading Chicago book store were:

FICTION.

"Main Street" [Harcourt], by Sinclair Lewis.
"Poor Wise Man" [Doran], by Mary Roberts Rinehart.
"Mountebank" [Lane], by W. J. Locke.
"Potterism" [Boni & Liveright], by Rose Macaulay.
"Mary Wollaston" [Bobbs-Merrill], by Henry Kitchell Webster.

The six best circulators at the public library last week were:

FICTION.

"Main Street" [Harcourt], Sinclair Lewis.
"Caliban" [Harpers], W. L. George.
"Moon Calf" [Knopf], Floyd Dell.

NONFICTION.

"Outline of History" [Macmillan], H. G. Wells.
"Margot Asquith: Autobiography" [Doran].
"Introduction to Psychoanalysis" [Boni & Liveright], Sigmund Freud.

AND once in the first days of that period called by the contemporaries of it the Era of Normalcy, there dwelt in a far city a great count whose name was Cabell. Though others held in fief such lands and readers and moneys won by their typewriters as to stagger the imagination (a phrase much used in that period) he, the quiet count, held the spirits of men in his power. By his magic he made images of golden-traced dreams. He set them out in the sunshine to be filled with the burning high romance of youth's passion to adventure.

And because he was a human creator he left them out in the rain of misery that they, too, might know the message of the tears of the universe. And again, because he was at once a king and a subject, he gave to some of them that richness of rulership that sees in crowns and lands and power attained the subjugation of the joy of attainment. And to others he gave the joy of renunciation and the power of sacrifice.

His images he made after his own dreams, after the dreams of everyman and everywoman. Those dreams he called "Figures of Earth," and old men sitting by warm firesides said, "That is I." Young knights with their first adventure yet before them said, "That shall never be I. When I have fulfilled my knighthood I shall never sit by a warm fireside and dream about my adventurings. I shall never listen with dear gentleness while my queen talks about the servants. Until the morning when I go into the black land of death I shall be this same I, eager, inspirited, divine."

And the guild of men and women who called themselves critics gathered together and said what was usual. And one of them was, as time goes, a newcomer. (It was whispered that she loved the things that she criticized and had a tolerant kindliness toward those things which were not so fine but which had been at the moment of their creation the attempt of some eager young manuel to fulfill the geas placed upon him by his mother to make a fine figure in the world of men.)

And this comparative newcomer boldly stood up in the council and said, "This Count Cabell has made his 'Figures of Earth' of that eternal clay which is mankind. His hero, King Manuel, is you, my solemn and potent-penned friend, and you, too, juggler of gay words. He is Count Cabell himself. He is Dwar and that wide-eyed boy who drives the milk wagon through the dawn. I doubt not even that he is Harold Bell Wright and the once-President Wilson. He is Pilgrim. He is Man.

"If he had sought—and attained—morality, he would be crowned by you as an epic figure. He sought—and failed to attain—a complete expression of himself. He grew prosperous, successful. He became a good husband, a spasmodically tender father. He told to himself the dazzling, faceted lies with which men blind themselves to their real failure. And he went boasting to the far country of death. And when he came there he saw 'only the strivings of an ape reft of his tail, and grown rusty at climbing, who has reeled blunderingly from mystery to mystery, with pathetic makeshifts, not understanding anything, greedy in all desires, and always honeycombed with poltroonery.' And he wept for the spirit who alone 'knew the secret of preserving that dissatisfaction which is divine where all else falls away with age and with the acquiescence of beasts.' "Here," continued the newcomer, "is an epic shot through with tenderness and sadness and beauty, such an one as men will tell of in the long years to come."

Thus, in those mythical times of Normalcy, which are as mythical to a world of men born some odd thousands of years later as the times in Poictesme "where anything was liable to happen," where miracles are as common as trout pies. For man is Man, and his epic is "Figures of Earth."

Sinclair Lewis of Main street, Washington, is visiting his friends along Main street, Chicago, this week. He is lecturing and everything.

"The Book of Jeremiah," including the Lamentations, has been brought out in a limited edition of 975 copies by Nicholas L. Brown, with illustrations by William Saphier, who used to be a member of Chicago's most exclusive radical set. The text is that of the revised version of the Bible.

The best selling books in England just now are:

FICTION.

"A Case in Camera," by Oliver Onions (published here by the Macmillan company).
"The Elephant God," by Gordon Casserley.
"Bliss and Other Stories," by Katherine Mansfield (published here by Alfred A. Knopf).
"The Lost Girl," by D. H. Lawrence (published here by Seltzer).
"Harriet and the Piper," by Kathleen Norris (the latest Norris success here).
"Too Old for Dolls," by Anthony M. Ludovici.

NONFICTION.

"And Even Now," by Max Beerbohm.
"Russia in the Shadows," by H. G. Wells (published here by Doran).
"A Playgoer's Memories," by H. G. Hibbert.
"Essays on Books," by A. Clutton-Brock.
"Life and Letters," by J. C. Squire (just published here by Doran).
"Aspects of Literature," by J. Middleton Murry (on the spring list of Alfred A. Knopf).

A Moscow wireless dispatch received on Feb. 8 says that Prince Peter A. Kropotkin died in Moscow "this morning." No revolutionist, parlor, kitchen, or soap-box, but knows Kropotkin's "Memoirs of a Revolution." No forward-looking reader but should know it. My introduction to it was somewhat interesting. Among the first reviews I ever wrote—as a small child, it seems now—was of a later and not very good book of Jack London's which I made an excuse to praise without reservation—that truly remarkable book of his, "Martin Eden." Mr. London liked the stuff I had written and wrote to thank me—he didn't know from the initials F. B. whether I was man, woman, or child. That letter contained the Kropotkin pamphlet, "An Appeal to the Young," no word as to its message to me, just an exceedingly friendly note about my review and that stirring pamphlet. After we had got somewhat acquainted in letters I asked how he had known I was young and needed to be appealed to. He answered that he hadn't known it, but he always stuck one of the pamphlets in a letter to a new correspondent for the good of his own and the possible convert's soul. The Memoirs are the classic of their kind of writing and thinking.

In the March Bookman there is an article on the most curious books in the world. Among them were the French reliures-bouteille books handsomely bound in leather for the bibulous-phile, not the bibliophile. They were in reality portable flasks, and were exceedingly popular about a century ago with judges, advocates, and the learned gentry generally." Books bound in human skin also have existed. A Russian poet is said to have presented his beloved with a volume of sonnets bound in his own parchment. And the astronomer Flammarion received as a legacy a square of the exquisite skin of a beautiful lady of title whom he had praised at a reception. In accordance with the instructions in the legacy he had a copy of his own work, "Ciel et Terre," bound in it.

A couple of years ago H. L. Mencken, in a burst of confidence about the inherent mute ingloriousness of American Miltons, promised to find a publisher for any really good American novels which were submitted to him. Out of the welter of manuscripts, all of which he read with an eager eye for genius, there was just one which came up to the standard which he had set for an American novel. That one is published under the title of "Zell," the name of the hero. It is by Henry G. Aikman, who wrote "The Groper" which was a pretty bad novel, but with something in it groping toward goodness.

"Zell" is one of the boyhood-to-middle-age type of novels that were affected so thoroughly by the younger English set a few years ago—the study of a man's psychology in his adjustments to life. Zell, with a passable voice, might have perhaps become an artist by dogged hard work and a belief in himself. Zell, with an inheritance of mediocrity becomes—not even so romantic a person as might be called "Zell." He is, to the end of his life, "Avery"—an absurd, middle-class Christian name for a child, apparently chosen out of a newspaper or a novel and not out of any connection with a family of Averies.

There is a reality about "Zell," the reality of mediocrity. We all know hundreds of Zells. We all have memories like Zell's of his Sunday school, of the stifling dullness of the card club, of the "smart" young man who smears an evening with his jocularities. We all know the dumb acceptance of a surging fate that sweeps us into futilities.

That's the trouble with life. We could forgive fate for knocking us senseless if we awoke in an enchanted forest. But life treats few of us so. We find, after the blackness, the same dull gray of mud in which our feet are stumbling. It is because Mr. Aikman makes no attempt to pretend that it isn't dull and gray and mud that "Zell" is a good novel.

POEMS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW

SALLY IN OUR ALLEY.
By Henry Carey.

Of all the girls that are so smart
There's none like pretty Sally;
She is the darling of my heart,
And she lives in our alley.
There is no lady in the land
Is half so sweet as Sally;
She is the darling of my heart,
And she lives in our alley.

Her father he makes cabbage nets,
And through the streets does cry 'em;
Her mother she sells laces long
To such as please to buy 'em;
But sure such folks could ne'er beget
So sweet a girl as Sally!
She is the darling of my heart,
And she lives in our alley.

Of all the days that's in the week
I dearly love but one day—
And that's the day that comes betwixt
A Saturday and Monday;
For then I'm drest all in my best
To walk abroad with Sally;
She is the darling of my heart,
And she lives in our alley.

My master carries me to church,
And often I am blamed
Because I leave him in the lurch
As soon as text is named;
I leave the church in sermon time
And slink away to Sally;
She is the darling of my heart,
And she lives in our alley.

Zane Grey's new book, THE MYSTERIOUS RIDER, was published only a few weeks ago. It's the best selling book in America—the most popular novel of the year. Don't wait! Get a copy today, and then you will understand why everyone is talking about this great story.

The MYSTERIOUS RIDER By Zane Grey

The Philadelphia Public Ledger says of this book: "An honestly thrilling story. There is a working up to climaxes which set the pulse to beating faster. There is a mystery which grips and holds interest. . . . There are little humanizing touches about Grey's folk, men and women, which make them likable and memorable." It's the kind of story that you want, now—the kind of story where you've simply got to know what happens next!

Ask any of these Progressive Lumbermen why they recommend "Cornell" Panels

We have handled all other varieties of wallboard from the cheapest to the costliest, and we never found another that gave such universal satisfaction for permanent walls, ceilings and partitions.

One reason is Cornell's "Triple-Sized" process which gives Cornell panels triple protection against moisture, expansion and contraction. This is why Cornell can be guaranteed not to warp or buckle if simple directions are followed. Anyone who can handle a hammer and saw can apply Cornell to the joists and studding or over damaged plaster.

Cornell's exclusive "Oatmeal" finish makes handsome interiors in homes, factories, offices, garages, stores, summer cottages and farm buildings.

Because of the "Mill-Primed" surface Cornell takes a perfect spread of paint or calcimine without the work and expense of a priming coat.

Tell your lumberman you want Cornell-Wood-Board—no other is like it. You can tell the genuine by the name on the edge. Write for sample board and book No. 61 of beautiful "Cornell Interiors"—FREE.

RIVER FOREST TELLS THE WORLD IT'S ON THE MAP

Building Boom On in High Grade Residences.

BY AL CHASE.

River Forest, a village with individuality, charm, and practically no apartment buildings, snuggling between the picturesque Desplaines river and Oak Park, steps forward this week and modestly claims a share of the limelight Glen Ellyn has been standing in, as one of the few suburbs of Chicago where building is booming.

While building has practically been at a standstill in neighboring towns, River Forest has been quietly putting up houses, and selling them as fast as they are finished. Attention was called to River Forest yesterday when O. C. Braese, a River Forest realtor, announced the sale of three half blocks of property for the Phipps estate on which L. Buurma has started work on twenty-seven houses. The total contemplated improvement will exceed $750,000 in value.

Take Your Time.

But don't hurry out to River Forest expecting to buy a home unless your bank balance is fairly healthy or your credit full of pep, for prices of houses being built by Mr. Buurma will range between $25,000 and $50,000. In fact, most of the improvements under way in River Forest range much higher than other suburban towns, a feature which has been conspicuous in the past and which has given the town much of the distinction and individuality it now enjoys.

Mr. Braese's sales for the Phipps estate were the block on the west and east sides of Clinton place, between Iowa and Augusta streets and the east side of Williams street, also between Iowa and Augusta. Mr. Buurma, who has built a number of high class residences in River Forest during the last few years, already has started work on the first six of his contemplated twenty-seven. With the completion of the first group, he will at once start on six more. They will all be of brick or hollow tile, with various colored tile roofs, and will have tile kitchens, two baths, two car garages, and with no lot less than sixty feet. The district is highly restricted, with no flat buildings permitted.

Moving at High Speed.

"Things are moving rapidly in River Forest," said Mr. Braese. "This property less than five years ago was unimproved prairie, used as a ball park by the school children of Oak Park and River Forest."

Mr. Braese purchased the northwest corner of Chicago and Jackson avenues recently as a site for his own residence, and temporarily is using it for a branch office of his real estate business.

"I believe there are more high grade houses going up in River Forest than in any Chicago suburb," he said. "I have recently had inquiries for two blocks in the North Woods subdivision by persons who want to put up palatial homes to cover half a block each. This section is the most restricted in the village. It was laid out thirty years ago by E. C. Waller, and in some parts of it nothing less than 200 foot lots are sold, and all building plans must be approved by the owners of the subdivision. It covers about twelve blocks, bounded by Division street, Chicago, Park, and Lathrop avenues."

Move Tennis Club.

An interesting development of River Forest is the removal of the attractive old River Forest Tennis club building, designed by Frank Lloyd Wright, from the block bounded by Quick, Bonnie Brae, and Harlem avenues and Lake street, to a new site in the block bounded by Lathrop, Quick, Oak, and Jackson. The old site has been taken over by the forest preserve district and will be made a park.

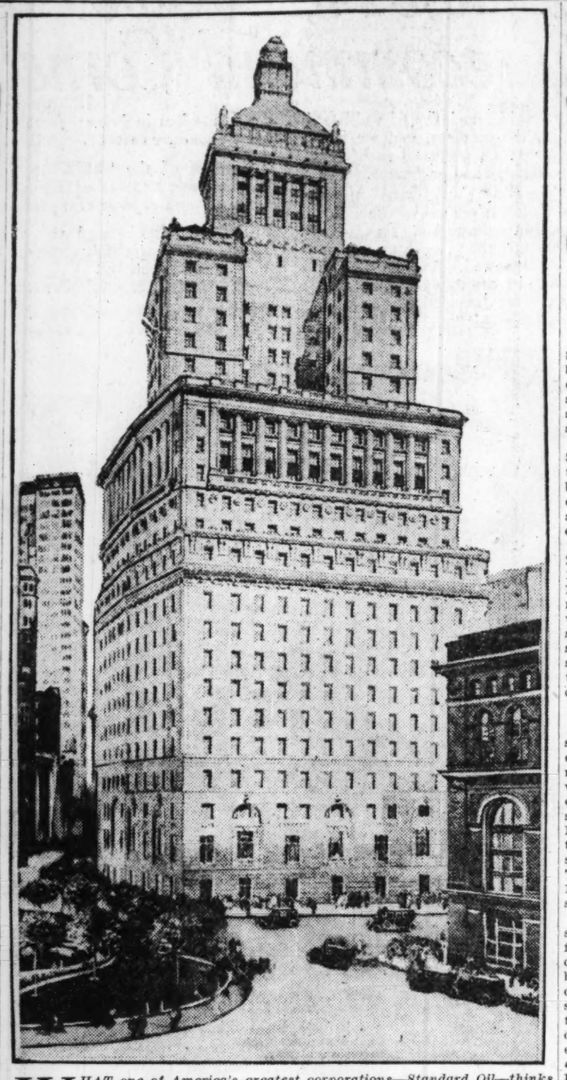
The block just north of the new tennis club grounds, bounded by Chicago avenue, Jackson, Oak, and Lathrop, is to be the site of a community center, school, and public library.

On the block east of the new club grounds several brick residences have been built, and more are building. Three have been sold, three are for sale, and four are under construction. The prices range from $27,000 up to $45,000.

Plans Eighty Acre Subdivision.

Another development of yesterday was the purchase by John E. White from John J. Fitzgerald of the eighty acres at the southwest corner of Harlem and North avenues, for an indicated $120,000, subject to $15,000. The property is bounded on the west by Williams street and on the south by Division street. Mr. White intends to subdivide it at once. This means another big batch of houses later on. This eighty acre tract, of course, is just outside the town limits of River Forest, but practically will be part of the village.

In addition to all these projects there are individual building operations scattered about the village, so you can't blame the average River Forester for telling the world his town's on the building map. Not many Chicago suburbs are, so he's got something worth while telling.



WHAT one of America's greatest corporations—Standard Oil—thinks of the business outlook is pretty clearly demonstrated by taking a look at the $18,000,000 building proposition recently started in New York City. It will tower 480 feet above the lower end of Manhattan. Carrere & Hastings are the architects, with Shreve, Lamb & Blake as associates. More is told about this huge project in another column on this page.

MAKE OLD TIMER ON NORTH SIDE INTO STUDIO BUILDING

Another of the near north side's old-time three story and basement white stone fronted residences, which represented the height of architectural beauty in days gone by, is to be rebuilt into a modern Greenwich village type of studio building. The property at 157 East Ohio street, diagonally across from the site of the new home of the Lake Shore Trust and Savings bank, is now undergoing a reformation which will turn it into an attractive, four story shop and studio building.

Hedberg & Bistor, agents for the owner, Frank G. Gustafson, have had plans drawn by Architect John A. Nyden. The basement floor will be raised and enough taken off the high first floor rooms to make a first floor shop 12x50, practically level with the sidewalk. The second, third, and fourth floors will be studios, each with 28x12 combination studio and living room, a 12x17 sleeping room, and a breakfast room and kitchenette.

Some idea of the profit in remodeling old residences into studios can be gained by the following figures: Cost of land and present building was $24,000; improvements to cost $15,000, or a total of $39,000. The shop will rent for $200 per month, the first and second floor studios will rent for $175 a month, and the upper already is rented to Mrs. Frederick A. Holstman, soloist, for $150 monthly, which makes a total gross annual revenue of $8,400. The building will be ready for occupancy the last part of April.

Corporation Takes Title to the Traders Building

Max L. Teich and Carl C. Roessler, owners of the Atlantic hotel, have transferred title in the Traders' building property at 305-315 South La Salle street, to the Traders' Safety Building corporation for a reported $180,000. The corporation will make considerable improvements in the property and intends to erect a new building in the next five years. E. A. Teich & Co. negotiated the deal and will continue in charge of the property.

Work to Start at Once on 19 Houses on South Side

Work will start at once on nineteen houses at the southeast corner of Jeffery avenue and Ninety-second street by Architect W. Scott Armstrong. They will be one story brick, five rooms, and will sell at around $7,650.

Work has started on the first ten brick and hollow tile houses in Edison Park of a projected seventy-five by Mr. Armstrong. They will sell for $9,500 and $10,000 and $12,000 for corners.

Will Build 40 Houses on Irving Park Boulevard

Ten acres at the southwest corner of Moody avenue and Irving Park boulevard have been purchased by Louis L. Schorsch of Albert P. Schorsch & Co., from William Meyer for an indicated $21,500. Forty houses will be erected as soon as building prices improve.

DIVISION STATE BANK TO BUILD $100,000 HOME

What is claimed to be the only institution of its kind in the Fifteenth ward, the Division State bank, now in temporary quarters at 2749 West Division street, will start work next week on a $100,000 permanent home at the southwest corner of Division and Rockwell streets from plans by Architects Rissman & Hirschfeld.

The new building will be a story and a half high on a lot fronting 35 feet on Division and 120 feet on Rockwell street. It will be of stone and concrete, with 5,000 safe deposit boxes in the basement vaults. It probably will be completed July 4. William Ganschow is chairman of the board, Henry Boos is president, and Isaac Grossman, H. Jenisch, and J. Vognild are vice presidents.

South Side Residence Bought by Publishers

Here's more activity in the south side publishing center. Austin N. Palmer, of the A. N. Palmer company, has bought from Mrs. Grace A. Davidson the property at 2128 Calumet avenue, improved with one of the finest residences in the district, the former home of Mrs. Davidson, for a reported $32,500. The Palmer company, publishers, will use the house for offices and will erect a modern building in the rear for warehouse and stockrooms. The Bowes Realty company, who handled the deal, report other negotiations of a similar nature in the district.

Some Leases

The Hool Realty company reports $241,000 leases recently closed. In the Reliance building leases totaling $27,000 for the term rental were made.

In the State-Lake building the total was $49,000; in the Garrick building leases amounting to $81,000 were closed; $53,000 in the Textile building; $31,000 in the Flat Iron building.

The Kunstman & Telling Shoe company, which recently rented the entire building at 43-45 South Wells street from the Globe-Wernicke company, has rented the fifth and sixth floors to the Independent Thread mills and Gustav Gerson from April 1 for ten years at a term rental of $54,000. J. G. Kirk & Co. represented all parties.

Realtor Notes

Boehm & Winterson announce that H. A. Boehm, formerly with the Sinclair Refining company, is now with them as assistant sales manager.

STANDARD OIL STARTS WORK ON HUGE BUILDING

Gotham Project to Cost $18,000,000.

New York, March 12.—[Special.]—Standard Oil capitalists believe the busienss outlook justifies immediate construction of their projected skyscraper home to cover the Beaver street block from Broadway to New street.

Land and building will represent an $18,000,000 outlay. The huge architectural pile arising around the old building at No. 26 Broadway will become the most imposing monument of all the marvelous mass at the lower end of Manhattan.

The Standard Oil company built No. 26 Broadway for its exclusive use in 1885—nine stories high. In 1895 to 1899, due to expansion of business and requirements for additional space, a wing was built immediately north and six stories with a tower were constructed on top of the original nine stories, making it fifteen stories, with tower, and a usable area of a little over 10,000 square feet on each floor.

Big Building to Be Wrecked.

Now the site to be covered on the south side of No. 26 comprises No. 18, on which the massive Welles building must be torn down; Nos. 10-12 Broadway, where stands the Produce Exchange Bank building, Nos. 1-3 Beaver street, old five story brick buildings; No. 7, which is the southerly wing of the Welles building, and No. 81 New street, with seven story brick building. This makes 162.2 feet on Broadway, 160.1¾ on Beaver street, 102.7 on New street.

The building is to be erected in three sections, or operations, owing to the fact that the company has great need of the space it occupies in the various buildings now on the site. The first operation has been started on New street and a little more than half of the Beaver street front. It will be a complete unit in itself, with the necessary stairs, elevators, toilets. When completed, work will start on the Broadway wing covering the Welles site and it will include the tower.

The third operation will complete the Broadway and Beaver street corner. No definite plans have been made as to when this will be built, as it is expected that the first two operations will take care of the company's immediate needs and the third will be postponed until such time as more space is needed, leaving temporarily the corner and 1 Beaver streets as air and light shafts connecting into the inner court.

Caissons Nearly All In.

The work as so far completed includes the sinking of most of the caissons, which will extend from between thirty and forty feet to the solid rock, and the beginning of the great cofferdam wall, which will extend to the rock and will provide space for the boiler plant and the necessary mechanical equipment. Plans were prepared by Carrere & Hastings, architects, with Shreve, Lamb & Blake as associates.

The facades will be of buff Indiana limestone in the style of the Italian renaissance, freely adapted to meet modern conditions, and will give the appearance of great strength and solidity. The first three stories will be treated with heavy rustications; the great mass of the building will rise fifteen stories above the ground or entrance floor, with a setback at the tenth floor on Beaver and New streets, as is required by the zoning law.

Above this, over the central portion of the building, will be a great tower twelve stories higher, surmounted by a colonade with a pyramidal roof and a finial composed of fourteen allegorical figures. The top of this finial will be about 480 feet above the street.

Big Broadway Frontage.

Included with this proposed addition, it is contemplated that the entire front wall of the present building, No. 26 Broadway, shall be replaced by one conforming with the new building, which will give a frontage on Broadway of more than 270 feet.

On the twenty-third floor will be squash courts, showers and locker rooms.

Sunday Closing on North Shore Almost Unanimous

The Sunday closing idea has spread among north shore realty men until, it was reported yesterday by a member of the North Shore Real Estate board, that, with one exception, every dealer has agreed to do no work on the first day of the week.

NORTH AVENUE BUILDING.

Ground has been broken for a $40,000 store and flat building on North avenue, fifty-eight feet west of Waller avenue, by Nicholas Zepp. He bought the site, 50x125, from Mills & Sons and the James N. Brown estate.

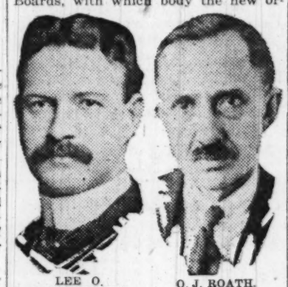
Building Permits

Fifteen building permits were issued yesterday, including:

2800-2830 N. Harding-av., 2 story brick factory, Floyd Manufacturing, owner, R. Gerhardt, arch.; Scharmer Construction Co., mason and carp., $100,000

DU PAGE COUNTY DEALERS ORGANIZE A REALTY BOARD

A group of the best known real estate men in Du Page county met Thursday evening in Wheaton's new restaurant and over the coffe and cigars organized the Du Page County Real Estate board. The action followed a speech by Tom Ingersoll, secretary of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, with which body the new organization at once affiliated. It will join the state association next week.



LEE O. FARNSWORTH.

O. J. ROATH.

O. J. Roath, of Lombard was elected president. Lee O. Farnsworth, of Glen Ellyn, was named vice president. George Weller of Elmhurst and M. Mack of West Chicago also were named vice presidents. E. M. Chase of Wheaton was elected secretary-treasurer.

"We're to meet Monday, March 14, in Naperville," said F. A. Jones, manager of the sales department of Lee O. Farnsworth, "and within a short time we expect to have every well known real estate man in the county in our organization. We'll have a vice president from each important town in Du Page county. Hinsdale at present is not represented at all, but we expect it will be on Monday, as well as all the other towns.

"By organizing we intend to put the real estate business of the county on a firmer basis and protect the buyer from misrepresentation and unfair dealing."

Some other members of the new body are: Roy B. Spalding and Mathias Klein of Glen Ellyn; H. L. Harrell of Wheaton, and several other realty men from Lombard and other towns.

More Forest Playgrounds Now Open to Chicagoans

More acres have been added to Chicago's outer park belt. The forest preserve commission has purchased the following tracts: Thirty acres north of Thirty-first street, between the Desplaines river and Salt creek, immediately north of the McCormick zoo grounds, from Michael K. Sheridan for $25,200.

Twenty-one acres on the Desplaines river, just north of North avenue, were bought from Adele D. Emerson for $15,750.

Other recent purchases were:

Seven acres, east of Desplaines river and south of Wheeling, from John Boekenhauer, $1,660.

Seven acres adjoining from Friedrich Nebel, $1,666.

Sixty-five acres, south of Calumet feeder and north of Ford road, in Palos township, from Charles Claffy, $13,858. The price included five small houses.

Twenty-one acres north of North avenue and west of Thatcher avenue on the Desplaines river, from estate of Charles T. Otis, $15,750.

NORTHWEST SIDE SUBDIVISION.

Arthur Dunas & Co. have subdivided thirty-six acres at the northeast corner of Elston and North Fifty-sixth avenues, and plan putting it on the market at once.

General live stock trade last week was in better condition than for some time past, due to smaller supplies, especially in hogs, and a good shipping outlet.

The week's average price of good beef cattle at $9.25 was the highest of the year and the average price of hogs at $10.35 was the highest since last November. The talk of possible labor trouble in Packingtown was the only drawback in the trade.

Week's Hog Run Small.

Week's receipts of hogs at 156,600, were the smallest in four months, while the estimated average weight at 237 lbs was the heaviest since last October, being 4 lbs heavier than the previous week and 7 lbs heavier than three weeks ago. The net supply for packers last week decreased 21,000.

Closing hog trade was strong, with a narrowing of the price range, the day's top at $11.40 being 20c below high time Friday, while the general average at $10.45 was unchanged, standing 45c above previous Saturday.

Exporters Buy Cattle.

Some export business early in the week and prospects of still more shipments to foreign ports in the near future comprised one of the strengthening factors in the cattle trade. The week's average price of good beef steers advanced 25c during the week.

An increase of 30,400 in the receipts of sheep and lambs during the week, compared with a week ago, held this branch of the trade back, but with smaller supplies in sight traders are looking for some improvement.

Receipts for next Monday are estimated at 19,000 cattle, 48,000 hogs, and 21,000 sheep, against 18,765 cattle, 49,724 hogs, and 18,279 sheep, corresponding Monday a year ago. Receipts for next week are estimated at 56,000 cattle, 150,000 hogs, and 65,000 sheep a year ago.

FINANCIAL NOTES

Dun's Review says with the advancing season there is some stimulation of activities in certain directions and an early opening of spring trade is foreshadowed. Broadly considered, however, the business situation still is marked by various unsatisfactory features. Failures last week numbered 293, compared with 311 in the preceding week and 120 in the corresponding week in 1920.

The Chicago Federal Reserve bank reports the weekly movement of credits as follows: Debits to individual deposit account reported for the week ending March 9, by 109 banks in twenty-four leading clearing house cities in the Seventh federal reserve district, aggregate $896,391,000, compared with $1,018,183,000 a week ago. Aggregate debits to individual deposit account reported by twenty-three clearing houses amounted to $894,335,000, compared with $1,114,303,000 for the corresponding week last year.

Southern roads report tonnage 11 to 15 per cent short of 1920 in the corresponding period. There is not much let-up on the grain movement to the gulf, corn increasing and wheat falling off slightly, but the coal movement is much smaller. There has been a moderate slump in general merchandise, the buying demand generally in the south being small.

The directors of the P. H. Hanes Knitting company have decided to pass the quarterly dividend on the A and B common shares. Three months ago quarterly payments of 2 per cent were ordered on these issues.

For the first quarter of 1921 dividends paid by New Bedford cotton mills average $3.11 per share in comparison with $5.50 in corresponding quarter of 1920. The amount distributed is placed at $1,574,234, against $2,421,935 for the first three months of last year.

CORPORATION EARNINGS

INTERNATIONAL MOTOR TRUCK.

For the year ending Dec. 31, 1920, net profit, after expenses, federal tax and inventory adjustment, was $2,644,013, equal, after preferred dividends, to $3.98 a share on the outstanding 283,108 shares common, no par, against $1,983,469, or $13.91 a share, on 70,777 shares common outstanding in 1919.

FREEPORT TEXAS.

The Freeport Texas company reports a deficit, after all charges, for 1920 of $38,982, compared with net income of $624,838, or $1.25 a share, in 1919. Profit and loss surplus as of Dec. 31 amounted to $4,481,601, against $4,599,581 in 1919.

MOTOR WHEEL CORPORATION.

The first report covering the ten months ended Dec. 31, 1920, shows net profits of $877,424 after deductions of all charges except federal taxes. After allowing $394,476 for depreciation of inventory and $49,092 for federal taxes, the amount available for the capital stock is $433,856. This, after payment of preferred dividends, equals 54 cents per share on the 450,000 shares of outstanding common stock.

SIMMS MAGNETO.

For the year ended Dec. 31, 1920, net income after deducting all expenses incident to operation, including ordinary repairs and maintenance of plants, depreciation, estimated federal taxes, was $71,661. This compares with $94,998 earned in 1919 and $74,414 in 1918. After deducting $70,000 for preferred dividends the balance for the year was $1,661, as compared with $22,748 in the previous year.

WARNER SUGAR.

The company's gross sales for the year ended Dec. 31, 1920, were $113,049,828, compared with $52,138,951 for the previous year. Net earnings after allowance for taxes, but before reserves and dividends, were $1,437,989, compared with $1,910,054 in 1919. The Warner company carried $627,372 to reserves, compared with $551,912 in the preceding year. Profit and loss surplus increased $799,809.

Atlantic Gulf Oil Suit Withdrawn in U. S. Court

New York, March 12.—Litigation brought by Henry C. Mount and others to restrain the Atlantic Gulf Oil corporation, Atlantic Gulf and West Indies Steamship lines, and Compania Petroleara de Tepetate of South America, from distributing profits on certain oil wells was withdrawn in the federal court today. An amicable understanding has been reached, it was announced.

The proceeding were to obtain a share of the earnings of the Atlantic Gulf Oil corporation, a subsidiary of the Atlantic Gulf and West Indies.

The plaintiffs claimed they entered into a contract with the Compania Petroleara de Tepetate in 1918, whereby they were to receive 5 cents for each barrel of oil produced by the company. Later this contract was assigned to the Atlantic Gulf Oil corporation.

CHICAGO CURB STOCKS

The weekly review of F. M. Zeller & Co. follows:

Local unlisted securities market was influenced by the decline in New York, the majority of issues reflecting losses for the week. Firestone Tire and Rubber common declined 20 points on the announcement of the passing of the dividend, but later improved to a close of 60 bid, 65 asked. The Goodyear issues were steady, preferred closing around 31 and the common at 13 to 14. Kellogg Switchboard and Supply was traded in between 36½ and 38½, closing at 36 bid, 38 asked, and Butler Brothers declined to sales at 34¼, but was wanted at this price with offerings at 34½, latest quotations. Moline Plow preferred was fairly active between 41 and 43, while Emerson Brantingham preferred changed hands at 35. United States Gypsum common was unchanged at 14⅜ to 15¼; preferred, however, was in demand, advancing to 86½ bid.

The motors were noteworthy for the strength displayed—Paige-Detroit improving to 20½ bid, 21½ asked, while Continental was traded in at 6¼, a fractional gain from previous quotations. Packard was steady at 11⅛ to 11⅜, and Stearns continued to sell between 22 and 23. Ford of Canada held its recent advance, being quoted 278 to 282. McCord common lost a point, changing hands at 5, but closed slightly better at 5⅛ to 5⅜.

DRY GOODS MARKETS.

NEW YORK, March 12.—Cotton goods market was quiet today. Finished goods for nearby delivery were firm; gray goods eased in some quarters without attracting business, and woolen goods made progress for the fall season. Fall cotton underwear will be opened next week. Silk was steady and burlaps unsettled.

METAL MARKETS.

NEW YORK, March 12.—COPPER—As low as 12c for electrolytic delivered, but the larger producers have not met these quotations, and today's prices were nominal at from 12c to 13c, depending upon the seller and delivery. Iron was unchanged.

Watch for Opening of Our New Building

AFTER almost a year and a half of construction our new home is now practically completed. Only the final touches remain to be done, and then we will open the doors of this magnificent new building.

The formal opening is going to fit in with a big celebration planned by the merchants, residents and industries of this community in connection with the installation of lights along Madison Street and the great program of development that is pushing Westcenter ahead as one of the foremost sections of Chicago.

We want our friends and customers from all sections of Chicago to be present at the opening—and we hope those who have not as yet become acquainted with our institution will also attend and have their "eyes opened," so to speak, on what this outlying Bank can do for them.

So watch for the opening date, which will be soon, and make your preparations to attend, for this will be an event of greatest importance in the history of outlying banking and the progress of not only the West Side but Chicago as a whole.

Steam Can Compete with Water.

The extortionate prices that were paid for coal during the war have left their impress on the investment market in the form of unsound ideas. The acute scarcity of coal, whether real or supposed, lasted long enough to make it seem normal to many investors who were too young to have had sad experiences with holdings of stock in bankrupt mines.

A generally accepted error arising from the war prices is that companies which furnish electric light and power produced from coal are hopelessly handicapped in competition with hydro-electric plants. The fact is that in the last few years before the war many water power plants were hard put to it in competition with steam. Improvements in steam engines had made them so efficient that they could produce electricity more cheaply than many hydro-electric plants. If the latter did not have the advantage of extra low original cost or great distance from a supply of coal the interest charges on the capital used in building them counterbalanced the cost of coal for the steam plant.

The price of coal has been declining in recent months. Whether it will drop low enough again to make the profitable operating of an average mine difficult cannot be predicted, but it is fairly certain to enable utilities using good steam plants to give keen competition to water power concerns.

Coal has had a position of exaggerated importance for several years past and is now getting back to where it properly belongs. This fact is basic in the study of securities.

GRAINS IGNORE BULL NEWS AND TUMBLE AT CLOSE

BY CHARLES D. MICHAELS.

Liquidation and lower prices marked the grain markets in the closing hour, although in the early trading prices advanced. The close was tame and at the inside figure. Bullish news cut no figure. The lack of outside buying support, with the discouragement toward the last of those who had tried to advance prices, was the market's undoing. Closing trades were at losses of 3@3¾c on wheat, ¼c on corn, ⅜c on oats, ¼@3½c on rye, July leading; ¾c on barley, 50c on pork, and 5c on lard, while ribs were unchanged to 5c higher.

Although sharp bulges have been on in grains at times during the last week, the week's finish was well toward the inside figures, with wheat off 11½@12c, corn 1½c, oats 3@3¾c, rye 6½@10½c, the latter on July; barley 2c, pork 35c, lard 45c, and ribs 15c, as compared with a week ago.

Wheat Has Early Bulge.

Wheat prices advanced 1¾c@2¾c early yesterday on buying based on reports of wet weather and higher prices in Argentina. Confirmation of 1,000,000 bu sold for export on Friday and the report that the Indian acreage in central provinces was 18 per cent short, also were factors.

Several large local traders were liberal early buyers of wheat, but later they turned to the selling side. Stop order selling became general from $1.53 down for May making a break to $1.50½. The leading elevator interest that is long March had it on the market openly and through brokers, the spread being 8@8½c.

The late break was started by a drop in March wheat in Minneapolis to 1c under May for the first time this season, with deliveries there of 400,000 bu on March contracts, which were taken by local and outside millers. Minneapolis offered round lots of No. 3 dark northern spring wheat here at equal to 9c under March, or better than a delivery basis.

Crop reports were generally favorable and, with the economic conditions, created extreme bearishness.

The corn trade was not a large affair, being dependent mainly upon the action of wheat, although losses were small with a range of 69@70c on May, and the finish at the bottom.

Green Bugs Help Oats.

Green bug damage in oats helped the market for a time, but prices declined 1c and May finished around 42⅜@43c. Crop prospects were favorable. The week's movement showed an increase at the primaries of 849,000 bu over last year.

Pressure was on July rye and it broke 3½c, with the close at $1.18, and May off only ⅜c.

Provisions felt the effect of selling by commission houses with the main support from the packers, but losses were small. Trading was mostly in lard. A fair export business has been done in lard and hams, with the latter up 1c. Pork loins were 3@7c lower, according to the previous packers, with the range 23@27c. Packing here since March aggregates 257,000 hogs, or 23,000 more than last year. Prices follow:

$15,000,000 Gold Bonds Authorized for C. & N. W.

Washington, D. C., March 12.—[Special.]—An issue of $15,000,000 fifteen year 6½ per cent secured gold bonds by the Chicago and Northwestern Railway company was approved today by the interstate commerce commission. The bonds will be taken by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. of New York at 95.40 and accrued interest.

The company was further authorized to issue $15,000,000 general mortgage bonds of 1987, bearing 5 per cent interest. These will be pledged with $3,000,000 similar bonds heretofore issued as security for the $15,000,000 issue of secured gold bonds.

The proceeds of the sale of the secured gold bonds will be used to retire $10,000,000 of the company's thirty year debenture bonds dated Feb. 28, 1891, which mature April 15, and $5,000,000 6 per cent consolidated first mortgage bonds of the Milwaukee, Lake Shore and Western Railway company which mature May 1.

GRAIN RECEIPTS DROP

Marketing of grain at Chicago fell off 332,000 bu last week with 7,170,000 bu received the loss of 514,000 bu of corn being a factor, with aggregate receipts of 4,844,000 bu. The arrivals were the largest at this time in four years and exceeded last year's by 3,172,000 bu. Wheat receipts increased 88,000 bu, being 412,000 bu for the week and were 261,000 bu over last year.

Primary receipts of all grains of 21,024,000 bu increased nearly 1,000,000 bu for the week and exceeded last year's by 8,275,000 bu and were 1,170,000 bu over the average. Wheat receipts of 5,795,000 bu increased 890,000 bu for the week and 2,223,000 bu over last year, while corn receipts were 9,953,000 bu, the largest at this time since 1918. They decreased 927,000 bu for the week and were 5,040,000 bu above last year's. The run of oats of 4,116,000 bu increased 1,067,000 bu for the week and exceeded last year's by 849,000 bu.

Grain shipments from Chicago for the week were 4,132,000 bu, a gain of 190,000 bu for the week and 1,800,000 bu over last year. In provisions the tonnage was 35,381 tons or 1905 tons more than the previous week, and 547,000 tons short of last year.

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

Export demand for cash wheat was again in evidence, with sales at the Gulf estimated at between 320,000 and 400,000 bu. There were inquiries in the market for liberal quantities after the close with the prospect of some business being done. Germany bought 200,000 bu corn at the seaboard on overnight offers.

Domestic shipping sales at Chicago were 15,000 bu wheat, 125,000 bu corn and 86,000 bu oats. There was 50,000 bu corn sold to the seaboard from an outside market.

Premiums on hard winter wheat were easy, with No. 2 hard down to around March price for line grades from Omaha. Arrivals from the latter market were 27 cars. Receipts, 64 cars. St. Louis was unchanged to 2c lower, with 20 cars carried over unsold. Kansas City was unchanged to 1c lower on hard, with some unsold at the last, while red was unchanged. Omaha declined 3@5c.

Offerings of cash corn were fair, but the basis was easy as compared with the May. No. 4 mixed sold at 9c under the future. Sample values were ¼@½c higher early, but closed easy. Receipts, 259 cars. Outside markets generally were unchanged to ½c higher.

No. 2 white oats on track sold at May price, with receipts 88 cars. Sample values were unchanged to ¼c higher, closing easy.

WORLD'S·GRAIN MARKET·NEWS

The impression among the conservative people in the grain trade is that, barring accidents to the wheat crop, it will take greatly increased export buying and a lighter country movement to sustain values around the present level. The one thing against all the grain markets is the light outside trade and the bearishness of the general public and the disposition to go slow on the buying side until there is something brought out that appeals to speculators in general to induce them to take hold.

There is to be a decreased movement of grain in the central west and west, as indicated by the loading reports of the various railroads. Farmers are not selling and are getting too busy in the fields. All the commission houses continue to report decreased offerings. It is said that the renters and movers have sold the bulk of their corn and that others are holding on.

The weekly weather forecast is for cold and unsettled with rains and snows over the greater part of the agricultural regions.

Pork loins, which were quoted as high as 36c yesterday, with 30c considered a high mark by many of the packers, were offered freely by one packer at 27c and by another at 23c. A local packer says the retailers loaded up early in the week and have been trying to get out.

Export trade in ..... and hams has improved. A local packer cleaned up surplus offerings of 14 to 16 lb hams Friday at around 20c. He says there is the best demand for lard that he has seen at this time in years. England is buying lard as there are light stocks over there. There are said to be 54,000,000 lbs of consigned lard on the way or to be shipped abroad. The Pacific coast is buying hog products freely as its supply of hogs is light. The Armour and Swift houses in Georgia are said to have been closed owing to the light supply of hogs. A Canadian shipper took 10 tanks of lard recently.

Samples of green bugs in destructive quantities were received yesterday from Wellington, Kas., by P. S. Goodman of Clement, Curtis & Co. The bugs were found in alfalfa fields near there, having been blown in by high winds from Oklahoma. The colony was an isolated one and so far no bugs have been found in either wheat or oat fields. Mr. Goodman says this is six weeks earlier than he has known the bugs to be found that far north.

It is expected that two of the Pillsbury mills at Minneapolis will resume operations Monday. A better demand is reported for flour.

A board of trade membership sold yesterday at $8,000 net to the buyer, an advance of $500 over recent sales.

TAX PAYMENTS EASILY MET BY RESERVE BANKS

BY O. A. MATHER.

The need for additional credit incident to payment of the first installment of federal income and profits taxes, due this week, is reflected in the weekly statements of the federal reserve banks, issued yesterday. It is noteworthy, however, that although the March 15 payment is expected to produce between $800,000,000 and $1,000,000,000, the reserve banks are being called on to carry only a small part of the load. Thus, the whole system last week showed an increase in loans of less than $27,000,000.

Accompanying the increase in loans was a considerable increase in deposits. In view of this double expansion the reserve system naturally could show no such improvement of position as has marked most of its weekly reports this year. The reserve ratio, however, remained almost constant, now standing at 50.9 per cent, compared with 42½ per cent a year ago and 45% per cent at the end of 1920.

Banks' Position Strengthened.

This comparatively high reserve gives a fair view of the present season's real strengthening in position of the banking system. Furthermore, the continuing defation of credit is clearly shown in a further decrease of nearly $7,000,000 in federal reserve note circulation. This is the largest reduction since the latter part of January, making a total decrease since the first of the year of $23,800,000, or nearly 10 per cent. In the corresponding period last year the net increase was $40,700,000.

The furnishing of credit for tax payments failed as usual on the larger reserve banks in whose localities are grouped the large business interests. Therefore, as might be expected, the New York and Chicago reserve institutions show the largest increases in loans and consequent, though slight, decline in reserve percentage.

Summary of Whole System.

The consolidated statement of the twelve federal reserve banks shows an increase in loans of $26,945,000, those on government obligations and those on commercial paper expanding $24,137,000 and $1,808,000 respectively. But as bills purchased in the market receded $17,396,000, total bills on hand increased only $3,549,000. Holdings of treasury certificates of indebtedness receded $2,006,000, so that total earning assets expanded only $5,542,000. The member banks increased their reserve account $26,065,000.

Gross deposits expanded $42,193,000, including an increase in government deposits of $24,880,000. Federal reserve note circulation receded $36,771,000. Gold reserves increased $24,816,000, while total reserves expanded $22,161,000.

The ratio of total reserves to net deposit and federal reserve note liabilities combined was 50.9 compared with 50.8 per cent in the preceding week, while the ratio of gold reserves to federal reserve note circulation, after setting aside 35 per cent against net deposit liabilities, was 59.9, compared with 59.3 per cent in the preceding week.

Chicago Report Analyzed.

The statement of the Chicago federal reserve bank shows an increase in loans of $9,261,752, those on government obligations and those on commercial paper expanding $450,250 and $8,811,509 respectively. Bills bought receded $1,044,411, so that total bills on hand increased $8,217,347. Total earnings assets expanded $8,168,847. The member banks increased their reserve account $905,335. Gross deposits receded $6,248,059, but government deposits increased $670,085. Federal reserve note circulation declined $6,630,360. Gold reserves receded $5,518,-000, and total reserves declined $6,009,-000. The item of contingent liability on bills bought for foreign correspondents increased $1,904,000.

The ratio of total reserves to net deposit and federal reserve note liabilities combined fell to 50.6 from 51.6 per cent in the preceding week, while the ratio of gold reserves to federal reserve note circulation, after setting aside 35 per cent net deposit liabilities, fell to 42.3 from 59.4 per cent in the preceding week.

New York Changes Shown.

The statement of the New York federal reserve bank shows an increase in loans of $29,373,500, those on government obligations and those of commerical paper expanding $15,815,100 and $13,558,400 respectively. Total bills on hand expanded $20,071,200. Total earning assets increased $28,112,000. The member banks increased their reserve account $22,547,-000.

Gross deposits expanded $42,396,600. Federal reserve note circulation receded $30,513,000. Gold reserves increased $11,-961,100 and total reserves expanded $9,055,700.

The ratio of total reserves to net deposit and federal reserve note liabilities combined fell to 41.8 from 42.2 per cent in the preceding week.

Clearing Banks' Reserve Up.

The New York clearing house banks made a considerably better showing, as might have been expected in view of the week's liquidation in the securities markets. Excess reserves expanded $30,-700,280, now standing at $34,683,830. This increase was largely the result of the member banks increasing their reserves at the federal reserve bank by $26,934,000. Aggregate reserves expanded $27,064,-000.

Loans receded $62,345,000. Demand deposits declined $28,025,000 and time deposits receded $2,047,000. Government deposits declined $19,577,000. The figures follow:

·CHICAGO·STOCK·TRANSACTIONS·

Chicago stocks showed some recuperative power in yesterday's week-end session. After a weak opport covering brought about an improved tone, although closing prices were irregular. Libby-McNeill led in activity and was about steady, as also was Stewart-Warner. Union Carbide gained about a point. The packing house shares were generally higher, Swift and Swift International advancing 1½ and a point respectively. The motor issues were weak, Shaw declining a point. On small sales Quaker Oats was off 5 points, Beaverboard 2, and United Paperboard a point. Wahl advanced 1⅛ and Sears-Roebuck gained a point.

"The Heart of the Home"

Holland Owners Are Our Best Salesmen

All of us know that never before have people demanded more conclusive proof of merit in the products they buy.

As a matter of fact, by far the strongest evidence of Holland superiority is in the actual possession of its users.

It is easy to understand that there must be unusual reasons of satisfactory service that voluntarily bring forth characteristic letters of praise from Holland owners such as are here reproduced.

The interest of these letters to you are the outstanding reasons for the universal good will toward Holland herein expressed. Note how they emphasize the superior qualities of economy, cleanliness and uniform heat, obtained by better design and material, conscientiously made and properly installed.

If you know a neighbor who has installed the Holland Heating and Circulating system we can ask nothing better as a measure of your judgment than the testimony of satisfaction we know he will gladly give you. If you do not happen to know a Holland user we will be very glad to furnish you names of them in your immediate neighborhood.

Then you will understand why the value of the HOLLAND name on the feed-door of your furnace is an insurance of permanent heating satisfaction, backed by our five-year guarantee bond.

The Holland Heating and Circulating system is not sold or installed through hardware dealers, tinsmiths or any other agents, it is planned and installed to fit each particular home by Holland Heating experts in the branches listed in the right-hand column. Call the Holland Branch for further information and references among your neighbors as to this "better furnace properly installed."

Pipeless Furnaces

We also make and install the Holland Improved Pipeless Furnace wherever in our unbiased opinion it is suitable for your purpose. We shall be glad to explain to you why this system is different and better in its more uniform distribution of heat and prevention of the floor drafts common to the one-register furnace. The Holland Furnace also has the advantage of being converted at any time into a pipe system.

All Holland Furnaces are sold on the easy payment plan with terms to suit your convenience.

Heats Two-Story Flat Building

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 7, 1920.—Ours is a two-story building on the northwest corner. We were never able to heat it properly in winter time. Since we have had your furnace installed we can keep the house comfortable in any weather. We are particularly pleased with your service and workmanship. Our tenants, too, are satisfied. You surely make "Warm Friends." —John Leydel, 58 West 110th Street.

Burns Any Kind of Fuel

Chicago, Ill., Feb. 21, 1919.—We are heating 7 large rooms and keep temperature up to 80 and 85 degrees in severest cold weather. The Holland is simple to operate, saves labor and will burn any kind of fuel with good results.—F. J. Keller, 142 West 11th Place.

Minister Endorses It

Chicago, Jan. 5, 1920.—The Holland Furnace has made "Warm Friends" of the entire Immanuel Reform Church congregation. It has kept us warm and comfortable in the severest weather.—L. Potgeter, Pastor.

Makes a House Into a Home

Chicago, Ill., Feb. 4, 1920.—Our home is like a different house since the Holland was installed. All rooms are evenly heated, cozy and warm. It is easy to operate. Would not be without a Holland Furnace again.—Alfred Nelson, 35 West 109th Street.

Installed Without Marring Plaster

Chicago, Jan. 3, 1920.—Just now with the temperature six below zero, we have no trouble keeping our 9-room house comfortable without any forcing. Your workmen who installed the Holland plant were especially neat—the job was done without, in any way, marring plaster or paint.—A. Van Kempema, 10925 Wabash Avenue.

Pleased With Installation

Chicago, Dec. 29, 1919.—I am pleased to state that installation and workmanship were done in a practical and workmanlike manner and as a result the furnace is O. K. in every respect.—Gostaf A. Selven, 34 W. 109th Street.

Neighbors Envy Holland Owner

Chicago, Jan. 3, 1920.—The furnace you installed is giving perfect satisfaction and a great many dissatisfied furnace owners in my neighborhood have come to see how splendidly my furnace was installed and how quickly we can get heat from it.—D. Schipperus, 43 W. 103rd Place.

Cheaper Than Stoves

Chicago, Jan. 3, 1919.—We are very glad to think we got your furnace before the cold weather set in. We believe it will be much cheaper than stoves and much better. It surely heats our 7-room flat; if we took out the ashes every day it would be too hot. I advise anyone who is thinking of putting in a furnace to let the Holland Company do it for them.—J. Laninga, 11423 Aberdeen Street.

Easy to Remove Clinkers

Homewood, Ill., Jan. 6, 1920.—This winter with the thermometer below zero, our house is as cozy a sit can be from one end to the other. One of Holland's greatest advantages is the easy way of removing clinkers.—E. F. Wiersema.

Preferred to Hot Water

West Pullman, Jan. 2, 1920.—I may safely say I am more satisfied with this furnace than I was with the hot water plant I had before. For one thing I get better heat and quicker and for another I use less coal.—Dan Bermer, 11548 Perry Avenue.

Recommended for Cozy Homes

Chicago, Jan. 14, 1920.—Our Holland Furnace has proven a very satisfactory heating system and we take great pleasure in recommending it to anyone who wishes a cozy, warm, comfortable home.—Clara A. De Witt, 1124 Michigan Avenue.

True Holland Economy

Battle Creek, June 4, 1920.—I have used a Holland three years without finding a single defect or drawback to it. I found it to be the most economical heating plant I have ever seen. During the winter of 1916-17 we burned 5½ tons of soft coal, and during the severe winter of 1917-18 we used less than 7½ tons. I will never install any but a Holland Furnace.—Yours, a "Holland Booster," Nellie M. Barton.

Burns Every Kind of Fuel

Battle Creek, Mich., May 27, 1920.—Have used the Holland for three years without repairs, burning hard coal, coke, Pocahontas mine run and other kinds of fuel. It is well installed and we would not expect a furnace to do more for us than it has done.—Newman A. Buck, 107 Sharon Avenue.

Cleans Itself Automatically

Battle Creek, Mich., May 17, 1920.—In these times when one is compelled to burn soft coal at times it is just the furnace, as you can burn soft coal in a Holland Furnace the best of any make known. The big ring burns out the soot and cleans itself very nicely, giving you a clean furnace at the pleasure of the operator. I cannot speak too highly of your furnace. —J. Carl Gaw.

Sixty Per Cent Less Fuel

Augusta, Mich., May 22, 1920.—The Holland Furnace you installed in my home four years ago has heated our eight-room home to a very even temperature at about 60 per cent of the cost for fuel that our neighbors are paying to heat homes not as large as ours.—F. G. Walkinshaw.

Even Heat Through the House

Council Bluffs, Ia., Dec. 15, 1920.—When it was away below zero last winter our home was like summer, and the heat was even in all parts of the house. And we used less coal by far than we thought we would use. I cannot recommend your furnace and your carefully planned circulation too strongly. The time and care used in laying out a perfect heating plant certainly shows in the service we get. I am convinced it is the best heating plant for any home.—Geo. W. Stoatmeister, 109 4th Street.

Heats Every Room

Council Bluffs, Ia., Dec. 17, 1920.—We are perfectly satisfied with our Holland Furnace. It heats every room perfectly and holds heat for long periods without attention. Ours is a difficult house to heat and required unusual care in the installation, but every problem was solved. We believe we have the best heating plant money can buy.—Albert Brown, 107 Park Avenue.

Not One Moment's Discomfort

Council Bluffs, Ia., Dec. 5, 1920.—We have not experienced one moment's discomfort—even in the most severe weather. The installation is perfect. Were I to build 100 houses I certainly would equip them all with our "Warm Friend," The "Holland."—F. C. Clausen, 2926 Ave. C.

No More Coal Than A Stove

Council Bluffs, Ia., Dec. 4, 1920.—We are more than pleased with our Holland Furnace. We have a five-room house and I do not believe we will use as much coal in the Holland as we would in a heating stove and then we would not get the heat we do with the Holland. If we were building another house, would not have anything but a Holland Furnace.—F. C. Smith, 3402 Ave. D.

This Is Holland Service

Council Bluffs, Ia., Dec. 6, 1920.—You have your one-piece seamless radiator on top and where it will receive and radiate the most heat. I have looked over a number of other makes and the Holland looked to me like the most scientifically built furnace. I believe it to be made of the proper metal and heavy enough to endure for years. Has few dampers to regulate and they are all at one part of the furnace where they are so easy to get at if any new parts should be necessary. The fire box is ample for all my needs. You have convinced me, Mr. Baker, that you understand the heating business and know the proper way of piping a house for furnace heat in the painstaking care you took in taking measurements of my home and noting all the openings and window exposures. Now since the furnace has been installed, it gives most complete satisfaction.—C. E. Herwig, 370 Lincoln Ave.

Never Had Any Trouble

Modale, Ia., Nov. 29, 1920.—We had a Holland installed in October, 1919, and never had any trouble keeping our eight-room house warm throughout all last winter. I would recommend the Holland as the best furnace on the market.—Mrs. H. M. Jackson.

Heats a Duplex Comfortably

Davenport, Ia., Jan. 5, 1921.—We went through the winter of 1919-20 heating a large double house (duplex) with this one furnace and no one could have asked for a more comfortable place to live in—it has also proved very economical on fuel, and I certainly congratulate myself on having been introduced to the "Holland."—M. B. Hansen, 314 Oak Street.

Stands Up Under Fire

Evansville, Ind., Dec. 24, 1920.—Five years ago my home was almost destroyed by fire in mid-winter, with much loss by water and freezing. Everyone told me that the furnace would have to be replaced, but upon examination we found that the only replacement necessary were new grates. From that time on, as before, I have never had one ounce of trouble in keeping my home at a very comfortable temperature.—Lulu B. McInnerney, 421 Monroe Street.

Good Service Back of a Good Product

Evansville, Ind., Nov. 29, 1920.—We are pleased beyond all expectations, and assure you that we will have no hesitancy in recommending the Holland Furnace and your efficient and courteous service to any of our friends who might be contemplating the installation of a furnace.—Allen E. Dean.

Confidence Based Upon Service

Sioux Falls, S. D., Dec. 31, 1920.—The new No. 45 Holland Furnace has been in for some time, and we have more heat than we need. We burn less coal than we did before. The way the Company has treated us, and the material that is in the furnace, we are certain could not do anything else but give it the best recommend, as we are well pleased with the treatment and the furnace. We expected to pay lots more than we did for the difference in the furnaces. Believe Mr. Stockenberg, the Agent here, will do all he agrees to.—M. MacGregor.

This Is True Holland Efficiency

University Place, Neb., 509 West 18th St.—After investigating several makes of pipeless furnaces I installed in my six room house one of your Improved Pipeless furnaces, for several reasons. First, because of your system of drawing the cold air from each side of the house through pipes to the bottom of the furnace, thus avoiding cold feet, as is usual with the ordinary make where the cold and hot air pass through the same floor opening. Second—because of the heavy construction of the heating drum, which sends up a steady volume of heat for hours—also the manner in which the heat is made to pass around it—thus utilizing all of it instead of losing part of it up the chimney. I had no trouble in keeping my entire house warm all night at 10 degrees below zero. The fuel consumption is low, as I have used but a little over two tons up to the middle of January. Third—the cone-shaped rocking grate is an exclusive feature which cannot be praised too highly—the ease with which the ashes and clinkers are removed makes it a pleasure to operate. My three-year-old son can shake the ashes out very easily as the roller bearings on the grate minimizes the effort required. For durability, ease of operation, economy and absolute comfort in the most severe weather, I do not see how a better furnace could be made.—Very truly, A. G. Pitcaithley. Jan. 14, 1921.

Heats Large Garage

Moline, Ill., Dec. 31, 1920.—The heating plant installed by Mr. Freed is perfectly satisfactory. This garage is 50x100 feet, and has 70,000 cubic feet of air space with a sales room 75 feet from the furnace. During the recent cold weather we had no difficulty in keeping warm. On the morning of the 28th when the thermometer was ten below outside I found it to register forty inside and after firing for one hour it rose to seventy.—Day's Garage, Fred C. Day.

Pompeian Beauty Powder

Do You Look As Young As Your Husband?

How anxiously a woman asks herself this question—and how needlessly—for she can retain all the soft, lovely coloring of her first blushing youth by using the complete "Pompeian Beauty Toilette."

"Absence Can Not Hearts Divide"

First, a touch of fragrant Pompeian DAY Cream (vanishing). It softens the skin and holds the powder. Work the cream well into the skin so the powder adheres evenly. Then, apply Pompeian BEAUTY Powder. It makes the skin beautifully fair and adds the charm of delicate fragrance. Now, a touch of Pompeian BLOOM for youthful color. Do you know that a bit of color in the cheeks makes the eyes sparkle with a new beauty? Lastly, dust over again with the powder, in order to subdue the Bloom. Presto! The face is beautified and youth-i-fied in an instant! (Above 3 preparations may be used separately or together. At all druggists, 60c each.)

TRY NEW POWDER SHADES. The correct powder shade is more important than the color of dress you wear. Our new NATURELLE shade is a more delicate tone than our Flesh shade, and blends exquisitely with a medium complexion. Our new RACHEL shade is a rich, warm tone for darker skins. See offer on coupon.

Pompeian BEAUTY Powder—naturelle, rachel, flesh, white. Pompeian BLOOM (a rouge that won't crumble)—light, dark, medium. Guaranteed by the makers of Pompeian MASSAGE Cream (60c), for oily skins; Pompeian NIGHT Cream (50c), for dry skins; Pompeian FRAGRANCE (30c), a talcum with a real perfume odor.

At Last—Dandruff Ends

War Discovery Does It Easily

Quick healing antiseptic, originally invented for wounds. Wonderful for skin eruptions or itching anywhere. Free trial proves it.

To really end dandruff, dissolve a few Kloria Tablets in water and simply wet the scalp thoroughly with it. The results from the first application will prove how easily this scalp disease can be ended by a few of these simple treatments. It stops the annoying itching instantly and is as harmless to the hair as water.

This is the same wonderful antiseptic agent discovered in the war, which healed wounds often in one-fourth the usual time, and conquered infection where all old-standard antiseptics had failed.

Kloria doesn't smart, is soothing, pleasant and absolutely safe, because not poisonous. Yet by scientific test it is over 40 times more germ-destroying than carbolic acid.

Never before was there an antiseptic so healing, so effective in destroying germs, and with so many uses in every home.

Compare Kloria with anything ever used for eczema, itching, skin eruptions, irritations. Note how quickly wounds, sores, boils, and burns heal. Test it for pyorrhea (sore, bleeding gums), and notice how promptly the soreness and bleeding disappear, usually in one week. Try it for mouthwash and gargle—see how quickly it relieves sore throat—how clean the mouth feels. Harmless, yet far more effective than poisonous antiseptics for personal hygiene.

Dissolve a few Kloria Tablets in water and instantly you have, at a cost of a few cents, a large bottle of liquid antiseptic which is clean, colorless, stainless and virtually odorless.

All druggists, 50c. Money refunded if not satisfied.

FREE SAMPLE

Write us for a free sample, enough for a convincing test. The results will be a revelation.

MEMORIALS OF HUNGARY'S "LOST PROVINCES"

Striking Monuments Erected in Budapest to Symbolize the Four Territories Taken Away by the Peace of Trianon.

The Statue of the North—the Kurutze hero and the Slovak child defending the figure of the fainting Hungaria.

The Statue of the South—Hungarian man and Swabian woman guarding the corn, symbolic of Hungary's granary.

The Statue of the East—Prince Csaba, the ancient duke of Hungarian folk lore, defending the province of Transylvania.

The Statue of the West—a stalwart figure representing Hungary protecting the fainting youth of West Hungary.

LIKE THE STRASSBURG STATUE IN PARIS, which for so many years represented Alsace-Lorraine to France, these four statues now stand in the Square of Liberty at Budapest, symbolizing Transylvania, North Hungary, West Hungary, and the South Lands —all lost to Hungary proper as a result of the great war. The monuments are the work of four eminent Hungarian sculptors—Sidlo, Strobl, Pasztor, and Szentgyorgyi—and were erected with funds collected by an organization known as the Association of Leagues Defending Hungary's Territorial Integrity. The unveiling took place on Jan. 20.

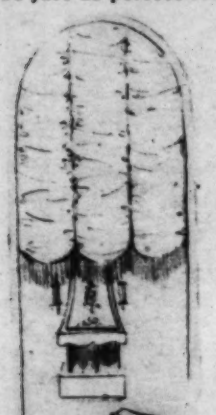
Women Everywhere are using this beautiful La-may Vanity Box!

NOW you can use a face powder that cannot spill. The powder is in cake form, covered with porous cloth. You can drop it on the floor and the compact will be just as perfect for use. You wipe the puff on the cloth covering of the compact and the powder comes through as needed. You could powder your nose in the dark and you would not get too much powder, and you are sure not to spray your clothes with powder. This new, perfect way to use face powder was invented by the specialist who perfected the famous, harmless La-may Powder. There are two qualities of packages. Both are very flat and convenient to carry. One box with compact and puff sells for fifty cents. The other, a German Silver Gold Plated Vanity Box with hinged cover and two-inch mirror, containing compact and flat lamb's wool puff, sells for one dollar and fifty cents. This beautiful La-may Vanity Box looks like solid gold and will not tarnish. It will last a lifetime. The La-may compact in the La-may Vanity Box contains enough pure La-may Powder to last for generous use for about two months. When La-may Vanity Box is empty you refill it by asking your dealer for a fifty-cent La-may compact. The compact and puff from the fifty-cent package is made to fit the La-may Vanity Box. Ask your face powder dealer to show you this splendid new idea. Remember, here, at last, is an entirely new idea in face powder. The powder cannot spill and it comes out so evenly you could powder your face in the dark. La-may Face Powder is also sold in the loose form for thirty-five cents and sixty cents. La-may is guaranteed absolutely pure and harmless. Because it is pure, and because it stays on so well, it is now used by over a million American women. If your dealer refuses to get you a La-may Vanity Box, you may order by mail from Herbert Roystone, 16 East 18th St., New York City. There is also a delightful La-may Talcum that sells in a beautiful large package for only thirty cents.



The New Hair Waver Curler and Barrette

TRADE "Aurora" MARK

Vice-Versa (Reversible) Waver

THOSE lovely, soft waves you envy may be yours with "Aurora" Wavers. NO HEAT REQUIRED. They do the work while you dress, read or sleep. In a short time you have a fluffy natural wave: To make a curl, wind dampened hair around both your finger and part of curler, lock the curler, withdraw finger, and you have a perfect curl. Two colors: Shell and Amber.

If not at your dealer's, send 25 cents for a card of three.

JOSEPH W. SCHLOSS CO. Fifth Avenue at 21st Street, N.Y.

Liquid Silmerine Keeps the Hair Beautifully Wavy and Glossy

Try the Silmerine way and you will have just the prettiest curls and waves! The waviness will appear altogether natural, and will last ever so long. You won't be troubled any more with hair stringing around your face—nor with burnt, uneven ends. Your hair will be bright and lustrous, instead of dull and dead looking. Smart women now consider Silmerine a real necessity. Easily applied with a brush. Is neither sticky nor greasy. Perfectly harmless. A $1 bottle lasts many weeks.

Phelactine Keeps the Face Hair-Free

A boon to women disfigured with superfluous hair or fuzz, because it actually removes the roots! Easily, quickly, harmlessly. Not a caustic, to merely burn off the surface hair. Not a depilatory. Not electrical. It is "different," and truly wonderful. No odor, no irritation, no scar—skin is left clean, white and smooth. Get a stick of Phelactine today, try it, and you will be surprised and delighted.

Mercolized Wax Keeps the Face Young

Shedding worn-out skin is Nature's way of renewing the complexion. When this process lags, a bad complexion results. Then Mercolized Wax comes to the rescue. Actually absorbs the aged, faded or soiled top skin, in tiny particles, day by day, causing no inconvenience. The fresh, bright, health-tinted skin, which has been covered up, soon is revealed in all its beauty, and the face looks much younger. One ounce of Mercolized Wax usually suffices.

Saxolite Keeps Away the Wrinkles

Dissolve one ounce of Powdered Saxolite in one-half pint of witch hazel, and you have an effective and harmless wrinkle remover. Bathing the face in this quickly tightens and tones up the skin, erasing every line. Remarkably effective for flabby skin. Gives a tired, care-worn face a freshened feeling and appearance.

These splendid products are sold by Druggists and at Toilet Counters everywhere. If your dealer happens to be out of any of them, please ask him to get some from his wholesaler.

FAIRE BINNEY, one of the most cuddlesome of the leading ladies, is a sister of Constance. The last picture you saw her in was "The Frontier of the Stars," in which she supported Thomas Meighan.

Little Miss Binney is a New York girl—born in 1901. She was educated in Concord, Mass. Her screen career started under the direction of Maurice Tourneur, in whose "Sporting Life" both she and her sister appeared. She has been seen since in various other pictures, among which was "Here Comes the Bride," with John Barrymore.

She has brown hair, hazel eyes, barely tips the scales at 106, and is five feet one inch tall. Nice armful—yes?

Mae Tinee.

OLIVE TELL, who was "legitimately" in our midst in "Cognac," is proudly claimed by screen as well as stage. That's why her picture is given you today in the "movie" layout.

She was last seen on the silver sheet in "Worlds Apart" with Eugene O'Brien.

You have another picture and her biography in your albums.

The GREATEST LIVING VOLCANO

Remarkable new photographs of one of the most picturesque American possessions—the crater of Kilauea, Hawaii's famous "Lake of Fire."

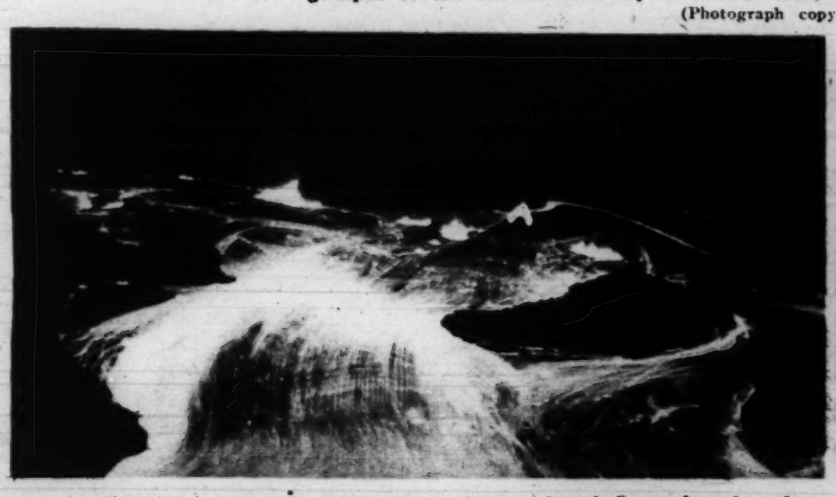
(Photograph copyright by I. Mopihiro.)



A splendid night exposure which shows the trend and flow of molten lava across the floor of the crater.

The pit at night—a one minute exposure. The black central mass is one of the rapidly formed islands of cooling lava.

This twilight picture shows clearly the fountains of bright red lava which break out all the time on the surface of the lake.

A lava formation which hardened in a cascade. Molten lava solidifies at a drop of only two degrees in temperature.

THE HUGE CRATER OF KILAUEA was unusually active during the month of January. The lava rose to within a few feet of the top, though ordinarily its surface is 100 feet or more below the rim, and the great, glowing lake of fire gave off fountains and cascades of living flame. The crags seen in several of the pictures sometimes grow to a height of 90 feet in a day, and then disappear entirely within the next twenty-four hours. Lava is a fiery molten mass at 2000 degrees Fahrenheit and solidifies at 1998 degrees, so that a slight wind or drop in temperature will cool it sufficiently to form these islands. A hot lava flow is firm enough to walk on half an hour after it begins to harden, though it is apt to burn the feet. Since 1912 Prof. T. A. Jaggar Jr. of Harvard has been in charge of the Volcano Research association and has watched the behavior of Kilauea night and day.

HERALDING THE FASHIONS OF SPRING

IT'S to be a thing of delightfully feminine inconsistencies—Milady's wardrobe for the new season. Frocks dignifiedly long and slender will rub elbows with frocks frivolously short and billowy. Frocks quite frankly of continental peasant inspiration will consort with others of such aristocratic ancestry as the Spanish grandee's gala costume. But whatever its mood or its tense, the sine qua non of the smart frock is an exquisite fabric, and that is why Fashion smiles with especial favor on the frock of Cheney Silk.

Stores with a reputation for fine merchandise will be quite sure to sell Cheney Silks, either by the yard or in garments ready to wear.

Beautify Your Hair with "DANDERINE"

35c a bottle! Freshen your scalp! Stop falling hair! Remove dandruff! Have lots of wavy, glossy, beautiful hair! You can!

IF YOU care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair; besides, it eradicates every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its luster, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp, the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy, or too oily, get a bottle of Knowlton's Danderine, apply a little as directed, and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually, why not now?

SPRING SILHOUETTE SHOWS BUT FEW CHANGES

By CORINNE LOWE

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—No matter how economical we are, we simply aren't allowed to have it show. The Paris openings are now over. The modes for spring are declared. What is the result? Simply this: We are going to wear just about the same thing this summer that we did all winter, and, as we wore all winter practically what we did throughout last summer, you can see the dowdiness for detection when we don our old frock of three seasons ago.

Poor old Dame Fashion! She does remind us of the ancient and bronchial hand organ. Just as that instrument denies the possibilities of melody to anything save "The Miserere" and "The Last Rose of Summer," our venerable dictatress can't be persuaded to put on any other records save the long waist line, the short skirt, the chemise frock, and the 1850 dance frock.

All of this is most disappointing, especially so in view of those rosy rumors regarding the probability of the Directoire mode being launched this spring. Directoire! We should say mostly indirectoire, for only a few of the famous French houses gave any attention to the characteristic short waist and long, slim skirt, or, for the matter of that, to the famous boleroyable coat.

One of the few suggestions of this mode was brought out by Lanvin in the form of a triple shoulder cape lined with contrasting color, which is made, as a rule, detachable from the frock itself.

Aside from this there were a few timid efforts to vary the silhouette. Some of the foreign designers have tried out the circular skirt. Others made further experiments with the princess. And perhaps the most sensational of all developments was launched by the famous house of Madeleine et Madeleine. After seeing this new silhouette of these artists one takes up enthusiastically the version of the firm name made by one American buyer.

"Mad and Madder"—this was the way he put it. Just just wait until that new silhouette begins to percolate through the land—you'll think so, too. What does it do? Well, it prolongs the waist line, not only to the hips but to the knee line. Really, the thing looks like one of those transcontinental railroad tickets or a fishing line. There ought to be something to wind it up on.

As for the poor, underfed little skirt, enforced by a carriage like this—well, you can just imagine how it appears. No poor relative sitting on the threshold of the wealthy cousin could ever look so anxious to please.

Speaking as a whole, however, the difference between this spring's frock and last fall's frock is determined only by detail of finish. Among the trimmings we hears of quite a few novelties.

Cheruit, for example, has been playing marbles and with large beads of marblelike physique to various of her creations. Lanvin's contribution is forget-me-nots done in some hard substance. One of the French houses offers a straw fringe which resembles ostrich flues. Renee has been busy on new versions of her famous applique designs.

There is a new artificial silk lace coming in black or color which is used for entire frocks by the French union. And braids of all varieties are applied ad infinitum. Also, there are some novel and startling combinations of fabric. And Lanvin, that greatest of all sleeve composers, has originated a new sleeve slit all the way down and caught in at the wrist.

We present on this page today four new garments, which, though not of Paris inspiration, show some of the leading fashion tendencies of the season. At the right, for example, is a navy serge frock made with black satin underskirt and a white georgette vestee. This is confined by a narrow, picoted belt of self-material, and the season's fancy for braids is indicated simultaneously with the season's fancy for waist lines. The braid here is shaded black and green. And, by the bye, it is an exceedingly French thing to do—to have your black costume combined with emerald green.

Once upon a time duvetyn was limited to the winter months. Now it is a hardy, blooming every minute perennial. The fact of it is that many of the new design on the sleeves carried out in embroidery. To-spring wraps, suits, and even evening frocks are of this fabric. It is true, the material is somewhat mollified for hot weather wear, but the effect remains just the same.

Second from the right we behold one of these duvetyn coats occurring in gray and sashed with black satin. A year ago we should have found the day, however, the motifs are sounded in cut work, a note found today in some of the smartest wraps and frocks. Here the fabric is operated upon to show a green and black stripe satin underneath.

CAPETOWN is no longer confined to Africa. That it has no geographical limitations is shown by the numberless garments of this kind appearing today. Second from the left we find a stunning sports skirt in camel's hair—tan with checking of king's blue—which foregoes the coat in favor of this adjunct. At the left the fashionable box coat is in cherry colored flannel with embroidery of black and steel beads to carry out the cherry stripe in the white flannel shirt. At the right a navy serge and black satin combination is enlivened by shaded braid in black and emerald; and, last, a gray duvetyn coat, sashed in black satin, displays on its wide sleeves the present passion for cut work.

And just while we think of it! The Buttoning Husbands' union will be in a mood to heed the revolutionary advice of the first demagogue that comes along. For from Paris comes the inflaming news that one of the great designers has just invented a coat that buttons all the way down the back.

Once upon a time one was taught that Capetown was in Africa. Believe me, however, there are now no geographical limitations upon this colony. Capetown exists wherever there is fashion, whether it be in Butte, Mont., or Something-or-Other, Brazil.

The smartest cape of the season, as it is presented by Paris, fits snug about the neck and shoulders, and billows out below that. This effect is particularly stunning in the many taffeta capes now appearing. These silken models, by the way, are at present frequently trimmed with ruchings or quillings of self-material and—by the French particularly—with those of cire ribbon.

Among the cape specialists of the French designers Cheruit scores a particular success with her two tinted chiffon wraps trimmed with chinchilla. Indeed, this summer we are permitted to set off either cape or coat of crepe de chine, chiffon, or georgette with some kind of fur. But, to go back to Cheruit, she has also applied herself to some stunning woolen capes carried out in invisible checks of the softest and most harmonious tints.

These checked woolen capes and checked woolen suits have been much worn in the south this winter. In the costume second from the left we show a cape skirt suit of camel's hair in checked tan and king's blue.

The last figure on the page illustrates the box coat and sports skirt combination which has been so widely worn in the south this winter. As a rule, the alliance has been accomplished with white skirt in either wool or silk and a jacket in some vivid tint, the latter frequently covered by an all over design in embroidery.

Here, however, the skirt, instead of being all white, is striped with the cherry tint which prevails in the jacket. The whole costume is carried out in flannel, which has come into more prominence this season than ever before. For a time the white flannel skirt maintained this favor alone, but now one sees more and more of the colored stripe surface. The coat of this costume is embroidered in black and steel beads.

BRICK AND STUCCO CONTRAST.

HOUSE HUNTING, whether in a book of designs or in actual fact, brings out the difference between the sexes. The man sizes up a house as he sizes up his casual acquaintances—by outward appearance. If a building puts up a good front, he is willing to be friendly until he finds some reason to be otherwise.

The woman looks deeper. Knowing the house as working quarters for herself and living quarters for the whole family, she pays attention first of all to the floor plans; to closet space, light, convenience, privacy; and often has to correct her husband's too hasty judgment. He usually surrenders to discretion; and his sole chance to get even comes in the matter of construction.

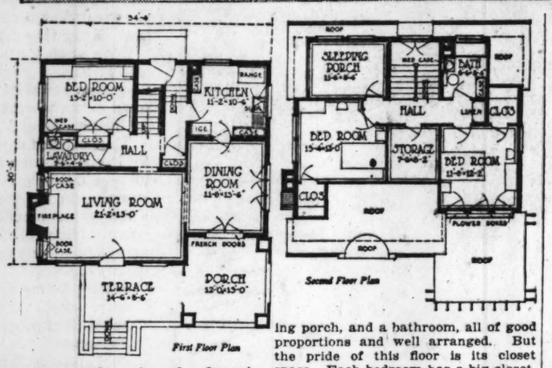
These men, for obvious reasons, are usually better informed than their wives, and by the time friend husband has finished commenting on the structural weakness of some building with an attractive floor plan, he is on good terms with himself once more, and ready to do anything his wife wants.

No sex disputes could arise over this house, however. Outside, it is charming, and inside it is practical and livable to an unusual degree. If the husband feels inclined to dig into structural matters—as he should—he will find his favoring first impression more than confirmed. The walls of this bungalow are of hollow tile, covered with stucco, the roof is of asphalt shingles, the interior is finished with gypsum plaster on metal lath. There is nothing here to criticize, wear out, or burn down.

On outer view, one of the first things to attract attention is the contrast of the brick porch wall and ground courses with the stucco of the main part of the house. It is also one of the most delightful features of the building, and one which should be widely copied or adapted. With our present wealth of permanent building materials we ought to make much more use of this contrasting color than we do.

Another noteworthy feature is the lifted dormer at the corner; and the open terrace before the entrance door and the curved hood over it are two more. The terrace adds much to the light of the living room, while a covered porch beside it furnishes a place where the family can sit out of doors in stormy weather.

The entrance door opens directly into a large living room, 21 feet by 13. At one end is the ample fireplace, flanked by low bookcases with windows above them. There is only one door in the inner long wall, so that plenty of space is afforded for the larger articles of furniture. Opposite the fireplace is a broad opening into the dining room, 11½ by 13½ feet. This room has French doors opening on the covered porch, and a fine window group in the outer wall.



Back of the dining room, with no intervening butler's pantry, is the kitchen. This is 10½ feet by 11, and is fitted with cases and cabinets in lieu of a pantry. It is uncommonly well lighted, and, aside from the opening to the living room, has only one door, that leading into the rear hall. This gives access to the service entrance, to the basement, and, toward the front, to the main hall, passing a convenient closet on the way.

The main hall contains the stairs leading to the upper story. Next to the staircase is the door to the ground floor bedroom, 13 feet by 10, with cross ventilation and a good closet. Next to this bedroom, also opening from the hall, is a lavatory and toilet. The saving of time and steps afforded by this arrangements of rooms needs no comment.

Upstairs are two bedrooms, a sleeping porch, and a bathroom, all of good proportions and well arranged. But the pride of this floor is its closet space. Each bedroom has a big closet, there is a linen press opening on the hall, and a fine storage room for trunks.

For most modern families three bedrooms are enough. If more are required, the sleeping porch can be turned into a room. Another change that would cost almost nothing is to make the porch roof into a broad upstairs balcony, reached by a French door in the lifted dormer. But without any changes whatever, this is a beautiful, practical, durable, and safe home.

LOVE LETTERS

The Tribune will pay $5 for every love letter published. So, if you can write a good one, or if you have one in your private or family possessions you would like to enter in the contest, send it to Doris Blake, The Tribune, Chicago. As no letters will be returned, send copies of the ones you wish to retain possession of.

PARTED.

DEAR Butterfly: Can you imagine being almost to heaven and then being taken away, or can you imagine some priceless treasure just within your grasp, then having it snatched away? I assume that you know what I mean by that. Just a moment ago I was looking over some letters, which have been dear to me, as they were all that I possess in remembrance of a dear little "Butterfly," who at one time belonged to me, and for whom I shall always long.

Love is queer, girlie, but I do not believe one can fool the heart. Often, O so often, do I see a loving face, lips parted, brave pretty pleading eyes looking at me; the moonlight gleaming on golden tresses and in my ears, that soft caressing, half audible murmur "I love you."

Oh, Love, won't you come back to me? I can not, I will not let you go. I cannot forget. Every word you spoke comes back to haunt me. Everything you did. Every smile you gave me, I see; I hear them every day. How, O how, can I forget? Love cannot be cheated that way?

I have a vision of a happy home and you. Is it, must it be, might it be? Am I to be deprived of a heart that was meant for me? Some one must answer this. Let your heart and conscience tell you what to do. I think it will come out all right in the end. Right always does. Do you feel that you can go on as you have since we parted? Is your heart really and truly another's?

Won't you let me see my girl just once more? Just for a few minutes? If you will, the two hundred miles that separate us will be nothing to the pleasure of the meeting.

Always and ever yours. F. K.

REAL LOVE STORIES

Do you know a real love story—one that is stranger than fiction? It is the idea that is wanted. No attention will be paid to literary style. The Tribune will pay $5 for every story published. No manuscripts returned. Address Doris Blake, The Tribune, Chicago.

A PROPOSAL IN THE AIR.

HE was restless after the war, where he had been a lieutenant in the air service. They said he made a good airman because he was afraid of nothing. Like many others, peace seemed to him too quiet—he was unable to settle down.

Finally he persuaded his father to buy an airplane. His idea was to travel over the country with a pal of his to advertise a certain well known brand of clothing. He convinced the manufacturers of the saneness of the idea, and it was arranged that he was to receive a commission on all orders received from towns which filed orders the week he was there.

In Texas he met a girl. He had been forced to land in a field several miles from a town. As they were trudging to town a machine came along with a pretty young girl in it. She gave them a lift to town. It was a small Texas town, with no decent hotel in it, so the girl persuaded her mother to let the two men stay at her home. A week passed before the part for their machine came from the factory.

During that time Bob fell madly in love with the girl. The day they were to leave he took Dorothy up to fly, and asked her to marry him. She promised to. A month later he came for her, and they eloped in the airplane. He has settled down now, and is a most staid member of society. H. R.

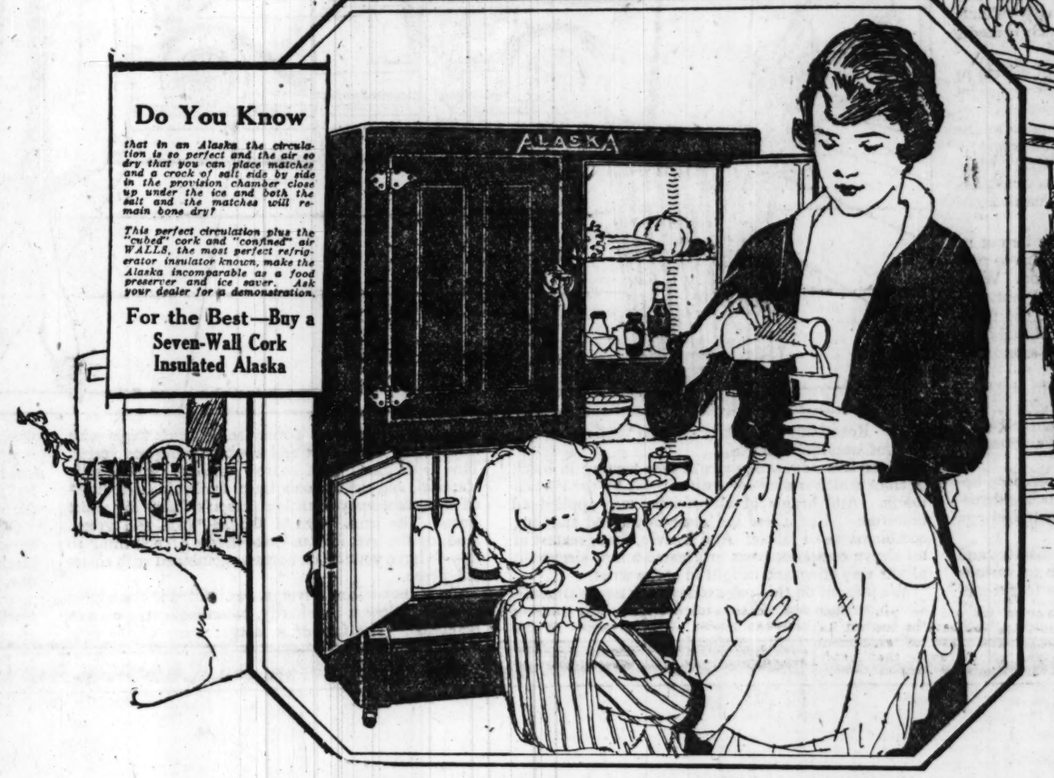
Do You Know that in an Alaska the circulation is so perfect and the air so dry that you can place matches and a crock of salt side by side in the provision chamber close up under the ice and both the salt and the matches will remain bone dry?

This perfect circulation plus the "cubed" cork and "confined" air WALLS, the most perfect refrigerator insulator known, make the Alaska incomparable as a food preserver and ice saver. Ask your dealer for a demonstration.

For the Best—Buy a Seven-Wall Cork Insulated Alaska



It's a Safe "Kiddy" Whose Mother Uses the Alaska

To have healthful food means that summer or winter it must be kept in a dust-proof repository where the temperature is correctly chilled—in a refrigerator.

But when you buy a refrigerator, remember this, the cost of that refrigerator to you is going to be measured not by initial price, but by the saving it effects daily.

That is why a majority of home owners are now turning toward the Alaska Cork Insulated Refrigerator. It sets an entirely new standard of refrigerator excellency and ice economy. Millions of owners claim that it properly refrigerates its contents on less ice than any other refrigerator made.

And the reason for Alaska supremacy is evident. Alaska construction is based on scientific principles; its "cubed" cork and "confined" air walls combined with tight-locking doors and air-tight joints and top make the most perfect insulation known. This, and the unhampered circulation which insures uniform temperature throughout, makes the Alaska incomparable.

In the Alaska, science has won where in ordinary refrigerators ingenuity has failed. Why not get the benefit of this when you buy?

Beautifully and durably built—all sizes, all prices, linings of seamless, round-cornered Porcelain, or of White Enamel, sanitary, easy-to-clean, labor-saving—with its cork insulation, the greatest refrigerator value in America.

See your dealer about getting an Alaska at once.

Seamless White Porcelain linings with highly glazed surface and round corners, or sanitary White Enamel linings make Alaskas easy to keep sweet, clean and immaculate.

The food compartments are practically odorless and because of the wonderful dryness of the cold circulating air, they can be kept so with a minimum of cleansing effort.

"MAKE UP"

by Antoinette Donnelly

Want your beauty problem solved? Too fat? Too thin? Sallow complexion? Oily hair? Oily skin? Freckles, pimples, or blackheads? Flat chested or flat footed? Write to me. I have a scheme, a diet or a set of exercises for what ails you and you're welcome to them and to all the advice I can give you. If you wish a personal reply send a stamped addressed envelope. Address Antoinette Donnelly The Tribune Chicago

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

A VISITOR from a neighboring shore, where pedal extremities are used more for the purpose of locomotion for which they were originally designed than they are here, said to her hostess, about to take a taxi to convey her to a luncheon:

"Why, my dear, why don't we walk? Is it so far?"

"No, it isn't far, but I want to get there in a hurry," she explained.

The ride was exactly six minutes each way. Seated at the table, the visitor said: "Now, what was your hurry? Have you another engagement?"

"No, I haven't, but I hate walking. I can't walk in these shoes, anyway."

"Well, well," said the visitor, frankly. "You Americans are so funny. Is such an everlasting hurry. Doesn't any one ever walk?"

"Not if they have car or taxi fare," blithely responded the hostess.

"How do you keep your health and your color, then?" innocently inquired the guest.

"I don't know about the former—but the latter we keep in a box," was the answer.

We All Do It Now.

"That leads me on to a confession," laughed the guest. "You know when I first arrived here and walked down the busy thoroughfare I said to my husband: 'What a wicked place this must be. There are so many rouged women.' But after I met a number of them I realized it was the wicked lack of fresh air and the wicked need of natural bloom and the still more wicked way the rouge is applied that caused my unwholesome doubt."

"O, yes, we all do it now. From grandchild to gram'mer—the rouge pot is the busy little bee of every housemaid," acknowledged the other. "You can see that with your good eye shut."

"Why the children? Why do parents allow them? They look so dreadful. The little misses with their derable eyes peering out upon the world from such blasé surroundings. It is a pity, isn't it?"

"It is. But I don't know what we are going to do with the young imps. They seem to run the universe these days," sighed this mother of one of them. "Just can't do anything with them."

And the conversation trailed off into something else.

Mothers could do something with the young 'uns if they would tell them—not that it makes them look older and quite worldly wise—for that is what foolish youth is most ambitious for—but that it makes them look ugly; that it spoils the greatest beauty asset in the world, the untouched skin of youth and its natural bloom, the very thing the older woman who has lost it is trying to imitate.

No young girl ever improved her looks one single particle by the use of rouge and lip stick. On the contrary, she loses them immediately she resorts to the false bloom.

However, with the older girl the deft application of a bit of color is excusable. Providing it is deft.

Get the Right Rouge Tint.

But therein lies the rub. There are ivory toned skins and skins with a yellow tone in them and florid skins and bronze and olive skins. Yet, women will choose a rouge with nary a thought of how the bright pink or the American beauty red is going to sit upon the cheeks.

Which is a case of bad judgment, indeed, when you think of how squeamish and hard to please a woman is in the matter of color for a dress or hat. She has to be sure that it will soften a too highly colored skin or bring out the ivory tints if she be of the latter type.

Now, rouge is on the market for most every type of skin. There is a light, a medium, a dark red, a pale flesh, a deeper flesh, and a rouge with a distinctly orange note in it.

Which is the one for you? That is something you have to find out for yourself. You have to experiment until you get the shade that blends most harmoniously if you want to wear this cosmetic without blazoning it forth to the whole world.

The Secret of Make-Up.

There is an old rule about being smartly dressed. No woman is well dressed who is conspicuously dressed. It is equally true that no woman is well rouged if the rouge is obvious.

That is the whole secret of makeup. If it is done artistically it is helpful. If overdone—it is disfiguring in result.

The same color adaptation applies to powder. For powder applied promiscuously and regardless of affinity with the color of the skin may produce as ugly an effect as the wrong rouge.

A dead white powder will increase the appearance of bloodlessness in the cheeks. On an olive skin it will stand out like a Monday morning wash.

I have in mind one girl whose skin was totally colorless. Urged by friends, to resort to the bloom that is bought and paid for, she first tried a pink, which proved most unbecoming. Then she tried a dark red, and that was worse. By further experimenting she ran across a rouge that was more orange than pink, which proved the great discovery for her. There was just a glint of yellow in her skin—not a jaundiced shade, but the orange proved the tone to give a natural touch. And she applied it sparingly.

Which is where most rouge fans fall down woefully on their work. If they applied trimmings to the hats and frocks with the same extravagant hand their beauty would be bankrupt before the spring outfit were half ordered.

Be Virtuously Sparing.

The older the skin the more skill has to be used in the cosmetic art. A thick layer of garish color on a wrinkled, coarsened skin is the epitome of ugliness, as has been demonstrated under your observation, no doubt.

And then there is the light to be considered. Where it is worn by daylight it must be applied by daylight. And both cheeks must be subjected to identical care before issuing forth to challenge the anti-nature fakers. Otherwise the cause is lost.

Now friend husband may do a heap of arguing against the gentle art as applied to the face of his devoted. But nine chances to one he finds not so interesting the pale but honest face of his business partner's wife as the artistically colored one of the less exalted secretary's wife. So there you are, when it is deftly done. It is when it is laid on with one of his garden implements, or looks that way, that he becomes excessively moral on the subject.

"It is wicked only when it is wickedly done," said one good wife who aimed to please. "But I shall be virtuously sparing."

Some Free Advertising.

The girls' club was giving a little dancing party and each girl received twenty bill posters advertising this dance, which she was to post on neighboring posts and fences. With the assistance of my little brother, I started on my billposting job, tacked bills on fences and posts, laughing over my new profession.

I had just tacked a bill on one of the fences, when suddenly a man came flying out of the house and unceremoniously gripping me by the shoulder demanded that I take the bill right off the fence. He led me to the other end of the fence where a notice was painted, "Post No Bills."

The hammer I used was old, the tacks little, and I was awkward. Struggling with the tack heads, I attempted to undo the job, while the proprietor of the property stood over me scolding away and passersby stopped to watch the affair with much amusement. Finally, embarrassed beyond words, I took hold of the poster and tore it off the fence, left the tacks as they were nailed in, and fairly ran home. The rest of the bills were never posted. I didn't want to go through another one of those embarrassing situations again. J. J. P.

Her Pet Aversion.

My mother has a great dislike for slang in any form, but her pet aversion is the expression, "It gets my goat." One day she was at the butcher's and wearing a black coat and, as the boy tied up her package, she requested him to use another kind of string, saying, "It gets on my coat," meaning the lint.

Just then the boy had occasion to go to the other end of the counter, and called back in a voice loud enough to be heard by everybody in the store, "I can't help it if it does get your goat; it's the only string I have."

The other patrons of the place were not familiar with my mother's taste in regard to the various modes of expression, but her comment that the young man's sense of hearing was obviously defective was accompanied by a look which made further explanation unnecessary. E. B.

But the Coast Wasn't Clear.

I looked carefully up and down the street to see if any one were in sight. Thinking the coast was clear and my reputation as a dignified sophomore in high school was not endangered, I vaulted lightly over the fence in front of my home. Imagine my embarrassment when I slipped on the icy walk and fell at the feet of a young man who seemed to have dropped from the skies at just this unlucky moment. E. M. A.

Awkward for Doris.

One day teacher gave a party. She asked who did not have enough to eat. I thought she said who had enough. I raised my hand. Teacher said, "We will give Doris another apple." D. M. T.

Beauty Answers

By Antoinette Donnelly

ANXIOUS: I WISH I WERE deserving of the sublime faith you have in me, but the natural wave I cannot help you retain. There is this, though, if you water wave hair that has been naturally curly you get an excellent imitation of the real thing. Only naturally wavy hair takes the water wave, but it seems just natural with many people to gradually lose that wave with which they were blessed in early youth as the years grow. The dandruff trouble is another thing and can be remedied with care and treatment. Send a. s. a. e. for detailed information.

JULIA: YOU'RE JUST THIRTY-five pounds overweight, according to standard measurements for your height and age. So you better get busy, Julia, right away quick. There's no easy medicine to take, advertisements to the contrary notwithstanding. Less food and more activity is the remedy. Cut down on your food one-half at each meal, or begin with one-third off, then gradually shade off to a half less. Then let no day pass whose low descending sun sees not some kind of vigorous exercise gone through.

BETTY: THE INSTANTANEOUS lotions and correctives will not clear your skin of pimples and blackheads. Internal correction and external is necessary. More water drinking, eating fresh fruits and vegetables, certain amount of daily exercise, daily bathing and freedom from constipation, are the things that are totally necessary to a permanent clearing of the skin.

MRS. S.: FOR THE MILD SUFferer from perspiration odor there is the simple remedy of common baking soda added to the water and boric acid dusted over the parts. Air the woolen dress after each wearing. Wash shields after each wearing, too.

MISS R. M. S.: THE 25 PER CENT solution of aluminum chloride in distilled water is the best perspiration remedy I know of. Apply three nights in succession, then once a week to prevent further trouble. Don't overdo or it may irritate the skin. If you find your skin is too sensitive for the 25 per cent solution dilute it by splashing water under the arms before applying.

BLUE EYES: CROSS EYES MAY be straightened with glasses up to 20 and 21 years of age. After that an operation is necessary.

MISS A. R.: THE MAIN THING IS to keep the skin between the toes perfectly dry. Insert a bit of cotton if necessary. Dry well after bathing. A little sulphur dusted between the toes will help. Send self-addressed envelope and I will give you a corn remedy.

ROSE: HAVE YOU TRIED GLYCerine and camphor, equal parts? Rub into the skin of the hands well every night.

Sensational Sale-Albert Pick & Co's Surplus Stock of Furniture

A TREMENDOUS purchase like this is not as equally balanced as when bought in the regular manner, so it is natural that some lots are exceedingly large and others quite small.

We advise early shopping, because we are unable to say whether all items, illustrated or not, will last through the day.

Limited newspaper space does not permit mention of all items, and we have many, many more just as good as those shown on this page.

LAST week witnessed the closing of one of the greatest furniture deals in many years. Albert Pick & Co., largest and best known hotel supply house in the world, in a new issue of their catalog decided to reduce their assortments of furniture and eliminate many household items, and realizing that the FAIR was the foremost outlet of this class of merchandise, sold us their surplus items at our own price.

THE name of Albert Pick & Co. is possibly better known among hotels and clubs than among the retail trade, since they are the largest firm in the country doing an enormous business with this patronage. They have within the last few years furnished nearly all of the better type of hotels and apartment houses in Chicago. Albert Pick & Company's reputation as to the quality of merchandise sold by them is beyond question, and that is the only and essential reason why the Fair entered into this purchase of their household items.

TO add additional interest to this sale we have taken about $50,000 worth of our own merchandise and have brought it down to a price level to that of the merchandise bought of Albert Pick & Co.

NOTE, for instance, the Cane Davenport Suite at 134.50; the Windsor Chair at 8.45; the Drop Leaf Table at 17.45—unusual bargains all.

Announcing—The Spring Fashion Opening of 1921

The new season of spring, 1921, will be formally ushered in here tomorrow with an unusually comprehensive display of the authentic fashions. The garments on display are the result of a most painstaking search of the Eastern style market and represent, in our judgment, the most desirable merchandise obtainable at the reasonable prices asked. Coats, suits, dresses, skirts, blouses, and furs in wide assortments, permitting an unusual latitude for choice as to style, price, color and material. You are most cordially invited.

The Frocks*— Too many to tell of in detail, but there are elaborate evening gowns of taffeta and tulle, satin and maline, all-over lace and sequin robes. Smart afternoon frocks of taffeta, Canton crepe, Roshonara crepe, and crepe satins; tailored dresses of tricotine and poiret; wedding dresses of satin and georgette; bridesmaids' dresses of georgette and crepe de Chine; for afternoon wear, taffeta and Canton crepe are favorites; $19.75 to $165.

The Suits*— Popular again for sufficient reason, perhaps because of the popular prices and attractive styles. Our suits in tricotine, poiret, and twill cord will interest you because of the many handsome styles. Some with tailored coats, others with dressy little jackets, much embroidered, and scalloped circular skirts. Sport suits also, veldyne jackets, and English flannel skirts, are much admired. Our suit prices are from 14.75 to $150.

The Coats*— Rather favor the wrap, meanwhile recognizing the beauty and utility of the tailored garment. Our selection is most interesting. Rich materials in styles so attractive and at prices so reasonable that every one should be well dressed this season. The fabrics: Marvella, Veldyne, Florazelle, poiret, bolivia, camel's hair, yalama, tricotine, quilted satins and the better velours. Priced from 27.50 to $150.

150 Fine Dresses —two of them are illustrated, showing the utmost possible in style and quality at so low a price. Crepe de Chine, taffeta and Canton crepe; the taffeta dresses have tunics of all over eyelet embroidery or adorned with dainty hand embroidery and narrow pleatings. Crepe dresses lend to the figure slenderness and dignity, because of the way they drape. Brown, navy, black and gray. Sizes 14 to 44, at 34.75

Opening Skirt Special

150 Baronet satin skirts. White, flesh, tan, rose, navy and black. Waistbands 25 to 32 inches. Special Monday, each, 8.95

The New Fashions in Millinery

Beautiful indeed, in their variety and charm, are the millinery fashions of this springtime season. There are hats for every woman, hats for every occasion, hats of every shape—cleverly conceived and carefully selected.

Hats of hair braid are a distinct novelty and a large display is offered for your approval. Hand sewn liseres, Italian Milans, porcupine and Milan and Swiss hemp braids, form hats that are a delight to look upon.

Ostrich lavishly trims many of these hats and flowers and fruit predominate among other trimmings. Beautiful dress hats, tailored and popular priced trimmed hats. The untrimmed tailored and ready-to-wear sections show many attractive new features,

VARIED ACTIVITIES OF WOMEN

Mrs. Bertha F. Drabelle has been appointed building inspector in St. Louis, with special supervision over department stores and other establishments where many women are employed.

Mrs. Ray W. Sundelson, who arrived in America twenty-eight years ago a friendless Russian immigrant, is now the New York manager of one of the largest life insurance companies in the United States.

Miss Mary McGowan, business woman of Akron, O., and further distinguished as the only woman member of the American Society of Bachelors, has announced her intention to become a candidate for mayor of her city.

Every servant in Germany must have a "service book," in which the holder's name, age, personal appearance, condition, former mistress, length of stay, wages paid, and reasons for leaving are all duly entered. Each entry is vouched for by the employer's signature and is stamped by the police.

Under a plan adopted by a committee of Italian women each woman in Italy is to be urged to contribute an article made by herself and the proceeds from the sale of these articles is to be used to help in restoring the country's finances.

Every year is leap year among the Garo women in Assam. Among those who have not been Christianized the bride takes the initiative in marriage and goes to fetch the bridegroom, and it is etiquette for him to hide and resist until victoriously carried off.

There are fewer women speakers in America than in Europe.

Hindoo women are said to have the most beautiful figures of any women in the world.

Women in the Philippine islands are conceded to be the best lacemakers in the world.

Queen Mary has loaned the London museum the doll's house with which she played when a child.

There are in New York, it is said, many women who make a living pawning things for other people.

Nearly 250,000 single women in New York state will pay an income tax for the last year.

Miss Alice Robertson, only congress woman elect, recently told members of the American Legion that she was going to Washington to "keep my eyes open and my mouth shut."

Ping Wong, aged 15 years, who is taking a course in a Cincinnati business college, will, when she graduates, be the only full fledged Chinese stenographer in the United States.

Miss Alice Balfour, youngest sister of the British foreign minister, is a justice of the peace in Scotland.

Eight European women, all Salvation Army workers, will devote the rest of their lives to the care of lepers in Java.

Women members of the International Garment Workers' union in New York City, are paid on an average $35 per week.

The first woman in Canada to be honored with chairmanship of the school board is Mrs. Fred Langford of Calgary.

The first Christian college for women in Asia, the Isabella Theburn in Lucknow, recently celebrated its golden jubilee anniversary.

Patterns by Clotilde

9860—Child's yoke dress. Sizes 2, 4, and 6 years. Size 4 requires 2 yards of 36 inch material, ¼ yard of 22 inch contrasting, and 3½ yards of binding.

9946—Woman's house dress. Sizes 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 4⅛ yards of 36 inch material, with ⅝ yard of 36 inch contrasting.

9935—Woman's long waisted dress. Sizes 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 2⅞ yards of 36 inch light material and 2 yards of 36 or 44 inch dark material. For a dress of one material 4¼ yards of 36 inch material will be required.

How to Use the Patterns

CHILDREN'S clothes are always interesting to make, and pattern No. 9860 will be used for many small frocks for spring and summer.

Wash materials are always prettiest for these small dresses, and the chambrays in solid colors are lovely. There are wonderful shades of blue, pink, tan, green, etc. Then the small checks in gingham are pretty. A delicate blue chambray would make up prettily by this pattern, and on the pockets and yoke there could be bunches of red or deep pink cherries. These could be embroidered or appliqued.

Instead of cutting the usual shaped pocket, one could be made to represent fruits or flowers. These would be cut of the plain colored chambray, cutting, for instance, two or three small apples and several green leaves and grouping them so as to make a pocket shape. These are put together with the blanket or buttonhole stitch and make a gay touch of color that every small child will love.

Of course children never look more attractive than they do in white, and this is a good model for some white dresses also. The little pointed yoke may be attached to the dress with a fagoting stitch, or seamed on in the usual way and outlined in feather stitching.

The sash ends, the collar and cuffs can all be finished the same way as the yoke.

Always finish the bottom of the skirt with a deep hem, and hem by hand if you can take the time. On a white dress it is sometimes pretty to set an inch wide Valenciennes insertion in above the hem, or the hem can be featherstitched on the right side, but these small dresses only need a little in the way of trimming and too much would easily spoil the daintiness and attractiveness of them.

No. 9935 is a pattern that will appeal especially to those who like their dresses buttoned down the back. It has the fashionable long waisted effect and the loose panels that form the overdrapery are becoming to every woman.

Two materials will combine well, the petticoat being made of satin and the rest of the dress of some one of the new crepe weaves, challis, voile, or, in fact, any cloth one may prefer.

The skirt is a one piece, straight gathered one, and for size 36 measure 1½ yards at the bottom. The panels can be hemmed down the sides and across the bottom and left without trimming, or some conventional design could be embroidered across the bottom of each one. The front of the waist is cut with a dart on each shoulder, which will help to throw necessary fullness across the bust. The pattern is easy to follow and there should be no trouble in putting it together.

One sometimes sees sleeves that are put into an armhole badly, and they must be uncomfortable as well. The usual sized armhole is about fifteen inches—maybe a little more. After the seams are put together try the waist on and look at the armholes. They should come well up under the arm and no great curve should be visible anywhere. If the line looks all right, but feels too snug, take the waist off and stretch the armhole slightly around the front. Be careful not to tear it. But you can help it a great deal this way and it will look and feel much better than if it is cut out too far.

Then several pins are to be put in, the first one at 2⅜ inches up towards the front from the under arm seam. Pin the seam of the sleeve to the armhole at this point. Then measure up towards the front, from the under arm seam 4½ inches, and up towards the back from the under arm seam 3½ inches. Pin the sleeve in smoothly between these two outside pins, first pinning the seam to the 2⅜ inch point.

Now the remaining part of the sleeve should have a fine gathering put in and the fullness so distributed that it is not really visible anywhere.

In basting in the under part of the sleeve, always hold the waist next to you, so as not to hurt the curve of the waist through that part, and in basting in the upper part hold the sleeve towards you, so as to be able to arrange the slight fullness properly. Always remember that you can easily make the armhole much smaller by careless basting or stitching, so take care that the size is not changed.

After the sleeve is in and the seam finished, turn the seam towards the shoulder of the waist across the top and catch to the lining. If there is no lining stitch it to the waist across the top for a distance of a possible 2 inches each side of the shoulder seam. This sometimes makes a great difference in the setting of the sleeve there. If the seam is not held it sometimes turns in towards the sleeve when on and makes the top of the sleeve stand up in an ugly way.

A sleeve that is properly put in the armhole will have the seam when the arm hangs down at the side come directly over the middle of the thumb, and a well put together sleeve will allow the arm to turn, while hanging at the side, way around so that the palm of the hand is uppermost. The sleeve will not turn even slightly as the arm turns, but will remain quite stationary.

No. 9946 will make up attractively in plaid gingham for a dress to wear at home afternoons. The skirt is the usual one piece, straight gathered model, and the waist is attractive, yet quite simple in design. The short sleeves will be more comfortable for the house, and with the flaring cuff made of the gingham on the bias, or of some contrasting color and material to match the collar, no other trimming will be needed.

Silenced.

I was returning home from medical school for my Christmas vacation and was forced to wait over between trains at a small town. I was sitting in the hotel parlor reading. As I glanced up I noticed a dapper looking young man watching me. I continued reading with renewed zeal. He was distinctly the "fresh" type and soon started to talk to me. Being determined to squelch him I made no reply, but he kept right on talking. Finally, when he remarked that it was a shame for such a good looking dame as I to be so crabby, I decided it was time to put an end to his overtures. I took a piece of paper from my hand bag and wrote on it, "There is no use for you to try to talk to me, as I do not hear anything you say. I am deaf and dumb." Then I handed him the note and he, looking chagrined, beat a hasty retreat from the parlor. As he left he cast one more glance at me, a glance so changed from flipness to pity that I could scarcely keep my face straight. An hour later I went to the depot and as luck happened I found waiting there an old college chum. We were in the midst of the liveliest conversation, I doing most of the talking, when the depot door opened and in walked my recently subdued masher. For the first time in his life, I imagine, he had nothing to say. E. C.

New on the Job.

This happened in Washington, D. C. A detached sleeping car had been made up for the New York train. Though yet quite early in the evening, a number of people had boarded this car and were already in their berths. I was tranquilly settled when I heard some one call out to the train man: "Is this the car for New York?" He was told that it was. Then I heard another voice, "Isn't this going to Charleston?" While I was holding my breath in suspense, wondering what the outcome would be, a general babble of voices arose. It appeared that the trainman was new on the job and had balled things up considerably. At any rate, he had a mixed crowd on board, some desiring to go north and others south. Finally the excitement subsided and the passengers bound for southern points were obliged to dress and get out. M. S.

Mother Steps Lively.

I had been visiting my daughter and left her house to take a noon train home. It took me longer to get to the station than I thought it would,

and when I arrived there was told my train was ready to leave and that I would have to hurry. I passed through the gates and got nearly to my car when the train started. I was so disappointed I stood still watching the cars pass, and as the last car was passing I said aloud: "O, dear, I wanted to go on that train so bad."

There were several men on the observation platform, and one of them said: "Here, jump on." Then reached down—one man took my traveling bag, others took hold of my arms and lifted me up over the gate—the train going faster every minute. I was so exhausted after all that I couldn't see anything amusing about it, but when I related it to my family they all wished they had been on the scene with a camera. C. R.

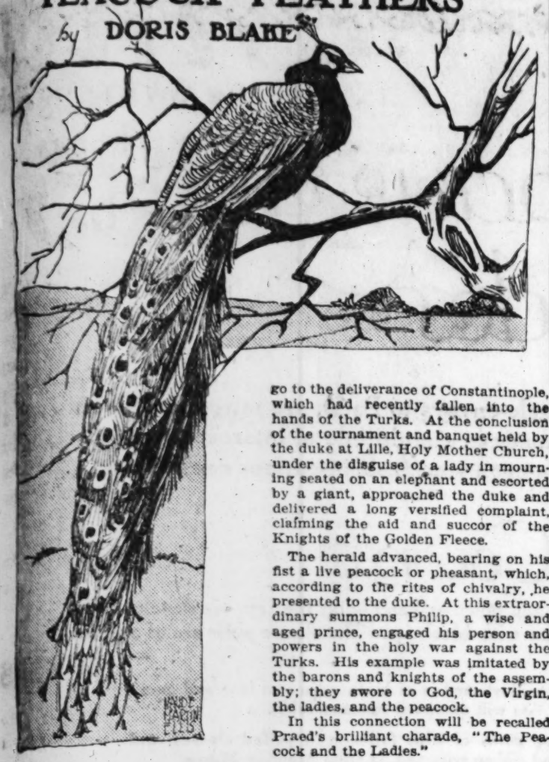
PEACOCK FEATHERS

by DORIS BLAKE



WOULD you have peacock feathers in your room? Many people won't. The bird, in spite of its glorious plumage, seems to have a reputation for ill luck.

Peacock feathers are looked upon as unlucky in many countries. Their mere possession is reputed to be a harbinger of misfortune to the owner. Every kind of loss will have to be sustained by the occupiers of the house they adorn, including illness and death, and many country people, even now, would be horrified if any one were to bring under a roof one or more of these feathers.

It is further said that children will never be healthy in rooms adorned with these iridescent plumes, and that it is the most unlucky thing in the world to give as a plaything to the youngsters.

The bird first received a bad name in the land of its birth. According to Mohammedan tradition, the peacock opened the wicket of paradise to admit the devil, and eventually received an ample share of the devil's own punishment, though what losses this winged accessory before the fact suffered are not stated; perhaps they were a melodious voice and presentable feet.

> To paradise, the Arabs say,
> Satan could never find way
> Until the peacock let him in.

In the likeness of a serpent Satan tempted Eve, and the punishment meted out to the associate in crime may have been that the peacock should thereafter consider his former friend his greatest enemy. It is the one useful trait in the vain character of the bird, and deserves placing on record, that he is the deadly foe of all snakes, harmless and venomous.

The East Indians and North American Indians believe that feathers endow the wearer with qualities, whether virtues or vices, of the bird from which they are taken; and as the peacock is vain, arrogant, and greedy, its feathers are supposed to bring bad luck.

The Hindus consider it good luck to own a peacock.

In the middle ages, it was customary to serve the peacock at great banquets with much pomp and ceremony. Over his carcass, medieval knights swore one of their most solemn vows, the ladies being witness thereto. The principals do not appear to have known anything of the origin or meaning of the oath by the peacock, and there is no reason, therefore, for believing it to have been traditional and imported. Its incongruous combination with vows to God and the Virgin seems to show that it was a pagan oath, Christianized in outward form by the aspersion of holy words.

In 1453 Philip the Good, Duke of Burgundy, vowed "by the peacock" to go to the deliverance of Constantinople, which had recently fallen into the hands of the Turks. At the conclusion of the tournament and banquet held by the duke at Lille, Holy Mother Church, under the disguise of a lady in mourning seated on an elephant and escorted by a giant, approached the duke and delivered a long versified complaint, claiming the aid and succor of the Knights of the Golden Fleece.

The herald advanced, bearing on his fist a live peacock or pheasant, which, according to the rites of chivalry, he presented to the duke. At this extraordinary summons Philip, a wise and aged prince, engaged his person and powers in the holy war against the Turks. His example was imitated by the barons and knights of the assembly; they swore to God, the Virgin, the ladies, and the peacock.

In this connection will be recalled Praed's brilliant charade, "The Peacock and the Ladies."

If you hear a peacock scream, it is a sign of rain.

When a peacock enters a house unbidden, it is a sign that the daughter of the house will soon marry a spendthrift.

If a woman sees a peacock as she enters a park, she will marry a handsome man.

Peacock feathers in a house bring bad luck. The Chinese, however, believe they bring good luck.

Paracelus says that if a peacock cries lustily and out of time, it is a sure sign of the death of the owner.

The cry of a peacock under a window, like the Banshee's call, bodes the death of some one within.

Mandel Brothers' Springtide Inaugural of Paris-sponsored Modes

From the French, endowed above all other races with genius for the art of dress, imports chosen (and brought home within the week) by our style-envoys to Paris, are introduced in an exhibit more inspiring than any in recent years. You are pridefully invited to acquaint yourself with these modes—and to observe their influence in a multitude of interesting adaptations in gowns, costumes, suits, wraps, coats, hats and furs. Too, the late laces and fabrics, the fresh accessories of dress, enter a merited claim upon your fashion-curious consideration.

Gowns

A Maurice Mayer afternoon gown—sketched at the left—is developed in black taffeta and is ornate with black jet. The sleeve puffs are of exquisite black chantilly lace. Fourth floor.

The Agnes dinner gown illustrated is of black satin and lace and garnitured with brilliants. You will admire it immeasurably.

Misses' quaint evening gown of blue faille, with puffed sleeves, and shirred skirt, flower and ribbon trimmed, is from Maurice Mayer.

The dinner gown illustrated, created by Madeleine and Madeleine, is of gold embroidered Spanish lace and tulle and introduces a novel long-waisted silhouette.

Wraps

Paris' highly individualized creations charmingly combine black satin, gold stitchery and airy, graceful laces. Of softest deep pile fabrics, luxuriously voluminous dolmans display artful draping and rich embroidery.

The black lace circular cape pictured is aglint with metallic sequins and bead embroidery—'tis from Madame Agnes. Fourth floor.

An evening wrap of gold and black lace has the new Hindustan priest collar—see the sketch. Madeleine and Madeleine are the modistes.

Tailleurs

that cleverly combine loose box jackets with sashed skirts are accorded premiere Paris-popularity, and assured an American vogue.

To complement the new, long skirt, many new suit coats are mannishly cut in three-quarter or seven-eighths length. Novel, three-piece tailormades are also Paris-approved.

Such suits will be widely chosen for Madam and Miss Chicago's Easter garb and for wear at informal events throughout the season. Fourth floor.

Silks

Crepe weaves have the call this spring: canton crepe, crepe de chine, satin crepe, vampire crepe, panama crepe, Balkan crepe, morocco crepe, satin crepe, georgette crepe, marionette crepe, trousseau crepe, crepe sans gene and crepe shantung.

Eyelet embroidered canton crepe and chiffon taffeta are acclaimed more than usually smart for new-season frocks. Second floor.

Quilted satin, a charming novelty for coats and wraps, here exclusively in Chicago.

Dress Goods

Jersette tricotine is a novel variant of a modish weave; and embroidered poiret twill and French serge are ultra smart in the exquisite designs exclusive with us. Navy blue leads the colors—with beige and sand scarcely less favored. Inaugural features: Second floor.

54-inch tricotines, in navy only, Inaugural Week special at 4.75 yd.

54-inch fine quality French serge, in navy only, special at 3.75 yard.

54-inch jersette tricotines, Springtide Inaugural Week special at 7.95 yard.

Laces

Imported chantilly laces—diaphanous, exquisite—are chosen for the ethereal charm they impart. Whether for a many-garment trousseau or a single frock, our imported laces will add touches distinctive and exquisite, and strikingly justify their pronounced vogue.

Black chantilly, cream margot flouncings, real venise, valenciennes, rose point, duchesse, point de Paris and filet laces. First floor.

Margot lace flouncing, 36-inch width, Spring Opening Week, at 3.95 yard.

Infants' Fashions

Tiny folk's dolmans and capes of cloth, and coats of soft silks, are petite reflections of mothers' modish wraps. Frocks of silk are distinctively "of childhood" in design and adornment.

Small children's coats of taffeta, georgette crepe, duvetyn, satin, canton crepe, faille silk, 32.50 to $60. Hats in spring-like colors to match the coats, 12.75 to 18.75. Third floor.

Imported pink crepe de chine dresses adorned with hand embroidery, hand scalloping and real laces; sizes for children of 1 to 5 years; $15 to 27.50.

New Corsetry

The "natural" contour is approved, and an unsheathed appearance. Corsets for every figure type, every fashionable requirement—corsets secured from America's leading fabricants, expressly for Springtide Inaugural—are here available in exquisite silk broches and brocades.

Featuring a lightly boned Franco model, in flesh colored, flowered taffeta silk, with lace and ribbon, at 19.50.

La Camille lace front corsets, $4 to $22. Fifth floor.

French Hats

Our personal representative selected them from Rue de la Paix milliners, and brought them with her on the steamship Aquitania, reaching America but a week ago. Chapeaux by Fifth floor.

Maria Guy, Louison, Vimont, Germaine, Helen and Julia, Mary and Annie, Augustine and Andre, Jeanne, Hermance.

Turbans, trotteurs, sailors, wide brims—hats of frail laces—hats of drenched ostrich, new and Paris-approved. The distinguished model pictured is from Maria Guy.

The Furs of Spring

Soft frames for smiling faces—accessories "tres necessaires" of smart spring costumes—are charming chokers of natural mink, natural stone marten, natural and blended Hudson Bay sable, Russian sable, natural squirrel, natural fisher, summer ermine, taupe caracul.

Capes and coatees, likewise, are developed in many of the favored peltries, including novel colored fox. The coatee illustrated is of taupe caracul and Hudson seal; $650. Fifth floor.

Blouses...Sweaters

Blouses expressly designed for wear with street suit, sports suit and separate skirt—blouses delightfully fashioned of canton crepe, crepe de chine, and taffeta, and artistically embellished with real laces or hand embroidery.

Typically smart are crepe de chine overblouses in gray and beige, adorned with contrasting colored bands and embroidery. A delightful model is sketched. Third floor.

Hand made blouses of voile and batista, display exquisite touches of hand wrought embroidery and drawn work, and are moderately priced.

Knitted sports coats

Whether a tuxedo, a slipover or a tie-back is required—whether of pure silk, fiber or imported wool yarn—you will be well advised to seek it in our superb collection of smart fashions and exquisite colorings. The sweater will be very generally worn this year, with sports skirts and blouse. Third floor.

The Last Word in Paris Fashions

AN AMUSING DINNER DRESS.

By Mary Brush Williams.

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—The openings are "marching," as we say in France, and all of the little bickerings that go with them. The same woman who a year ago invited me to the Lanvin opening and then was refused admission on the ruling, this year asked me to go to Madeleine and Madeleine. She has spent some thousands of dollars with them during the twelve months past. Her husband and the director of the establishment fought in the trenches together. At the director's particular solicitation, she went there the first time.

And yet on the staircase we met exactly the same reception which we did a year ago at Lanvin's. Had we a card of admission—then, malheureusement, we could not come today. Even the vendeuse saw her, with whom she had spent her money, and said, "Madame, another day."

We had learned a better technique than ours of last year. Starting down the staircase at quite a rapid pace, we allowed that there would be no other day, and we didn't care particularly about this one. They got it that their own technique had perhaps been at fault, and they "took after" us, as we used to say out in the middle west. It was only that the rooms were so crowded, would we—wouldn't we—kindly, please, have the graciousness to enter.

Never from the day a year ago when she was made unwelcome has my friend entered Lanvin's, and Madeleine's got it that this was then or never for them. They persuaded us to come back, the rooms were not at all crowded, and we saw some lovely gowns. But I hope all American women purchasers will go to see the offerings exactly when they wish to see them, or not at all.

I think the first model is awfully pretty. It consists of a black satin foundation, rather close fitting, and a tunic of white cashmere, with a "V" in the one place where I have never before seen it employed as decoration—that is, with its apex at a point below the bust line, and the point of its widest opening at the bottom of the tunic.

This tunic is in two pieces, the lower part being sewn without the slightest fullness to the upper at the line of the hips. The high collar is like a shell curling round the neck from back to front, and then back again in a higher line on the other side of the throat. The collar and the short sleeves are edged in the black satin. The short gloves of white are edged with black fur. The hat is of black straw, with an odd shaped feather pointing forward.

I always try to show something practical in every number. If I come home this summer, I shall expect to see this second dress in the beer gardens and basement grills of my favorite city. Anyway, I see it more than once in the city that is my second choice, and it doesn't pass as a joke either. In Paris my second model is taken seriously, and don't contradict, me, please, when I tell you that in real life it is lovely indeed. I think you could do worse than take it as a model when you get more used to the present silhouette.

Dress with black satin foundation and white cashmere overdress.

Black satin gown with silver gauze tipped with feathers.

The artist calls it an amusing dinner dress of black satin. It is wired with frills of silver gauze, to give a square look to the silhouette below the hips. These run along the sides of the skirt from waistline to the bottom, and they are tipped with downy feathers of black and white. Down the center of the back runs a sash of red, embroidered and beaded. It is really awfully pretty.

Black satin dress embroidered in diamonds; draped with tulle.

A blase but beautiful blonde, if you will permit me an alliteration worthy of Laura Jean Libby, appeared at the theater the other night in a gown of black satin, with draperies of plaited tulle that flowed from the hips on to the floor and looked like fish fins. The tunic was embroidered in circles of diamonds, diamond embroidery being one of the items of the day in trimmings. The tulle fish fins were studded with diamonds, too, and they were edged with black satin ribbon. A draped bit of the tulle made an attractive ceinture.

The fourth model goes to show you can wear your outline slinky if you wish to do so, although preponderance of evidence has it that silhouettes will be roomier than of yore. This dress, just the same, is one of the prettiest I have seen. I saw an exceedingly dark lady wearing it who carries Spanish styles well.

It is of silver tissue, with nothing whatever as an embellishment. A heavy, and I might say, a lively sash of a tan verine shade drops loosely over the right hip and flows into a train which is tipped with a long tassel of turquoise and silver. The artist says that the Spanish comb gives a nice accent to the ensemble.

Billy's father and mother had been in the habit of putting pennies in his bank, with which he could buy candy. However, of late he had noticed a gradual decline in the number. Going to the bank one morning and finding it empty, he said, "These hard times is surely hard on me." J. W.

The Carltons had long been neighbors of ours, and Barbara was wont to call them "Aunty" and "Daddy" Carlton. At the time of this incident Auntie Carlton was visiting in Arkansas and wasn't expected home for a week or so. One afternoon Daddy Carlton came in to call, so Barbara rushed upstairs to me and said: "Auntie Carlton is down there."

"Auntie Carlton?" I answered, surprised to know that she was back. "Why, is she here?"

"O, no," replied Barbara. "It isn't the lady of her." Mrs. R. W. S.

My nieces, Arles and Eleanor, were going to the country for a couple of weeks. The evening before they left they went over to see their neighbors and tell them good-by.

When asked what they were going to do on the farm, Eleanor said, "We are going to milk the chickens."

Whereupon Arles corrected her, saying, "You don't milk the chickens, sister, you egg 'em." I. O. M.

Johnny was much elated when three little girls came to play with him, and was indeed the man of the hour. His mother suggested he invite in several little boys who lived next door, to which he promptly replied, "I is plenty satisfied with what is here." J. W.

Ernestine was in bathing for the first time, and her father urged her to come out into a little deeper water, when she exclaimed, "I don't want to. You tum here where the water is shorter." H. A. M.

There was a great deal of scurrying and falling over suitcases to get the rather large family of the Johnsons off in time to catch the train. They finally dropped into their seats much out of breath and with only a moment to spare. Billy, the youngest of the family, sat still for a second, and then said in an irritated voice, "Well! Here we are! Why don't they go?" E. B. W.

"My father, he's boss where he works," bragged Johnny to my little daughter.

Little daughter considered what he said, then proudly replied: "My father, he's president of our family!" M. J. T.

Jane was invited to Ruth's birthday party. A few days before the celebration Ruth was heard to say, "If you bring me anything, don't bring me handkerchiefs because I have so many." A. M.

Sitting in her rocking chair one Sunday afternoon, Evelyn was looking out of the window.

Brother noticed grandmother and grandfather coming up the street and remarked to her: "Here comes grandma and grandpa."

Contentedly rocking away, Evelyn replied with feeling, coming right from her heart: "O I just loves those peoples." M. V.

Tom and Jimmy, two regular little scrappers, fighting as usual, were having a heated argument in regard to who won the fight.

Tom shouted: "When you lose a fight you must say, "'I've got enough.'"

Jimmy, shaking his fist at him, his face as red as his hair, said: "G'wan, you'se crazy. As long as I can talk I'm not licked." M. R.

BRITE MAWNIN Gum

ALL CHICLE FOR A NICKEL

Better Quality at no higher price

All gum may look alike but there's a vast difference in the quality. Gum made of all chicle stays fresh longer, is always soft, never gets crumby. It chews up smooth. But all-chicle gum costs more to make. So gum is sometimes "filled" with a cheap substitute for chicle. And filled gum is like filled gold. It costs less and is not so good. To be sure that you are getting the most for your money, ask for BRITE MAWNIN Gum, "all chicle for a nickel." Higher quality at no higher price.

Doris Blake's Answers to Love Problems

Have you a perplexing love affair of which you need the counsel of a friend? Write to Doris Blake, care The Sunday Tribune. If you wish a personal reply please send a stamped addressed envelope.

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

He Won't Suffer Long.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 19 years of age, and have gone out with a young man about six months. During this time he has tak n my friendship seriously. I, not having any interest in him outside of going out with him, would appreciate your advice as to what steps to take to discontinue our friendship. L. M. S."

It is fair if you find you are not as interested as the man to discourage his attentions. Do it in as kindly a way as possible. Plead other engagements when he wants to call or take you out. There's always the consolation if you are forced to hurt the feelings of the male that he will not suffer long—if there's another girl handy in the neighborhood. So don't let that worry you.

Not a Bit Flattering.

"Dear Miss Blake: A boy friend of mine broke an appointment with me. The only explanation he will give is that he did not feel like coming down. Do you consider this a good reason? "EVELYN."

It may be a good and true reason, but anything but a flattering one, Evelyn.

Must Be Peeved.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a young man 17 years of age and used to go with a girl one year younger than myself. Since my return from school she will not speak to me. I know she cared quite a lot for me before I left, but imagine she heard some talk during my absence which causes her to refrain from speaking to me. I pass her quite often on the street, as she lives only a few doors from me, but cannot approach her to find out her reason for her cold attitude toward me. What would you advise? F. J. K."

She must be peeved about something, Francis. Stop her the next time you meet her and have it out with her. Perhaps a little explanation will clear up your case.

He's Not Honorable.

"Dear Miss Blake: I have been going with a young man for nearly a year. He is eight years my senior. I am confident that he loves me as dearly as I love him. But he is a married man. We met by chance. He was unhappy many months before I knew him. We want to marry. Please tell me the quickest and most honorable way we can have each other. P. R."

I am afraid, young lady, that you are in for a period of many months of unhappiness yourself. His wife undoubtedly knows nothing of the unhappy side he tells you about. It's the old story, likely enough, of the selfish male who cares nothing about your reputation so long as his selfish vanity is appeased. No honorable man would sacrifice the good name of a young girl by taking her around while still married to another. Drop him—and do it quickly, is my advice to you.

Be Firm, Jack.

"Dear Miss Blake: Until recently I had been going with a girl for about five months. She worked nights, and I days, so the chances of our going out were slim, but when she did have a certain night off lately, I asked her to go out, and she refused and made the date for a few nights later, I being supposed to call at her house. At the last moment I could not keep the appointment and called her up later. She was peeved, and said we must break our friendship, and that after a certain period of time I should call her up if I still cared for her. Now, Miss Blake, I will always care for her, even though she said to forget each other. We are both around 20, and she considers further friendship shall lead to marriage, which she says she has no intention of for a long time. It would be impossible for me to wait for that specified time to call her. Do you believe she is trying that maxim of "absence makes the heart grow fonder" or what? What would you suggest? JACK."

Well, Jack, I don't much believe in that maxim about "absence making the heart grow fonder." You just call her up tonight and ask her to go to a show with you. Tell her you have got to see her, and go ahead and make good on your word.

Better Finish College.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 20 years old. I have had two years of college. My folks want me to finish college, but I would rather get married. I love a young man deeply and he has asked me to marry him. What shall I do?

"What is it proper to do when you receive the engagement ring?

"MARY."

Of course, Mary, the college degree would stand you in good stead, even though you were married, and considering you are only 20 I think it would be best to go through with it. In the meantime, it would give him a chance to save for a home and get on a bit in his career. I don't know of any proprieties that go with the receipt of the engagement ring—excepting you might seal the bargain with a kiss.

GRAHAM
Beauty Secret

A wonderful new astringent skin treatment for removing wrinkles and skin blemishes was recently discovered in the private laboratories of Gervaise Graham, the world famous beauty specialist, who numbers among her patrons Geraldine Farrar, Kitty Gordon, and many other beautiful women.

This entirely new treatment (Graham Beauty Secret), tightens the loose outer skin, removes wrinkles, lines and blackheads—reduces coarse, enlarged pores—and makes the skin firm, smooth and fine textured.

You can obtain Graham Beauty Secret at all first class toilet counters. It is not expensive, as the large jar lasts for several months. Those who have used it are amazed at its quick results, and delighted with the improvement in their appearance.

A KNITTED CAMISOLE.

WOULDN'T this camisole make a beautiful gift for a spring bride? It wouldn't be a tedious piece of work to any one who likes to knit and picked up at odd moments would be finished before one realized it.

The camisole requires six balls of white crochet cotton, size 60.

Cast on 84 sts and knit across twice, plain.

3d row: K 1, 3 tog, over, K1, 2 tog, over 4 times [2 tog, over] twice, K 11 [over 2 tog, K 4] 9 times, K 9.

4th row: Sl 1, K 78, Purl 1, K 1, and P 1 in the loop; K 5.

5th row: K 2, over, 2 tog, K 4 [2 tog, over] twice, K 3, 2 tog, over twice, 2 tog, K 6 [over, 2 tog, K 4] 8 times, over, 2 tog, K 3, 2 tog, over twice, 2 tog, K 5.

6th row: Sl 1, K 6, P 1, K 62, P 1, K 16.

7th row: K 2, over, 2 tog, K 3 [2 tog, over] twice, K 2 [2 tog, over twice, 2 tog] twice, K 5 [over, 2 tog, K 4] 8 times, over, 2 tog [2 tog over twice, 2 tog] twice, K 3.

8th row, and every alternate row, plain knitting with the exception of every 2d st of "over twice" and "over 4 times," which is purled.

9th row: K 2, over, 2 tog, K 2 [2 tog, over] twice, K 6, 2 tog, over twice, 2 tog, K 6 [over, 2 tog, K 4] 8 times, over, 2 tog, K 1, 2 tog, over twice, 2 tog, K 5.

47th row: K 2, over, 2 tog, K 4 [2 tog, over] twice, K 3, 2 tog, over twice, 2 tog, K 9, 2 tog, over [K 10, 2 tog, over] 3 times, K 12, 2 tog, over twice, 2 tog, K 5.

[Copyright: Star Needlework Journal, New York.]

49th row: K 2, over, 2 tog, K 3 [2 tog, over] twice, K 2 [2 tog, over twice, 2 tog] twice, K 55 [2 tog, over twice, 2 tog], twice, K 3.

Rows 51, 53, 55, 57, same as rows 23, 25, 27, 29, with the plain rows between.

This completes one pattern. Repeat from first row twice.

In the fourth pattern narrow at the beginning of the first, and of every odd row at the upper edge until 10 sts. are bound off.

Finish the pattern without narrowing, knitting a straight edge above the row of wheels for the underarm space. For next pattern add a stitch at end of odd rows until there are the original number of stitches. Complete the fifth pattern. Work four more patterns across the back; narrow on the tenth as on the fourth, and add again on the eleventh. Work three patterns for the other front and bind off.

Insertion for sleeve-band: Cast on 28 sts, K plain.

1st row: K 1, 2 tog, over, K 1, 2 tog, over 4 times [2 tog, over] twice, K 8 [over, 2 tog] twice, over 4 times, 2 tog, K 1, over 2 tog, K 1.

2d row: K plain. P 2d and 4th of the "over-4-times."

3d row: K 2, over, 2 tog, K 4 [2 tog over] twice, K 3, 2 tog, over twice, 2 tog, K 3 [over, 2 tog] twice, K 4, 2 tog, over, K 2.

4th row: P plain, P the 2d of the "over twice" loops. All even rows the same.

5th row: K 2, over, 2 tog, K 3 [2 tog, over] twice, K 5, 2 tog, over twice, 2 tog, twice, K 2 [over, 2 tog] twice, K 3, 2 tog, over, K 2.

7th row: K 2, over, 2 tog, K 2 [2 tog, over] twice, K 5, 2 tog, tover twice, 2 tog, K 5 [over, 2 tog] twice, K 2, 2 tog, over, K 2.

9th row: K 2, over, 2 tog, K 1 [2 tog, over] twice, K 4 [2 tog, over twice, 2 tog] twice, K 4 [over, 2 tog] twice, K 4, 2 tog, over, K 2.

11th row: K 2, over, 2 tog [2 tog, over] twice, K 7, 2 tog, over twice, 2 tog, K 7 [over, 2 tog] twice, 2 tog, over, K 2.

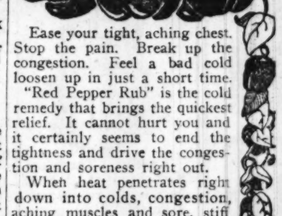
13 row: K 3 [2 tog, over] twice, K 20 [over, 2 tog] twice, K 3.

14th row: Bind off 3, K to end of row.

Repeat from first row, binding off first 3 sts. Continue pattern until the strap is the desired length. Bind off 16 sts. and on the remaining sts. K 8 patterns of the edge which is joined to the straight portion, under the arm.

Sew straps to camisole and finish with ribbons. Work a row of s. c. down both fronts and a row of shell sts. on right front. At the bottom of camisole make a beading of tr es., with 2 ch. between. Add one pattern to the back and one to each front to make camisole larger.

MRS. N. O. F.: I have never seen a pineapple cushion, but should think it would be pretty. Maybe some of the readers of this column will be familiar with it. If I hear of anything of the kind I will let you know. There are books giving designs in bead work sold in the fancy goods sections of stores.



Ease your tight, aching chest. Stop the pain. Break up the congestion. Feel a bad cold loosen up in just a short time.

"Red Pepper Rub" is the cold remedy that brings the quickest relief. It cannot hurt you and it certainly seems to end the tightness and drive the congestion and soreness right out.

When heat penetrates right down into colds, congestion, aching muscles and sore, stiff joints, relief comes at once. Nothing has such concentrated, penetrating heat as red peppers. The moment you apply Red Pepper Rub for colds, backache, sore muscles, stiff neck, lumbago, or the pains of rheumatism or neuritis, you feel the tingling heat.

In three minutes the congested spot is warmed through and through. When you are suffering so you can hardly get about, just get a jar of Rowles Red Pepper Rub, made from red peppers, at any drug store. You will have the quickest relief known.

BEAUTY CULTURE TRAINING.

THE profession of the beauty culturist, which has expanded to amazing proportions in recent years, offers a splendid opportunity for the girl of strong nimble fingers and pleasant disposition. While the profession is not made up exclusively of women, they predominate in it and it has become, therefore, one of the large fields for women workers.

It is an interesting business; more arduous, perhaps, but less monotonous than most forms of clerical work. And besides it provides an unusual opportunity to the woman whose ambition lies in the direction of managing and owning a business. It doesn't require a great an outlay of money as most business enterprises do in being launched. There is little or no stock to carry. Your primary requisites are training, shop space in a desirable location, and the few necessary fixtures.

There are three ways in which one may acquire the training necessary to securing a good job as a specialist in one of the different lines of beauty culture or to maintaining a shop of one's own. First, through the classes conducted by schools specializing in this work; second, through private instructions from experts; and third, through an apprenticeship as helper in a beauty culture shop.

The first of these three is gradually becoming the main entrance to the business, because class instruction is less expensive than private instruction and because of the growing reluctance of the shops to take in any but trained help.

I have been informed by one of the well known schools in this line that their courses are given in terms of four and six months, costing $150 and $200 respectively. The four months' course consists of all the branches of beauty culture with the exception of facial strapping. That is, it includes manicuring, hairdressing, waving in all the different styles, shampooing, treatment of the scalp, massage both scalp and facial, study of hair texture, electrolysis, etc. The six months' course gives all the above with the addition of the strapping, and includes a month's work in the retail shop conducted by the school.

If a girl takes up this work with the idea of going into business for herself it is a good thing for her to go to these different branches of the work. But it isn't necessary, of course, if she wishes to specialize in one of them and merely take a job in a shop. In the latter case, private instruction might prove better than class.

A girl who is quick and clever at marcel waving told me the other day that she learned her trade in three private lessons. An unusually apt pupil, no doubt. But she is limited to that one line of work and, therefore, is limited so far as her earning power is concerned.

A young woman who has been in the business six or seven years, owns her own shop, and makes a comfortable living out of it, explained to me that while she specializes in one line of work—scalp and hair treatment—she has been trained in all the branches of beauty culture, and considers that her training has been of great advantage to her. It has enabled her to superintend intelligently the work of all her girls. And, too, she can substitute for any one of them if necessary.

"To be successful in this business," said the young woman referred to above, "one must, first of all, be physically fit. It is hard work, requires strong, steady fingers, and the strength to stand throughout most of the day. A delicately constituted girl simply cannot do the work that is required of us. And, besides an ability to apply her training intelligently, one must also possess a cheerful and pleasant disposition."

This latter requirement is really important, for clients of beauty shops—no matter how unhappy in disposition they may be themselves—will not tolerate a moody or unpleasant person to serve them in such a personal manner

For a Rose Tint Complexion

Bring It Out by Ridding the Face of Pimples Through the Use of Stuart's Calcium Wafers.

If all those who have acquired the loveliest complexion by using Stuart's

Calcium Wafers were to meet together what an army it would be.

These wonderful wafers are to be had in almost every drug store in the U. S.

Their mild but wonderful laxative action cleanses the blood by stimulating the bowels and liver, overcoming constipation, bad breath, the stupid, lazy feeling and such evils of a clogged system.

Muddy complexion, sallowness and blemishes due to constipation disappear. You need not smear your delicate skin with grease, ointment and tallow, that clog the pores, make hair grow and rob you of your beauty.

A fair, delicate, rose-tint complexion comes only from good care and a thorough laxative action. And with the remarkable influence of Calcium Sulphide your skin fairly revels in its freedom from accumulated impurities.

A more beautiful skin results. Avoid harsh cathartics. Get a 50-cent box of Stuart's Calcium Wafers of any druggist. They are safe, harmless, and oh! how effective.

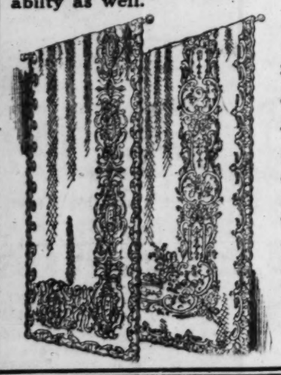
800 Pairs Duchesse Point Lace Curtains $7.95

WORTH UP TO $25.00, Pair

Hand made! Beautiful! We illustrate two curtains, which will give you an idea of the character of the curtains in this sale. Most home furnishers are always glad to buy these beautiful Swiss laces when they can be had at a reasonable figure, not only because of their fascinating patterns but their durabilty as well.



This present shipment from one of America's largest importers comes to us so remarkably underpriced we can scarcely overstate the values.

Some of them are finished in ecru tones, others in soft ivory tones, and pure white, and some are large sized, 3 yards long. The values range from $12.50 to $25.00 and the selection of patterns is practically unlimited. It is doubtful if these high grades will ever be sold at such a remarkably low figure again. Choice, pair, $7.95

THE TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

By Jane Eddington.

All recipes have been scientifically tested by Miss Eddington with current market materials and are indorsed by her.

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

BREAD MAKING.

THE subject of bread making is ever old and ever new. No matter how often the subject of bread is given treatise treatment, in bulletin or book, there seems always to remain a great number of people who think that there are hundreds of bread formulas, some of which are exceedingly rare and unique.

Yet it is almost true that there is but one bread formula—with a great number of variations. Of manners and methods in bread making there are many, but for what we called raised wheat breads there is when terms are generalized but one formula.

At the heart of all the recipes put forth for making this type of bread there is this one fact: One cup of liquid, three cups of flour, some yeast — an ounce or a cake for quick work and less for slow—and certain accessories added to these primal ingredients to give taste or flavor, quality or specific character. The dough made by these quantities will give one ordinary loaf of bread, or about a pound. For two loaves we use twice these quantities and so forth.

This formula sounds a little more exact than it really is, because flours vary in the amount of liquid they will take up, although today our white bread flours have been pretty nearly standardized, and the proportion of one of liquid to three of flour is fairly dependable, although the experienced bread maker is likely to use less and the inexperienced more flour than the prescribed amount.

Sugar for Pleasantness.

To the three essentials are added a little sugar, a tablespoon usually to a loaf, for pleasantness, and because it is a ready or quick food for the yeast. Some shortening, usually butter, is added to the main ingredients of the formula for the well known reason which the word shortening expresses. It is like sugar for pleasantness, and so is some salt. The savor of salt, its effect in bringing out flavors, is a matter of primitive knowledge. Other ingredients are added to bread for the sake of pleasantness, such as fruits, nuts, eggs, and extra amounts of sugar and butter and even eggs.

When we start to put our ingredients together we are faced with the question as to what liquid to use. We usually take scalded milk, but excellent breads are made with water. We scald the milk and reduce it to a tepid temperature, which is quickly done when we use only half milk and half water, because cold water may be added to the hot milk in which it is common to melt the butter.

But why should the liquid be tepid? Fermentation or the working of yeast requires a temperature of 70 or 80 or it will not work. A tepid temperature is above that, but the addition of the flour lowers it. It must not lower the temperature too much or the bread will not rise.

Suppose it was brought out of a cold room and stirred into the tepid milk. It would cool the milk too much, and the yeast plant could not grow. Therefore careful recipes for bread mention the fact that the flour should be at room temperature.

Methods of Mixing.

In stating our formula we commonly put the liquid first, but people who begin operations by sifting flour into a bowl, making a well in it, and filling that well with the liquid might naturally state the formula thus: Three cups of flour, one of liquid, some yeast —ordinarily half a compressed yeast cake today, but as little as one-eighth will do. Some people like this method of mixing the liquid and flour.

And speaking of method, we come to the question of the sponge method, which is probably the one most commonly used, and the other of using all the flour at the start. By the sponge method we stir half the flour into the prescribed liquid, cover our bowl, put it in a place of uniform temperature away from drafts, and let the whole rise to double. Then we add the rest of the flour and knead until we get an elastic, smooth dough, then let it rise again. We cut this down, knead lightly, and form into a loaf or loaves, put in pan, let rise to about double, and bake. But much detail has been worked out in all this operation which elaborate bread recipes describe. A bread of finer grain is generally secured by the sponge method.

For what I consider a good reason, I am trying here to emphasize the idea that the thing to keep in mind at the start is that in the three fundamentals all bread making recipes are the same. The first two ingredients are the flour and the liquid, then yeast in a reasonable amount. The young cook who will keep this in mind will avoid confused ideas on the subject of the making of any variety of bread. When she gets skill into her fingers and palms she can safely undertake to vary this recipe by incidental additions up to the making of quite an endless variety of breads.

Avoid the Indirect Recipe.

Recently I received a recipe for a variety of bread that purported to be rare, unique, special, original, and so forth. The formula had been twisted and obscured to a degree to make it unrecognizable as to the bases. Two of the incidental ingredients had been mentioned first, and separated from the rest by a period. This was like mentioning the trimmings of the gown and getting them before the material for the dress. If a formula is good it may be twisted in its statement, although it is a foolish waste for the one who wants to use it to have to untangle it, but when the formula is thus tangled the directions are likely to be hopeless, or hopelessly inadequate, as they were in the recipe in question.

It is a queer thing that the inexperienced cook often seems to find a confused recipe more interesting or approachable than a sound and direct one. A recipe for bread in which sugar is the first thing mentioned seems to be highly attractive, although the call is for but one tablespoon of sugar and about one hundred tablespoons of flour or six cups of flour.

It is the flour that we must think about. It must be wet. It must be worked. It may be seasoned with salt and sugar and shortened, and usually is. We add yeast to lighten the sodden quality that wet flour has. The yeast fills the mass full of bubbles which we must work out in part by cutting and kneading, and dirtribute in smaller parts.

Consider what we might get if we tried to bake a bread sponge. But there are right ways and wrong ways, heavy hands and light ones, and particularly experienced hands and inexperienced hands; therefore, loaves of bread made by identically the same formula will vary in quality or have as many different qualities as there are different hands.

Good Bread Requires Skill.

And baking makes other differences. I have seen twenty loaves of bread made by twenty different girls in a cooking class, all after the one formula, with the same incidental additions, and yet no two of them were alike and between certain ones there were wide differences.

Yet amateur cooks are always looking for some empiric rule for bread making. Amateur cooks are also looking for a recipe for gluten bread or graham bread or oaten bread or rye bread. They are not likely to tell the one of whom they are seeking whether they can make plain white bread or not. There is no two plus two makes four sort of recipe for making bread and breads. There are no bread making recipes that can be used without an exercise of judgment, and all kneaded breads require considerable skill, and all batter breads some little skill.

Laying down a law can go all the way in telling any one what to put in bread, but telling goes only a short way when it comes to a question of how to make the bread. Art is long. The man who works with marble has but one material and his different tools to work with.

To imagine that the amateur or the inexperienced can make a bread of perfect grain and texture is as unreasonable as to imagine that a person who never touched a piano could sit down and offhand play a Beethoven sonata or a Chopin polonaise. For an amateur to begin her bread making with some highly specific variety like gluten bread is cruel in more than one sense.

Yeast Test Unnecessary.

But it is simple to begin with one cup of milk scalded and reduced to a tepid temperature with some butter melted in it. At the same time have dissolving a cake or half a cake of yeast in a little tepid water. A bit of sugar may be added to that water as a test, but it is not necessary to wait until the mixture bubbles, unless you are doubtful about the life of the yeast cake, and modern yeast cakes are rather highly dependable. Note that if you use much water in dissolving the yeast cake you must add flour to take it up, and you can reckon on the dough proportion of three of flour to one of liquid. If you use a small bottomed cup one tablespoon of water may cover the cake, but some people use a half cup of water, or eight tablespoons. Only three more tablespoons of flour would be needed in one case and twenty-four more, or a cup and a half, in the other case.

Some people prefer to state the formula thus: Three-fourths cup of liquid, three cups of flour, one-fourth of a yeast cake dissolved in one-fourth cup of lukewarm liquid, one teaspoon salt, one tablespoon sugar, one tablespoon of butter.

A fireless cooker is an excellent thing in which to set a sponge or a dough to rise. Remember that for the sponge you use half the flour only, and when you are making a number of loaves in one batch even half the flour is worth saving should a sponge fall.

When a sponge is not set, one-half the flour is first beaten into the lukewarm liquid, which includes the softened or dissolved yeast. "Beat thoroughly," is one of the directions for this. Then the rest of the flour in small portions is worked into tthe dough, which soon becomes too stiff to stir, and it is then kneaded on a floured board, the flour being constantly renewed as it is taken up until the dough is so elastic that it may be worked on an unfloured board without sticking.

Cause of Ugly Crusts.

Some people allow this dough to rise until a little more than double, then they make it into loaves and let them rise until a light touch with the finger makes a slight dent. Butter is rubbed over the surface of the dough put to rise, and again over the loaf when it is set, to keep a crust from forming, but this forms because of evaporation. If the loaves are covered close with a cloth this will not form. Some rather ugly crusts are being baked nowadays because of too much greasing.

A pound loaf of bread requires about an hour to bake in what we call an ordinary oven, or three-quarters of an hour in a rather precise oven of 400 degrees, or 5 degrees below that.

It is more than worth while for an amateur cook to take some booklet like farmers' bulletin 807, which is obtainable of the office of information of the United States department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., and study it thoroughly. This one contains twenty-five pages. It gives valuable information about all the ingredients used in bread, describes the utensils and how to care for them, the temperature and care of the rising dough, the shaping and baking, etc. It has many recipes of directions how to vary the one formula to make different varieties of bread.

Sulphur—Quickly Soothes Burning Eczema

Any breaking out or skin irritation on face, neck or body is overcome quickest by applying Mentho-Sulphur. Because of its germ destroying properties, we believe nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation that instantly brings ease from the itching, burning and irritation.

Mentho-Sulphur heals eczema quickly, leaving the skin clear and smooth. It seldom fails to relieve the irritation or blemish. A small jar of Mentho-Sulphur may be obtained at any drug store. It is used like cold cream. Mentho-Sulphur Co, New York.

LOOM WOVEN

Lloyd

Lloyd Loom Woven Wickers Are First in Demand; In Every Way Better Than Those Made by Hand.

Baby Carriages and Furniture

Baby Rides Luxuriously in a Lloyd

That's the way he should ride—isn't he the finest, brightest and quite the sweetest baby in all the world?

And baby rests comfortably in his Lloyd carriage—generous and roomy and soft and cozy. And how nice that such a good, substantial carriage should be so smart in design, so up-to-date in finish, so perfect in workmanship.

That's because Marshall B. Lloyd has invented a method and loom which produce Baby Carriages and Wicker Furniture thirty times faster and finer than the old hand woven products. These inventions cut labor costs enabling Mr. Lloyd to weave the finest wickers, use the best materials, employ the most skilled workmen, add the latest refinements and still sell his wicker products at remarkable prices. That's the power of invention.

Serve With Oatmeal

—To bring the rose tint to women's and children's cheeks.
—To increase men's energy and vim.

Do this, madam, for tomorrow's breakfast: Stew some raisins according to the recipe printed here, and mix with the oatmeal that you serve tomorrow morning.

Do it for the added flavor—to make oatmeal more attractive. But do it mainly for the food-iron that raisins send into the blood, and for the raisin's mildly laxative effect.

The bloom of youth

The tonic food-iron of raisins helps to bring the bloom of youth to cheeks that perhaps are paler than they should be. Then the nutriment of raisins—1560 calories per pound—gives men and children the energy they need.

For regulating, tonic and nutritious properties combined, one can find no other food that's so effective. The luscious flavor makes it easy to serve stewed raisins frequently, so there's every argument in favor of their daily use. Try it for a month and see. Look in your pantry now. Begin tomorrow. Send for free book, "100 Raisin Recipes." But first try the recipe printed here.

Stewed Raisins

Soak raisins over night, pour water off and place in stewpan, putting in not quite enough water to cover, and cook slowly for about an hour; then sugar to taste and add a bit of vanilla. Some raisins do not require much or any sugar.

What Dr. J. H. Kellogg says (Dr. Kellogg is head of the famous Battle Creek Sanitarium):

"Raisins are served on the Battle Creek Sanitarium table every day. A pound of raisins has twice the food value, an equal amount of iron and seven times as much food lime as a pound of choicest lean steak. The sugar of raisins is much more wholesome than cane sugar, requiring no digestion and being absorbed in one-fourth the time required for ordinary sugar.

"If the American people would eat more raisins and less meat, the results would be better digestion, less rheumatism, less Bright's disease, less heart disease, greater efficiency and longer life."

SUN-MAID RAISINS

Use Sun-Maid Raisins in all your cooking, for they are the finest grown. Made from tender, juicy, thin-skinned California table grapes.

Packed in an immaculate plant in California. Clean, sweet, wholesome American raisins—the kind you know are good.

Three varieties: Sun-Maid seeded (seeds removed); Sun-Maid seedless (grown without seeds); Sun-Maid Clusters (on the stem). All dealers. Insist upon the Sun-Maid Brand.

IF WE COULDN'T TELL A LIE

A FRIEND IN NEED

By Sally Joy Brown

When information is wanted by mail a stamped addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send parcels to The Tribune, but write for the address of the applicant and send direct.

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

"I am married and have one child 2 years of age and am expecting another one in a couple of months. My husband has been out of work for several months and I have waited and worried myself sick. Our rent is only $13 a month and we are not able to pay it. Our food is all out and the baby and I haven't had wraps and shoes for the weather since I have been in this condition to get out and exercise. We have no one to ask for help. Will you please see if you can help us and help my husband to secure work? He is willing to do anything. If you can help us will you please answer me and my husband will call at the office. We have no fuel. Mrs. K. M."

This is a touching letter, the little family is in dire need—won't you help?

I wonder if any of your readers has any clothing no longer needed.

I am the mother of six children—the oldest being sick since last October, and I cannot spare anything for clothes. I wear a 38 or 40, am 5 feet tall; wear 7 shoe. I have two boys, 18 and 8, that need clothes. I am handy in making over any garments into suits. I will be most grateful for anything I could get for them and especially for the sick one—a girl 12 years old. Mrs. A. M.

Here is a family in need—I do hope some of my readers can furnish the mother and children with some substantial clothing.

"Perhaps you may know of some generous hearted person who can help me in my hour of need. I have been without work since early in December and my savings have been entirely used up. I have now a promise of employment and am sorely in need of an old suit of clothes and pair of shoes. I wear a size 40 coat, a 34-32 trouser, and an 8½ shoe. Either an old discarded suit, or odd coat, vest, and trousers would be gratefully received. "G. C. H."

Is there not some one among our friends who can respond to Mr. H.'s request?

I have had a dear little canary given to me, but I have no cage to put it in. I wonder if one of your readers has one. I would not come to you with this request if I could afford to buy one. My husband has been out of work since Dec. 8, and now he has gone out of the city to look for work, so you see I have to look twice at every penny before I spend it. Do please have my letter printed. I feel sure someone has a cage for me.

Who can provide a home for Mrs. H's canary.

A young girl, 15 years of age, was within a month of graduating from school when she had to give up on account of her health. She is out at the Tuberculosis sanitarium, and she is lonely. Any books, magazines, or fancy work sent her would be greatly appreciated. B. S.

It must have been a real disappointment to Barbara not to have been able to graduate. I trust the plea for her will meet with an early and generous response.

"I have a number of men's soft collars, size 15½, also some socks and men's hats, and would be pleased to send them to any one who could use them. Will you kindly send me the address of some one in need of such articles, and greatly oblige? "M. H. G."

Thank you. Your address will be given to the person in need of the articles you so kindly offer.

"I am 15 years old and have about thirty Alger and other boys' books which I would like to give to a boy shutin. These books are in good condition. R. E. S."

"One who had heard David Swing preach every Sunday for years would like his book, 'Thoughts for Today.' "Mrs. C. R."

"I have a pair of good shoes, No. 4, narrow, to give to a girl; also magazines. J. R."

Do This For Constipation

THE public should know that there is a vast difference in the action of the various remedies for constipation. Some are "flushes," purges, physics. They gripe and weaken.

For lasting effect use a laxative. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin acts gently and mildly so that even a tiny baby can use it with safety. It is a compound of Egyptian Senna and other simple laxative herbs with pepsin and pleasant-tasting aromatics. A sixty-cent bottle will last an average family many months.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the most popular of all laxatives and more is used in American homes than any other. Last year eight million bottles were sold by druggists, the largest sale in the world.

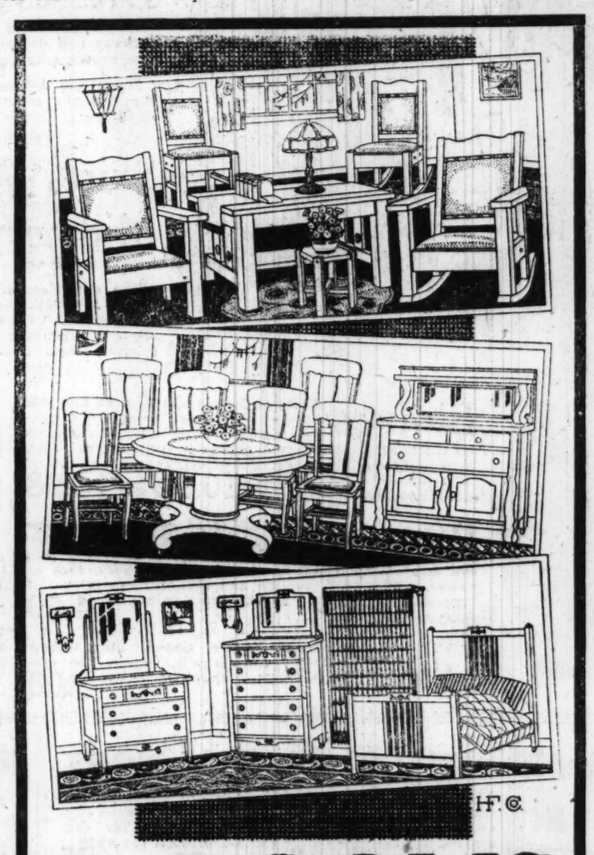
Not Merely Reduced!!!

The time for a mere reduction of prices has long passed—Chicagoans demand that they be able to buy their furniture at Rock Bottom Prices, and they can do just that at Hartman's. A $12,000,000 capital enables Hartman's to buy sacrificed surplus stocks—it gives them a buying power that brings the cream of the bargains offered by the wholesalers of the country—it gives them the opportunity to offer their customers most astounding bargains at prices that mean tremendous savings. Every piece of furniture at Hartman's stores is now marked to conform with the present low cost.

It makes no difference what you need—a parlor suite, a cedar chest, a range, a library table, a bed, a rug, a washing machine, a dresser or a complete home outfit—you'll find it at Hartman's at a price that cannot be duplicated in Chicago. And at Hartman's you can buy the articles you need now and take a year and a half to pay the bill. Truly, for "Wonder Exciting" bargains you must come to the World's Largest Home Furnishers. Remember, the prices are "S-M-A-S-H-E-D"—not merely reduced.

Products from the famous Simmons factory, from Showers, from Englander, as well as from other celebrated manufacturers will be found at Hartman's—surplus stocks purchased from manufacturers at bargain prices are being offered in many cases at less than the cost of manufacturing. Shop early tomorrow if you wish to take advantage of these bona fide bargains—hundreds of other Chicagoans will be here to take advantage of the "S-M-A-S-H-E-D" prices—can you afford to miss this opportunity?



3 ROOMS
Complete With Rugs
$288.75

Here's an example of what Hartman's tremendous buying power means to Chicagoans. Think of it, we offer you three rooms of furniture at a price that would ordinarily be considered cheap for the dining room alone. All of the articles shown in the picture are included, as well as rugs for each of the three rooms. Truly this is a case where prices are "S-M-A-S-H-E-D"—not merely reduced. Truly this is your golden opportunity, and if you are wise you will be here tomorrow to at least investigate.

"Let Hartman Feather Your Nest"

A Hand-Woven Fiber Reed Suite Price Is Smashed

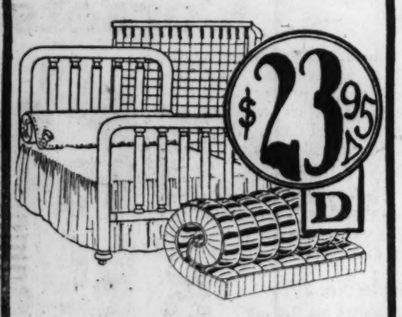
Comes in the exquisite baronial color—a decided bargain, suitable for the living room, sun parlor or porch. A fortunate purchase from one of the largest manufacturers in the world makes the following prices possible at Hartman's: Settee, $24.75; Chair, $13.75; Rocker, $13.95. See picture "A."

B 20x54 Inch Mahogany Davenport Table, $24.95

See the picture with the corresponding letter "B"—here is another instance where the price was S-M-A-S-H-E-D—not merely reduced. Adam period style with handsome carved decorations. Remember that Your Credit Is Always Good at Hartman's.

C Overstuffed Rocker at a Great Saving, $27.85

See Picture "C"—A great big, extra comfortable rocker at a price reduction that is really astounding. Has six coil springs in back and nine coil springs in seat. Upholstered in a fine grade of imitation Spanish leather. Price of this rocker in genuine Spanish leather is $31.75. Many other rockers at prices equally as low.



D Simmon's Bed, Springs, and Mattress, Now, $23.95

See Picture "D"—Bed has full 1¼ inch continuous steel posts and heavy filling rods—choose ivory enamel or gold bronz finish. Simmons sanitary link springs and cotton top mattress included at this "S-M-A-S-H-E-D" price. Bed in mahogany or walnut wood finish, complete with mattress and springs, $2 extra.

E Globe Combination Gas and Coal Range at $99.75

See Picture "E"—Complete with full porcelain trimmed high closet. The Globe combination range is well known to the people of Chicago—it is sold on a positive guarantee of satisfaction. The white portion of the picture shows the nickel and porcelain trimmings—has polished top. Range without High Closet, $15 Less.

F 40-Inch Copper Trimmed Red Cedar Chest, $17.85

See Picture "F"—Prices are all "S-M-A-S-H-E-D" at Hartman's. Not Merely Reduced, and that is why we are offering this remarkable cedar chest value. Comes in the Adam period style with handsome copper trimmings. Measures 40 inches in length. Remember you can buy your cedar chest bargain on Credit.

G Hand Woven Round Fiber Reed Carriage at $28.75

See Picture "G"—Every mother in Chicago should be interested in this astounding bargain—You'll probably never again have a chance to buy such a carriage at $28.75. Comes in the rich ivory finish with upholstering to match. The Same Carriage in Blue enamel finish at $31.50. You always save money at Hartman's.

H Semi-Collapsible Reed Sulky, Price Cut to $9.85

Just like Picture "H"—Full spring construction—rubber tired wheels as well as the small curb wheels. Has imitation leather hood. The reed sides are enameled in gray and are made of twisted Reed. Truly this handsome sulky is a bargain at $9.85.

I Englander Twin Beds, in Wood Finishes at $24.41

The Theaters

By Percy Hammond

"EAST Is West," a Chinese drama about life in San Francisco, exhibits Miss Fay Bainter, a wily little actress, as a sort of tong Topsy, cutting up all over the place.

Miss Bainter is the apotheosis of cuteness, with crafty eyes, a voice full of tricks, legs like a couple of Cupid's bows, and in possession of that "something" which causes stars. Adept in the utterance of precocious twitterings, she is at her best in Mr. Samuel Shipman's oriental hippodrome, cunning, and, therefore, not to be criticized.

As Ming Toy, an alleged Chinese maiden, she is bought and sold in a flesh-mart upon the River Yangtse, and she is thereafter the object of amorous controversy between Billy Benson, the sweet son of the American ambassador, and Charlie Yong, a lecherous chop-suey butcher, of the Golden Gate.

The play reeks with the author's prosperous and beguiling illiteracies, and the distinguished artists serving its performance are as faithful, I think, as Chinese actors would be in the interpretation of American characters. They use all the accents and the dialects, including the Bavarian, and, thus, they contrive the illusion deemed essential to the stage: After spending three interesting hours at "East Is West" and recalling three equally interesting hours at "The Son-Daughter," I want to make you a present of my share in such words as "august" and "honorable."

Nevertheless, you will like, as I did, the finish to "East Is West." The ambassador's boyish offspring, wild about Ming Toy, insists upon making her his bride. She is in his blood, and he will have her. His conventional family, fearing that miscegenation is a social error, however, disapproves of the marriage.

Whereupon Ming Toy's Chinese kidnaper enters, with explanations. He confesses that he stole the child from an American missionary. "What was her father's name?" demands the ambassador. "Johnson," says Chang Lee, or Hop Toy. I could not, in my excitement, tell which. "Not Herbert Johnson?" the diplomat inquires. "Yes, Herbert Johnson," replies the bandit. "Then," says the ambassador, "Ming Toy's male parent was my friend and the foremost scholar of America." I think they had been college pals at Valparaiso. Anyway, the conclusion of "East Is West" is simultaneous with the prospect of more or less happy nuptials, and we depart the playhouse, beaming.

Miss Bainter's exhibition is one of those ambidextrous phenomena that reach you, both ways. If you take it seriously, as the lady on my left did last night, you will adore its nursery colognes. If you regard it as ludicrous, an amusing junkcombe, as the lady on my right did, you will be even happier. "East Is West" gets you, both to and fro. If you think it is good you will like it, and if you think it is bad you will like it even better. Of the acting it may be said that in some cases it is not heinous. Mr. George Nash is picturesquely bizarre as the chop-suey king. Two years in New York!

THE drama did pretty well by us last week. Besides Miss Bainter's achievement we had the charming Miss Collinge, that auspicious queen of childish joys, leading us, a votive train, through the prattling sagacities of "Just Suppose."

Here again our tiny hands oped the mysterious gate to Romance that we might examine, in all its garlanded and astute postures, the emotion, Love. A royal prince, sated with the cloying ambrosias indigenous to his high estate, reacts amorously to an artless, but not too artless, Virginia ingénue, and in the procedure experiences the present raptures and subsequent pains of a thirsty passion, not to be slaked by the expedient waters of a morganatic marriage. What more can we ask from a Drama?

But "Just Suppose" is no place for an aged man, unless he happens to belong to the "Cliffdwellers," an organization whose membership, reminiscent of the Boobst Chicago slogans, is composed of the youngest old people and the oldest young people in the world. I mention the "Cliffdwellers" because those architects, journalists, sculptors, dune-lovers, dilettantes, dramatists and playwrights, painters, musicians, concert-goers, friends of opera, Italy and the landscape—the patriciate of our local bohemia—represent the court of Miss Patricia Collinge in Chicago. Our plumed hats sweep the ground at each of her soft and mellifluous pipings. A magic player, Miss Collinge, and a magic play, "Just Suppose." You enter the Blackstone theater adult, and you leave it sucking your thumb. The Drama, thus, more than justifies itself. It clogs the clock wheels of a too agile Kronos, with the molasses of the theater, and it enables you to stop living with a pleasant stickiness. A good show, "Just Suppose," and a good showwoman, the Princess Pat.

MISS KERSHAW, I fear, was not so felicitously disposed at the Playhouse in "Woman to Woman." This new drama seemed to be merely a make-up box, bedizen-

"Away with Winter, War, and Work" Is Miss Kummer's Tempting Philosophy

By James Whittaker.

NEW YORK, March 13.—[Special.]—Clare Kummer is a dangerous, misunderstood woman.

Sylvia Pankhurst is not a dangerous woman. She is too well understood. The world knows Miss Pankhurst's philosophy and puts a large policeman wherever it might penetrate the social structure. There is not so much as a boy scout in front of the Punch and Judy theater in New York, where Miss Kummer, with four one act plays, transforms small afternoon audiences of toiling citizens into lazy anarchists every day.

I suspect Miss Kummer of a definite plan. I accuse her of a very definite, insidious philosophy. Where the ineffective Pankhursts proclaim "Let's stop work and fight," Miss Kummer whispers "Let's stop work and play." This gospel is irresistible.

Miss Kummer would spread it. In a Kummer world we should all stop wrapping packages and digging post holes immediately and go out to take perpetual tea with a pretty girl. Mr. Harding would let the tariff wait while he pinned pink roses on all the stenographers in Washington.

Miss Kummer objects to winter, war, and work, and she is going to suppress those things if she personally has to drag misplaced isotherms out of the Gulf of Mexico and safety pin them to the poles, and give all the captains of troops and industries jobs in productions of Kummer plays. She will not let even her actors work. She is the prophet of the effortless—Jean the Baptist to the coming order of Vagabondia.

The absence of effort in Kummerism is what deceives. Of her four playlets in the Punch and Judy it has variously been reported by the New York press that they are "trifles," that they are "plotless," and that "Miss Kummer provides some easily digestible nonsense."

At least two of them—"Bridges" and "The Robbery"—are tremendous trifles. Three of them do better than have plots. They are plots. And all four of them are totally indigestible in the sense that they go into you and never come out. When you die, and they cut you open, they will find these four lumps of Kummerism close to your heart.

"Bridges" tells the tale of a young engineer engaged to construct a mighty trestle over some torrent somewhere. And he doesn't want to build a bridge, even as you and I do not want to go down to the office on a spring day. The plot is not on the stage, in this or the others of the playlets. Watch yourself for denouements.

Miss Kummer artfully encourages her engineer's illness. She brings in a stunning girl. The girl wants to spend a small part of her inherited money on an inherited estate. Will Mr. Engineer build her a rustic bridge to her island in the Hudson—if he can take time away from his more important duties? You pray the engineer will. You also pray that a wealthy, pink young lady might ask you to leave your prose to go and write poetry in a summer house.

Miss Kummer's "Bridges" is a tempting way to slothful, delightful perdition. It is only by the exertion of the greatest restraint that you check yourself from crossing it to the island where Miss Kummer tells you there are no jobs and many nice people not to do that. She spares no occupation. The lightest work is a Kummer sin.

Her hero wants to paint a picture

Stopped Again!

How many times a day is your circulation halted? If the traffic of your blood is continually arrested by the restricting bands of tight clothing, you are laying the foundation for ills and discomfort.

Especially in your feet is the danger imminent. When your arch is bound down to the hard, unyielding shank of the ordinary shoe, circulation is retarded and your foot muscles become weakened through disuse. But the Cantilever shoe has a flexible arch which bends with the foot. The circulation is unrestricted and the muscles are left free to develop through exercise.

At no point in the Cantilever Shoe is there any interference with nature. The fore part is carefully shaped to give the toes ample room and to hold them in proper position. The heels are placed so as to give ideal balance to the whole foot. You are comfortable and you can keep well in Cantilevers.

Come in and see the new spring styles. Widths AAAAA to EE. Write for booklet.

Lane Bryant Corsets
YOU cannot get corsets as scientifically perfect as Lane Bryant Corsets. There is a Lane Bryant Corset for every type of stout figure. Each and every style has been built over living models, and worn by the models, for weeks, so that all defects of the stout figure could be eliminated—giving to the wearer poise, grace, symmetrical lines, the effect of height—and, best of all, maintaining health and comfort. The prices are no higher than elsewhere for ordinary corsets. Sizes 25 to 48.
Second Floor.

Our Expert Corsetieres
THE wonderful success of the Lane Bryant Corset is due to the service our expert corsetieres render our patrons. Scientifically trained, they not only know how to select the correct corset but they know how to fit it to you. They know how to slenderize your figure without any effort on your part. This means much to every stout woman. There is no extra charge for fittings here, and we guarantee not only to fit you correctly but to instruct you how to properly apply your corset yourself.

ANNOUNCING
On April the Fifteenth the Opening of the Sheridan Plaza Hotel

Located in the most desirable section of the North Shore—with unrivaled transportation facilities to and from the business section—the Sheridan Plaza is an ideal home for comfort loving people.

The plan of the hotel is as perfect as the modern architect can conceive. Beauty of line combines with luxurious comfort throughout, and the five hundred rooms—each with private bath—are furnished in exquisite taste and are arranged single or en-suite.

Under the management of Mr. George F. Adams—formerly with the Greenbriar and Chamberlin—the Sheridan Plaza will reflect an atmosphere of quiet dignity, and the unexcelled cuisine of the Old South will be faithfully reproduced.

While the Sheridan Plaza will be conducted along lines appealing to those who appreciate refinement of service and all the niceties of a well-ordered home, the rates will be extremely moderate.

The Sheridan Plaza will be open for inspection today.

The Theaters

ing a possible situation with rouged words, incidents, and episodes. The wig which covered the bald head of the ancient triangle was too obviously fraudulent. The characters were shallow frescoes, and their speech was the showy struttings of a platitudinous theatrical peacock.

It is odd, isn't it, that the wise Broadway producer, Mr. Woods; the experienced London author, Mr. Michael Morton, the knowing Miss Kershaw, and her equally knowing cast, should not have known that "Woman to Woman" did not stand a chance? They had read it and acted it, and they had seen it in rehearsal. They had taken it between the professional thumb and forefinger of investigation, and they had decided that it was good. Yet an uninstructed amateur audience of 1,000 or more at the Playhouse, on last Tuesday night, decreed, unanimously, despite its hospitable applause, that "Woman to Woman" would not do. Mr. Woods, a quizzical entrepeneur, will say to me cynically that he had hopes for "Woman to Woman" because he thought that it was worse than "Just Suppose" or "East Is West." But the Theater is as inexplicable as eternity or the Golden Rule, and "Woman to Woman" is one of its most hopeful mysteries. It is bad, and we do not like it!

Michael Morton, the author of "Woman to Woman" at the Playhouse, is also the composer of "In the Night Watch," the spectacular English melodrama, playing at the Century theater, New York.

Miss Laurette Taylor is soon to appear in a play founded on Miss Fannie Hurst's "Humoresque," and she will not the rôle of Mrs. Kantor, the mother. This will be the first time since she has been a star that Miss Taylor has appeared in a drama not by her husband, J. Hartley Manners, or Shakespeare. "The fact of the matter," says Miss Taylor, "is that I have a wonderful Jewish accent. I don't know where I got it, but I have it."

"The Beggar's Opera," John Gay's eighteenth century musical play, which was so popular in London recently and so otherwise in New York, will be the entertainment next week at the Shubert-Central. It will be presented by the London company—Sylvia Neills, Alfred Hecther, Norma Lock, Fedora Rosell, Edith Barlett, Claude McGrath, Mlle. Valdi, and Arthur Wynn.

"The Beggar's Opera" is a travesty on the morals and manners of the early eighteenth century and concerns the adventures of a highwayman, Macheath, whose careless passion for women almost carries him to the scaffold. The scene is the underworld of Newgate, the characters are crooks of varying villany, and the story is tricked out with buffoonery, satire, and roguery of all sort. Lyrics and music were popular for many years in England after the original production.

After a tour of South Africa in "Paddy, the Next Best Thing," Miss Gertrude Elliott will visit Canada in that and other plays.

Miss Emma Carus will appear in Tucson, Ariz., this week in "The Salt of the Earth," by Harold Bell Wright. If it goes well in Tucson the play will be presented by the author in Chicago and New York.

Frank Mills, who was committed recently to a Michigan asylum for the insane, was seen in Chicago last as leading man in George Broadhurst's "Bought and Paid For" at the Princess theater.

The summer show at the Blackstone will be Mary Roberts Rinehart's "Bab," with Miss Helen Hayes in the title role.

After discouraging experiences with "Beyond the Horizon" and Dr. Anspacher's "The New House," Richard Bennett has renounced the wordy drama, and has withdrawn to Hollywood and the movies. He is under contract to be a director for five years, and he says that a return to the stage is improbable.

Mrs. John Barrymore's play "Clair de Lune," which Mr. Barrymore, and Miss Ethel Barrymore will present in April, is said to be a dramatization of Victor Hugo's "L'Homme Qui Rit," the story of the man whose face is distorted by mutilation into a fixed and perpetual smile.

Leo Ditrichstein's "Toto," meaning a nickname for Antoine de Tillois, presents the star as a debonnair man-about-town of Paris.

Mr. Kaufman, one of the authors of "Dulcy," predicts in his column in the New York Times that "Lightnin's" run at the Blackstone, beginning in the fall, will last sixty weeks rather than the thirty allotted to it.

"Queed," it will be remembered was played out of town several seasons ago and subsequently George M. Cohan announced a dramatization of the story. There followed the break with Sam H. Harris, to whom the "Queed" rights are said to belong. Recently Mr. Harris signed Alfred Lunt for next season and the wiseacres are of the belief that the "Queed" rôle is destined for Mr. Lunt.

From today's New York Times:

William Archer, after insisting for years that he could not write plays, is now setting out to write them in earnest. Before sailing back to England he disposed of his second drama to Sam H. Harris. It is a piece entitled "Beatrice Joanna"—or the Spanish equivalent thereof. It is said to be a seventeenth century Spanish mystery show.

And, speaking of Spanish plays, it is now definitely settled that Otis Skinner will play Ibanez's "Blood and Sand" next season. "At the Villa Rose," in which Mr. Skinner is now touring, is not considered of New York calliber and he will end his travels with that piece in St. Paul on April 23. Immediately thereafter he will sail for Spain, where he will imbibe local color in preparation for his depiction of a Spanish gladiator. This, it will be remembered, is the rôle for which Lionel Barrymore was once announced.

The association of Louis Mann with Earl Carroll's erstwhile "Daddy Dumplin's," retitled "His Sweetheart," turns out to have been a brief one. It amounted, in short, to a week at the Bronx Opera house, New York, and a prospective but unfulfilled engagement at the Park theater, in the same vicinity. Mr. Mann is now said to have other irons in the fire.

THE CAST.

Nancy Brown ..... Mae Allison
Richard Vane ..... Robert Edeson
Dick Vane ..... Theodor von Eltz
Pa Brown ..... William Courtwright
Uncle Mark ..... Lawrence Grant
Ma Brown ..... Grace Pike

By Mae Tinee.

"THE poor boob" in the Wanderer case was not the only one, as you will admit when you have seen "Extravagance."

The picture was made from the story "More Stately Mansions," by Ben Ames Williams. It's an awfully good picture. Its whining, wheedling, immature, and heedless heroine is typical of the lady of the house in many homes that store credit department heads could tell you about if they ever chose to sacrifice sphinxility (made it up myself) to garrulity. The big reason why husbands have left home and burned home for the insurance money. She has suicides, murders, bank robberies, forgeries on her conscience. Beg your pardon, conscience is something she hasn't (on her shoulders). And the poor boobs are the fools that Kipling wrote about.

The present case deals with the airy, fairy wife of a nice chap who makes money enough to live comfortably on, could the darling of his heart have been content with mere comfort. But not so! His Nancy Brown comes from a home where the man of the house has been a slave. Nancy is an adept in the timely use of smiles, tears, and blandishments of all description. When father announced that he couldn't do a thing because he simply hadn't the money, Nancy worked on him until he came to the conclusion that somehow, somewhere he would get the money. She entered married life with no idea of changing her plan of campaign. If Dick didn't have the money why Dick's daddy most assuredly did.

For a time Daddy Vane responds nobly to drains on his pocketbook. There comes a day, however, when he doesn't. And Nancy wants a new house on which $5,000 must be paid down. Her husband holds out for a long time and pulls her cajoleries, but gives in at last and writes a check. The check is signed with his father's name. And father is out of town.

Forgery!

The outcome is rather different from what you might possibly expect. I won't tell you all about it. It may relieve your mind a little bit to know that Nancy comes to her senses and shows that there's a vein of gold through all the cheap inconsequentiality of her.

MISS LETTY YORKE IN "KISSING TIME" LA SALLE PHOTO-HISHKIN

Miss Allison as Nancy Brown in her light moments is convincing. Revealing the vein of gold, she doesn't ring so true. Theodor von Eltz, as her harried husband, is very good indeed. The best work in the picture, however, is accomplished by that sterling actor, Robert Edeson, who lends to the photoplay distinction and class.

The production has been well directed, photographed, etc., and, judging from the remarks made by people in my neighborhood, gets under the skin.

This I am certain of—it will interest you and it may do you the divil of a lot of good!

Rumor has it that Pauline Frederick is to be married to one J. Allen Boone, western representative of Robertson-Cole. The lady, who was recently divorced from William Mack, the playwright, keeps right on working, and says little. She's making pictures under the direction of Henry King.

Charlie Chaplin's been having quite a time with one of his famous feet. A nail pierced his shoe and penetrated his foot about an inch. He has been unable to do any work for quite a while.

Still speaking sympathetically of comedians, Charley Murray's daughter lies critically ill in New York. And—Buster Keaton will be confined to his bed for six weeks as the result of an accident which tore the ligaments of one of his legs. And——

Bobby Vernon, they tell us, has sued Charles H. Christy for $50,000. He alleges assault.

Little Jackie Coogan, who played with Chaplin in "The Kid," has just finished a five reel screen version of "Peck's Bad Boy."

Ask Me! Ask Me! Ask Me!

JOHANNA: All right, Johanna; you just go ahead and leave it to God.

C. E. M.: So you like Creighton Hale, do you? We'll try to oblige you some time soon with his picture.

N. B.: Norma Talmadge is married to Joseph Schenck. Her pictures, with Harrison Ford supporting, will soon be released.

ALICE K.: In "Jenny Be Good" Jay Belasco played opposite Mary Miles Minter. Huntley Gordon played opposite Zena Keefe in "The Red Foam." You might write the stars and ask them for their signatures.

E. F. H.: I wonder if you don't mean "The Valley of the Giants?" And isn't that the name of the story you're reading?

IRENE: Yes, Tom Moore is married again. To Rene Adoree. I meant that if he was the masterful creature in real life that he was in "Hold Your Horses" his new wife had better be careful how she made him mad.

MAJESTIC.

Jack Rose: "What are you hollering about? When I have two girls don't I always give you one?"

"Yes, the one you don't want."

"The one I don't want? Why, man, the one I don't want don't live."

"A stranger came to Chicago and went up to a man in the loop and asked him to show him the city. The man said he was awfully busy, but told the stranger to take the 'L' and get off at Sheridan road and he'd surely meet some one around there that would be glad to show him the city. The stranger thanked him and took the 'L,' but he fell asleep and rode past Sheridan, so he got off at Wilson avenue. There he met a lovely blonde and asked her to show him the city. She said she'd be glad to, but he'd have to go home with her first. He was playing the victrola in the front room when the door bell rang. O, by the way, she had forgotten to tell him she was married, merely an oversight. It was her husband at the door, so she told the stranger to get up on the table and fool around the lights. When hubby came in he just happened to wander into the room where the electrician was working. He gazed intently at the man on the table and then slowly said, 'Say, I thought I told you to get off at Sheridan.'"

"The other day a woman came up to the box office and said, 'Is that the same Jack Rose that was in the "Scandals"? Upon being informed that 'It' was, she said, 'Gimme a ticket, I've gotta to see that nut.'"

George Lane and Tom Moran:

"My brother was sick the other day and the doctor said all he needed was blood transfusion to save him. They couldn't find a man who'd give his blood, so they used elephant blood."

"Well, what effect did it have?"

"He went home and threw his trunk out of the window."

"I had a dream last night and if it comes true I'll never dream again."

"What did you dream?"

"I dreamed I was dead."

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

Christian Herald Church Census for 1920 Shows Gains

By the Rev. Gardner Mac Whorter

THE churches of the United States made a net gain of 667,000 members during 1920, according to a church census compiled by Dr. H. K. Carroll of Plainfield, N. J., and published in the Christian Herald of March 12. Dr. Carroll compiled the first complete official census of religions in the United States, and for several years has compiled an annual census showing the progress of the churches for the Christian Herald.

"The Churches of America in 1919 were in the slough of despond," Dr. Carroll says. "In 1920 they are again on the hills of progress.

"The rally from the heavy decreases in communicants which marked the returns of mos of the church in 1919 to bounding increases, indicates an evangelistic and parish activity of most hopeful import. The corrected returns of 1919, however, are now seen to show a net gain of all the denominations of less than 44,000—the smallest gain for the enormous denominational equipments of the United States, ever known.

"There has been an immense leap in membership during the last year, showing gains from 44,000 to 667,000. How was this accomplished? It is evident that the setback of 1919 aroused the churches, and the campaign for souls succeeded the campaign for money. Is there a connection between the two, and if so, what is it?

"The result comes from great parish activity, for the public has heard little of tabernacle evangelism in the last year. With every pastor doing his duty in gathering in converts, the result must be great."

This week is being observed as Religious Book week. Attention is being called to religious books and to the desirability of having such in the home. There are homes which have almost no books. But the great majority have at least a few. Among those few should be some of a religious character. The cost of a good book is not more than is paid for a good lecture ticket or for two pounds of candy. And the book remains a valued possession to be read not once but several times. On books of this kind great souls have been nourished. Books of the first value have been spiritual food and drink. Whenever the story of any great man is told, there is certain to be mention of a few books which helped to shape his character. It makes a difference what is read.—The Bulletin.

Dr. Carl Beck will speak on "Problems of Disarmament" at the luncheon conference of the Commission on World Friendship Tuesday, at 12:30 p. m. Dr. Beck has spent much time recently in Europe and speaks from an intimate personal acquaintance with European conditions at the present time. The Rev. William R. Wedderspoon is chairman of the commission. The luncheon will be held at the recently opened headquarters of the World Friendship information bureau and clearing house, in which the commission is participating, at room 1010, Fine Arts building, 410 South Michigan avenue. There will be an exhibit of posters, pamphlets, and books dealing especially with the disarmament problem.

The board of bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church has sent a program for the observance of Lent to all churches of the denomination.

"We feel that as largely as possible the period from now to Easter should be devoted to all forms of evangelism. Even these days should be so used as to make for simplicity of life and the emphasis of those personal religious ideals without which our nation is certain to meet disaster.

"Let the days preceding Easter be given to much prayer and to frequent special meetings of our people and to definite work for great ingathering.

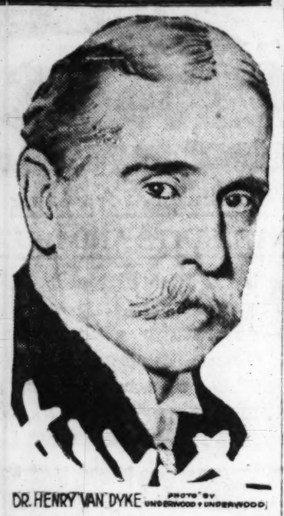
"Let Palm Sunday, March 20, be used in all our Sunday schools as decision day, and let the children be gathered into classes and instructed for full membership in the church.

"Let Easter day, March 27, be made again the culminating but not the close of our endeavor, and on that holy day 'that saw the Lord rise,' let all the people of our constituency be earnestly and solemnly urged to yield themselves to Christ and his service."

The Rev. Dr. John Thompson, pastor of the First Methodist church, Clark and Washington streets, who is preaching this evening on "Lifting the Cross in the Loop," has placed an electric cross on the corner of the church, said to be the only church cross in the loop. Having this symbol of the Christian religion lifted up in the heart of Chicago has long been a cherished hope of Dr. Thompson, and on coming to the pastorate of the First Methodist church it was one of his first requests of the trustees.

At Our Lady of Sorrows church, Jackson boulevard and Albany avenue, special services will be held morning and evening every day this week for the mission conducted by the Rev. Xavier Sutton, a member of the Passionist Fathers of the Roman Catholic church. Father Sutton is a well known speaker and missioner of many years' standing, having conducted a large number of missions in Chicago parishes. The morning services will be held at 5 and 9 o'clock and the evening services at 7:45 o'clock.

Third Church of Christ, Scientist, announces a lecture on Christian Science by Dr. John M. Tutt, C. S. B., of Kansas City, Tuesday evening, at 8 o'clock, in the church edifice, Washington boulevard and Leavitt street. Dr. Tutt is a member of the board of lectureship of the mother church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.



DR. HENRY VAN DYKE PHOTO BY UNDERWOOD & UNDERWOOD

The Rev. Henry Van Dyke, internationally known as a writer, lecturer, preacher, and diplomat, will speak at the Sunday Evening club this evening on "Things That Cannot Be Shaken." Dr. Van Dyke, who resigned his post as minister to the Netherlands because he could not remain neutral under the provocation of Germany and was appointed a chaplain in the navy with the rank of lieutenant commander, has just returned from Bermuda, where he has been for some time by his physician's orders. It is customary for Dr. Van Dyke to fill a number of engagements during his trips to the west, but his family has urgently requested the Sunday Evening club to curtail his activities in Chicago as far as possible, as only by making a special effort will he be able to fill his engagement at Orchestra hall this evening.

The University Church of Disciples of Christ, 5700 University avenue, Dr. E. S. Ames, pastor, has recently installed a "Choralcelo," the first musical instrument of this standardized type ever built. It is used in the vesper musical programs given each Sunday afternoon at 4:30.

A pageant, "The Striking of America's Hour," with a cast of seventy-five, will be presented at 8 o'clock next Wednesday evening at the Wellington Avenue Congregational church, of which the Rev. Van Ogden Vogt, D. D., is pastor.

The West Side Bible conference will be held in the Second Baptist church, Jackson boulevard and Lincoln street, March 20 to 27, inclusive, with the Rev. R. V. Miller of Hendersonville, N. C., as the leading speaker and teacher. The Rev. J. J. Ross, D. D., is pastor of the church.

This afternoon at 2:30 o'clock Prof. Gotthard Deutsch of Cincinnati will deliver a lecture to the Congregation Rodfei Zedek, at 56 East Forty-eighth street, on "Effects of the World War Upon the Condition of the Jew." Dr. Benjamin A. Daskal, rabbi of the congregation, will preside.

On Tuesday evening at 8:15 o'clock Miss Frances A. Cook will give an organ recital, assisted by Miss Mildred Smith, contralto, at the Hyde Park Baptist church, in the interest of better music for the community.

The Chicago Congregational club will hold its three hundredth meeting tomorrow evening at the Hotel Sherman with a reception at 5:30 and dinner at 6:30 o'clock. Mr. Harry J. Dunbaugh will preside, and the Rev. Dr. Frank W. Gunsaulus will deliver an address on "The Education of the American."

The last in the series of lectures given by the United Charities under the auspices of the social service department of the Church Service league will be held on Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock at the Y. W. C. A., 59 East Monroe street, when Miss Allen will speak on "Friendly Visitors."

The Rev. Frederic S. Fleming, S. T. B., rector of the Church of the Atonement, will preach every day this week from Monday until Friday, inclusive, at the Lenten noonday services in St. Louis. This afternoon the Rt. Rev. S. M. Griswold, D. D., suffragan bishop of Chicago, will make a visitation for confirmation at the Church of the Atonement, and on Easter day he will pontificate at the 11 o'clock high celebration of the holy communion. Special services for the Lincoln Park commandery of the Knights Templar will be held in the church on Easter day at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

of a sunset. Surely, you think, Miss Kummer will not forbid the slight fatigue involved in that effort. But, like all fanatics, Miss Kummer fights for principles, not practices. She has the girl in the play gently lead the boy away from his brushes.

"Why paint sunsets?" she asks. "When I close my eyes they are full of sunsets."

"Close your eyes," is Miss Kummer's philosophy, "and they will be full of millions of steaks and Havana cigars and hats and dresses and limousines."

"The Robbery" is nothing less than a gas attack on policemen and proprieties—two institutions which are the very corner stones of modern life. It matters not that the gas is as volatile as the ethereal music of Miss Kummer's words and as pleasant as perfumes. It is when death becomes attractive that war will be really destructive. Your moral scruples die painlessly by the Kummer prose of "The Robbery."

A girl hears burglarish sounds downstairs in the house in which she is alone, and calls faintly for help through an open window. A symbol of demoralizing influences, that open window. In through it comes a nice strange boy, who promptly arranges to stay all night on the parlor sofa, in case the supposed robbers come back.

When papa and mamma come home from the country at 2 a. m. the daughter is asleep in the strange young man's arms. Again the plot is all over the house instead of on the stage, where, in well bred plays, it should be. The doctrine of the open window stalks the aisles.

Romance is always a dangerous quality. Broadway, until this last week, has not been menaced by it. It has had plenty of plays wherein the figures go through the motions, but not the mists of romantic adventure. Somehow the playwrights find it easier to go through motions than mists. The misty quality of style is impenetrable to the impenetrable brains.

It is useless to try to remember the exact route which you have traveled with Miss Kummer and the others who can write a little bit more than words. All you can tell of the experience of a Kummer play after it is over is that you followed her delighted, though you could not "follow" her at all.

The Kummer actors have not been named at all. You forget their personalities. Rather they have none but Miss Kummer's to remember. That fact is part of the Kummer plot. (You remember it is not in her plays?) She is creating a school of acting to go with her school of manners.

The girl of the plays is a new creature of gorgeous eyes and white skin, who has been modeled into a tractable image of Lola Fisher of the first Kummer play, "Good Gracious Annabelle." The boy is a Kummer boy. The whole scheme of underacting is Miss Kummer's and a new note on the American stage.

It is no part of the Kummer plot to be sensational about the Kummer anarchies. Why, she may have asked herself, should I throw bombs into Broadway when I can destroy it so much better by throwing bouquets?

A redskin has bit the dust of the Metropolitan opera house. An unaccountable giddy callowness seized the opera management of the respectable old institution, and this week they staged a new opera with a new American Indian as interpreter. The opera is Karel Weis' "The Polish Jew," based on the piece of Erckmann-Chatrain fiction from which was drawn "The Bells," Henry Irving used to act to the gallery. The Indian is Chief Cauplican of a Chilean tribe.

The morning after the premiere was very much of a morning after in the Metropolitan. None could explain the mad managerial twists of temperament, which resulted in the staging of a bad opera with a singer who is, perhaps, a good Indian, but is certainly a bad baritone, as its interpreter.

The Big Chief is athletic, as was expected. He faithfully exaggerated the well remembered contortions of Irving in the melodramatic role of the Polish innkeeper who murdered a Jew guest and died apoplectically fifteen years later of a dream of the crime's punishment.

The Big Chief's voice is an excellent prairie organ, capable of carrying no beauty great distances. The opera is a dry collection of musical formulae. The composer had encyclopedia training in Wagnerian leit-motif construction, and sat him down to confect a suitable tonal contraption for the dramatic theme.

You can put your finger on no beauty anywhere in the score, on dust everywhere. Big Cauplican bit the dust courageously and spat it out again tonelessly. He comported himself in a very Carlisle manner, and bitterly disappointed boxes and boxes full of debutantes who arrived pale and trembling for hoped for horrors. The popular verdict was that the big chief had been a good Indian and a bad baritone. Everybody had hoped for a goo baritone and a bad Indian.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

Needless All High Sounding Phrases; Youth Has Slang

By Mme. X.

THE tottering, chaotic, altogether bolshevistic condition of the world today could not be better evidenced than it was in the recent controversy as to the right of the present generation to debauch, defile, degrade, demoralize, delude, debilitate, and generally to destroy that most precious of our possessions, the English language, by such gross misuse and mishandlings as the sanctioned use of such utterly incorrect construction as "he don't" and "it's me" would be.

Language is the very foundation of our human existence. It is the fundamental difference between us and the rest of the animal world. It is the vehicle of civilization. It is the chief link between us and the past. It is the greatest heritage of the future. It is our sacred charge. Shall we hand it on weakened, made common, an unfit medium for poets, a poor thing lacking in pride and self-respect, a tool for every lazy mortal to stone and spit on? Shakespeare, Milton, Carlyle, Emerson, and the rest of the great would not thank us.

The Englishman's favorite jibe at us is that we have so marred and jarred our common possession, language, that they do not always understand us when we talk. Edward Simmons, the gifted artist of twenty years ago, retorted to one such jiber:

"It's all very well for you to talk, but when you want to tell your cook to heat up a dish you have to say 'hot it up,' otherwise, if you say 'heat it up,' she'll eat it up."

Slang in Daily Use.

It is all very well to toss back the taunt in better condition than we get it, but at the same time it must be confessed that we have done little to improve or embellish the language which received its crown of glory from such high priests as the translators of the great work known as St. James's Bible.

Not that we aren't always at work on the language. Our slang is our chief contribution to it. In this our craft is both stronger and more artistic than that of the English. This is because our slang springs direct from our daily life, while that of the Britishers is often artificial and straining after effect. It is apt to lack the spontaneous, irrepressible quality of the genuine American article.

The English word "swank," for instance, is without form or association. Their oft used "ripping" is little better. Our use of such phrases as "he doesn't seem to hate himself" shows a subtler sense of the possibilities of the language as an agent of delicate expression, while "he's slipped his trolley," "you're barking up the wrong tree," "ivory from the neck up," "he's talking through his hat," "a one track mind," and similar bits of graphic and illuminating slang in daily use show a people of quick perception of the picturesque and a continuous contact with the mechanics of life.

"Blah" Is Perplexing.

The youth of the day is, however, rapidly evolving a speech as cryptic to their elders as that of the Aztecs. It is, it must be confessed, pithy, terse, effective, and occasionally almost Rabelaisian, as when, instead of being invited to sit down, you are urged to "park your Fannie." Even when the terms are writ out and explained they retain their mystery and inscrutability. The expression "blah," for instance, is perplexing. "She's blah" conveys nothing to the writer. "He's a good scout" is more understandable. "They staged a mean party" is intriguing but decipherable, as are "he's very much stuck" "she doesn't rate a thing," "an awful dumbbell," and "a bird of a party."

When you hear some one described as a "round faced boy" can't you size up the subject of the conversation? "He's bad news" is almost poignantly illuminating. "Potent liquor" as a description is of the time. So is "hootch." While "boob" is almost classic. "Dizzy" is, on the other hand, mysterious. I can't remember just what it is said to mean. "Shoot the works," I suppose means, in the slang of other days, "blow off your mouth" or "go ahead."

It is a little repellant to hear the constant use among some of the youth of the day of the exclamation "My God." It crisps the nerves more than does the equally frequent employment of the good old expletive "damn!"

One artist in the new language punctuates his speech with the short, sharp word "check," meaning agreed, "O. K." "you're on," "I'm with you." If some one says, "Meet me at such a time and place," he responds swiftly, "Check." It's an almost inarticulate, Russian, and elemental ejaculation of assent. But, like such primitive forms of speech, it is adequate.

Short Lived Forms of Speech.

Still other dialects are manifested in those strange combinations of words: "Can you take that with a smile?" or "Can you laugh that off?" "Can you do that?" "Hot dog." "Is she a necker or a prune?" Newspaper jargon has crept into some of the slang of the day. "I scooped you there." "Can you feature that?" These are probably all transitory modes of expression. Little of the slang of the moment will be in use a year or so hence. Sufficient unto the day is the slang thereof, we must conclude. In a certain way it mirrors the time in which it exists. In its iridescent surface are reflected the things that chiefly occupy the folk of the period.

Today it is motors, street cars, prohibition, the press, auction bridge, etc. Tomorrow it may be connected with airplanes, the exaltation of labor, the downfall of privilege, communistic living, central heating, exotic grape juice, dancing on the head, or whatever else this strange and changing world of ours may elect to use as the machinery and manner of life or means of progress, intellectual and material.

The Ryerson Racquet Roost.

The proposed racquet club, of which I wrote a fortnight ago, which was to be established in Mrs. Arthur Ryerson's residence, 2700 Lake View avenue, is now an accomplished fact. It has a name as well as a habitation—"The Ryerson Racquet Roost." It is domiciled in the wing of the house, and has a separate entrance for the club members. The women members can go in by the front door. Perhaps they are neither so numerous nor so desirous of independence and privacy. Besides a man sized squash court of correct proportions there are a shower for the men and a bath for the women. (Squash is a heating game.) There is also a balcony for spectators, and adjacent to the squash court there is a charming little circular room for a smoking room, card room, and lounge. In short, it has everything that a chic and sophisticated racquet club could possibly desire, including a set of rules printed on cards headed by a smart red rooster, to symbolize the fact that they are the rules of the Ryerson Racquet Roosters.

William McCormick Blair is a high functionary in the organization, though whether he is president or chairman or provost I don't know. What's in a name, anyway? When we hear that Gen. Wood is to be provost of the Pennsylvania university, it merely means that he is to be president of that institution.

Among those prominent and active in the undertaking, besides Mr. and Mrs. William McCormick Blair, are Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Howard Linn, Mr. and Mrs. Philip D. Armour, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Armour, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barney Goodspeed, Mr. and Mrs. John Mechem, Mr. and Mrs. Earle Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. Barrett Wendell, Miss Elizabeth Hinds, Miss Margaret Keeley, Miss Therese Higginson, W. E. D. Stokes Jr., and John Borie Ryerson.

The club opened yesterday with a gathering of the clans interested in "squash," and a match game between champions, Mrs. Ryerson, who arrived in Chicago Wednesday and departed for China last evening, presided over the inauguration, which was a most successful affair.

Mrs. Ryerson was accompanied on her westward trip to the orient by her son-in-law, George W. Patterson, and Miss Theodora Winterbotham, daughter of the "Jack" Winterbothams. Mr. Patterson will remain in China two years or so, being engaged in a special mission for a publishing firm. Mrs. Ryerson and Miss Winterbotham return to this country in June.

Chicagoans in Egypt.

The chief business of a society column seems to be, at this particular moment, to chronicle the migratory portion of the community. There are, for instance, Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Patten, who have been traveling in Egypt and in Palestine, and who, after a few weeks in southern Italy, have recrossed the Mediterranean and are basking on the sun-baked slopes above the white city of Algiers.

Other Chicagoans to visit Egypt this winter are Mrs. William Casselberry and her daughter, who are now on their way to Italy. Mrs. Casselberry's sister-in-law, Mrs. William G. Hibbard of Winnetka, has gone abroad with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tiffany of New York, and intends to be absent just two months. She is not making a longer stay because she plans to return in order to promote the reclamation of the Skokie, which the county board recently dedicated to the service of the people by making it a part of our forest preserve.

To digress a moment, Mrs. Hibbard's husband, the late William G. Hibbard, was deeply interested in this project, and worked for it for many years. He cherished a scheme to develop through its central and lowest part a waterway which should be a real stream where canoes could be piloted. In the wet and watery seasons of the year he often punted a flat-bottomed boat up and down the channel which he excavated largely by his own labors in the stretch of the Skokie which lies immediately west of Winnetka.

Lovely water plants grow there. Not so many years ago it was a favorite haunt of quail, wild duck, and even wild geese. Rabbits, small foxes, and that self-sufficient and entirely capable animal, the skunk, delighted in the security of the tall grasses and impenetrable jungles of the Skokie. Alas! that civilization, when it invades a territory, should inevitably drive away and destroy so much that is exquisitely interesting and deliciously diverting!

Borden Estate in Mississippi.

To return to Chicagoites who are on the wing: Last Thursday Mr. and Mrs. John Borden went down to their new estate in Mississippi, between Memphis and Jacksonville. It is a large place, 6,000 acres in all, with a fine old southern colonial mansion on it, which is being remodeled. Mr. Borden intends to devote himself there to stock raising and other agricultural pursuits. He will make shorthorn cattle a specialty. He intends to make the enterprise a paying concern. If he does not succeed in this, it will be the first undertaking in which he has not achieved his object.

A few years ago he started out for adventure by chartering and fitting up a steamer to play around in the arctic waters off the coast of Alaska, especially to go after polar bears and other remote game, adventure being, however, his principal object. He got it, as well as some polar bears, for his craft hit a polar rock in a polar fog, and had it not been for Mr. Borden's own indomitable pluck and skill the enterprise might have ended disastrously.

It was necessary to get a rope from the stranded ship to the stark and rugged cliffs of the nearby shore. To achieve this required an intrepid swimmer to carry the rope from the ship to the shore through a sea both stormy and icy. Although several of the crew volunteered for this arduous job, Mr. Borden refused to let any one but himself attempt what was a dangerous affair. He jumped into the chill briny, and successfully connected the imperiled boat with terra firma.

His record in the late war as skipper of his own yacht, converted into a submarine chaser, is as good as his polar one, so it is safe to predict that those shorthorns will become a paying proposition. Certainly they are a sporting one.

A Hunting Party in Africa.

Not many Chicago young women are such adventurous travelers as a former fellow citizen, Mrs. Gerard Leigh, who was Miss Helen Goudy, a member of the well known Walker family. She is now one of the recognized beauties in smart London society. Recently she and her husband, Capt. Leigh, and the Marques and Marchioness of Titchfield went to Egypt.

At Khartum they were joined by the Duke and Duchess of Sutherland and the Viscount and Viscountess Maidstone. After visiting the governor of the Sudan in the palace on the Nile built by the late Lord Kitchener, the party set forth with a large caravan of thirty camels, fourteen tents, and a numerous escort of natives, and are now hunting big game in the remote districts of the upper Sudan.

Mrs. Leigh's mother, Mrs. William J. Goudy, is in London taking care of the three Leigh children, who were all born during the war. Their father was in the midst of the most active fighting on the French front. He was twice severely wounded. The country residence in Leicestershire, Lee's Court, was used as a military hospital, being donated to this service by Mrs. Leigh.

Mrs. Goudy may go to Italy to meet her daughter and son-in-law on their return from Africa. She spent several months in this country last summer and autumn, dividing her time between visiting her brother, Dr. Samuel J. Walker, here and in Lake Forest, and her sisters, Mrs. Oliver H. Wallop and Mrs. Malcolm Moncrieff at Sheridan, Wyo.

More African Game Trails.

When I said that not many Chicago women were as adventurous as Mrs. Leigh, I had in mind as a qualifying factor Mrs. Herbert Bradley, better known as Mary Hastings Bradley. She and her husband and their little 4 year old daughter are accompanying the well known big game hunter and taxidermist, Mr. Akely, on one of his great expeditions to central Africa after more specimens of African fauna for the National museum at Washington. They are going by the Congo, and intend to penetrate as far as Uganda and the upper Sudan.

Mr. Akely's most famous enterprise of this kind was undertaken in 1908 at about the same time that Col. Roosevelt made his historical hunting trip there. John T. McCutcheon accompanied Mr. Akely on that occasion, and the two caravans or safaris, as they are called there, met and traveled together for a part of the way.

It is courageous of the Bradleys to take their child into that part of the world. The foreign residents there, those whom official or commercial business obliges to travel in tropical Africa, usually send their children up to the temperate zone from the age of 3 or 4 years on. The equatorial sun is a foe hard to guard against. Sixty seconds' exposure to it for a Europeean, that is, with the head uncovered, can do harm that a lifetime cannot cure. The natives seem to be quite immune to it.

The Latest Drive Here.

We are indebted to Mr. Hindenburg for our present use of the term drive. The Hindenburg drive has gone down in history. It was not only a military affair, it was an etymological parent. Since that time there have been so many drives of so many kinds that I doubt if Hindenburg would call a similar military movement by such a term. It would smack too much of a charitable intent to please the warlike Teuton.

The latest drive here is that now on to raise money to enable the Chicago Girls' Friendly society to purchase their present lodge, at 54 Scott street. It is a fine building, in an excellent neighborhood. Some sixty-five girls now find in it a charming and inspiring home, to which they return at night after their day's work.

Under the leadership of Mrs. Robert Gregory, about fifty well known women have agreed to give their time to organized solicitation for contribution to this fund. The girls themselves are contributing to this cause, the national organization having promised to raise some $8,000 among themselves. In the building there are, besides the requisite bedrooms, a library for reading and writing, a living room, and a large assembly hall. They are equipping a gymnasium, a most excellent addition to the establishment.

Two meals a day are included in the small board charged, with three meals on Sundays and holidays. It is a self-supporting institution.

Among the women interested in the undertaking are the Mesdames W. E. Casselberry, Joseph E. Otis, Charles A. Street, Harold A. Smith, S. S. Gregory Jr., the Misses M. D. Hutchinson, and Irene Wilson.

Muratore Coming in May.

It is always an event in both the musical and social world when Lucien Muratore comes here to sing. Nowhere has he so firm a place in popular esteem as here. We like him, his personality, his voice, his great dramatic art. So the news that he is coming for a concert here early in May can't fail to interest many admirers.

The affair will be held on May 5 in the Auditorium, which has so often been filled with the echoes of his singing. The money made on this occasion will be devoted to aid the work of Grant hospital.

Among those actively interested in making the concert a success are the Mesdames Tracy Drake, Silas Strawn, Frederick Countiss, Emmons Blaine Jr., Kellogg Fairbank, William Sherman Hay, Alfred Martin, W. J. Chalmers, W. H. Rehm, W. C. Seipp, Charles Bohling, Archibald Naugle, Gustave Hessert, and Otto L. Schmidt. Nowhere are philanthropy, art, and society so thoroughly united as in Chicago.

MISS VIRGINIA OLWIN
PHOTO-MOFFETT

Miss Virginia Olwin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Brant Olwin of Wilmette, will be married to John Rutherford Nicholson of Chicago on April 2 at the Congregational church, Wilmette. Mr. and Mrs. Nicholson will be at home after May 15 at 1129 Maple avenue, Evanston.

MISS ELORA PERKINS

Do You Know Why "The Life Extension Institute" of New York Favors Corsets?

— Third Floor—Dearborn Street —

From the New York Tribune February 1st, 1921

"The Life Extension Institute," a public health organization of New York City, has decided to come out flatly for corsets.

Dr. D. M. Dunn, head of the woman's department of the institute, and Jeanette Eaton, head of the educational department, said that, after examining 15,000 women in the last year, they were convinced that the trouble is not that women wear corsets but that they wear the wrong kind of corsets.

Seventy per cent of the women, it was found, were wearing corsets which encourage faulty posture, instead of tending to correct it, due, in many instances, not to the make of the corset but to the fact that it was not the correct model for the figure wearing it.

Just what the Life Extension Institute has found out about corsets the thoroughly experienced corsetiere has known for many years—and that is why we so consistently urge women to have every corset they buy fitted. That is why we have built up our corps of corsetieres until today it is considered the best in all Chicago, with each member being a graduate of the "N. H. F. I." of New York, and that is why we feature for the Nemo corsets are made along the hygienic lines and in that medicinal, scientific way which can do so much to help most women, if only they secure the model their type of figure should have. Without extra charge our corsetieres will advise you and fit you properly, for they have at their command Nemo corsets in complete variety, which includes a distinct model designed for your individual type of figure.

WONDERLIFT CORSETS—a fashionable corset made with patented features that support the abdominal wall and keep the kidneys, intestines, stomach and liver from sagging. It is well named the "Wonderlift"—for it helps women to help themselves, to conserve their health, and in many cases regain it when lost. Made in five models for most every type of figure; why not have us fit you to a pair tomorrow at..... 7.25

Nemo Corsets $5 to $13

Nemo Diaphragm Reducing Corset, as illustrated. Notice that magic bit of elastic that flattens the whole front of the abdomen between the waist line and the groin section; controlling and reducing excess flesh on the diaphragm without pressure of any sort, it restores to and keeps in their normal position the frail abdominal organs. The extension back-stays give an unusually flat back and added comfort. Sizes to 36, at..... 9.00

Hebrew Institute Plans Big Summer Camp for Girls

By Kate Webber.

WITH a camp site already purchased at Loon Lake, Ill., members of the girls' camp committee of Chicago Hebrew institute expect to extend the dancing, swimming, games, and other recreational pursuits of the little girls in whom the institute is interested, into real summer vacations for the "little mothers" and household drudges in the congested city districts.

To provide funds for the camp equipment and necessary buildings the committee has arranged a benefit recital in which Arthur Rubinstein, pianist, will appear next Wednesday evening at the Drake. Members of the committee, with a large group of young women as junior aids, are actively at work on the sale of seats and boxes and still other groups of young people will serve as ushers and venders of programs.

In the camp will be tents enough to accommodate 100 girls every two weeks, with smaller tents for employés and a central hall for social and recreational uses. Health measures, first aid instruction, and athletics will be a part of the vacation program, and the instructors will be intelligent women, who will come into friendlier and closer contact with the daily lives of the girls than teachers or social workers could do, giving them counsel in their more serious problems of living.

It is hoped that the camp will be ready to open early in June and kept open through September, with a special effort to provide vacations for working girls during the latter month. Though the greater number of girls who come under the supervision of the institute are from Jewish families, the camp is nonsectarian.

Mrs. Joseph Fish is chairman of the camp committee, and others who are active in plans for the recital are Mrs. Morris Rosenwald, Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman, Mrs. James E. Greenebaum, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, Mrs. William R. Odell, Mrs. Joseph M. Harris, Mrs. Morris L. Johnston, Mrs. Edwin Austrian, Mrs. Jacob Bauer, Mrs. Eugene Lilienfeld, and Mrs. Jacob Loeb.

What the Chicago Y. W. C. A. is doing for the health, housing, good times, and mental and spiritual growth of Chicago working girls will be the subject of a series of talks to be given this month and next before women's clubs and societies. Mrs. William H. Hubbard is in charge of arranging speaking engagements before some of the most important clubs in the city, whose members will hear of the city wide program of the association. In the minds of many Chicagoans the Y. W. C. A. is still a matter of swimming pools and cafeterias, and it is the wish of the directors to present to the women of Chicago a fuller and more complete view of the work now being carried on in the fourteen activities centers, including three summer camps, the new foyer for foreign women students, and the industrial service center.

Mrs. Morris Rosenwald is in charge of the sale of seats for a concert to be given by Arthur Rubinstein Wednesday evening at the Drake under the auspices of the girls' camp committee of the Chicago Hebrew institute. The proceeds will go toward the establishment of a new camp at Loon Lake, Ill., where young girls from the congested districts may have recreation and health instruction which they might not receive under other conditions.

That Night Miss Hart Wrote a Letter

For several months Miss Hart had been hearing about the opportunities that Filing offers to ambitious girls and women.

"Is there a chance for me as a file clerk?" "Does filing pay good salaries?" "Does it offer a future?" "Is a file clerk reasonably sure of her position even in so-called bad times?"

These and other questions kept coming up constantly in her mind. For she was a bright girl and not one to overlook the future.

Then one night she came across an advertisement of the Illinois School of Filing and she read it.

As she finished reading she turned to her mother and said: "I am going to send for the prospectus of the school and look into it thoroughly."

So that night Miss Hart wrote a letter.

The prospectus came to her by return mail. To say that she was surprised is putting it mildly. She had never imagined that Filing was such an important part of business or that it could be studied, just as a man studies accounting or law or medicine.

She was impressed, too, with the photographs of the school and the practical nature of the course.

So she entered the Illinois School of Filing and graduated in four weeks. I asked her the other day if she remembered the night she had written for the prospectus.

"Remember it?" she answered. "I should say I do. It was one of the best things I ever did in my life. It introduced me to the most interesting work I have ever done.

"I would advise every girl who is sincerely interested in a good position and a real business career, to send for the prospectus as I did. It will be sent to you free by Miss Gladys C. Bridges, the Principal of the Illinois School of Filing."

High C without "metallic" suggestion!

A Brunswick achievement vouched for by highest musical authorities

THE severe test of a phonograph is in rendering "high notes"—especially soprano.

Note this when buying a phonograph. Note too, how many instruments vibrate—sound "metallic"—when these high notes are reached. Then hear The Brunswick.

Hear the full range of "high notes." High C, in piercing intensity, without slightest "metallic" intrusion!—clear toned, vibrationless. And you will marvel at difference so great in phonographs.

Thousands of music lovers have made this comparison. And chosen The Brunswick.

Highest musical authorities have made it. And in the homes of great musicians, both in Europe and America, you will find the Brunswick Phonograph.

Due to the Brunswick Method of Reproduction

This remarkable method is a patented feature of The Brunswick. No other phonograph has it.

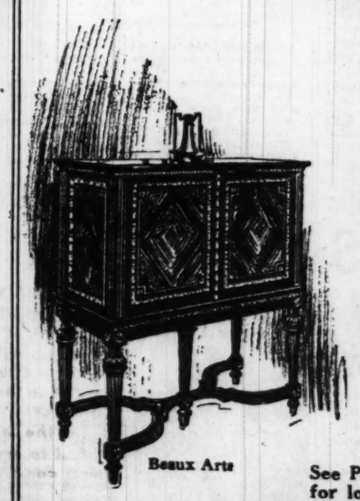
In it are embodied the Oval Tone Amplifier of moulded wood, and the Ultona, an all record reproducer, by means of which all makes of records can be played with a clarity of expression almost startling to one accustomed to hearing only the ordinary type of phonograph.

Sustained notes of mellow quality and mighty crescendos of volume are conveyed with equal facility. The notes of the piano are clearly the true notes of the piano; those of the violin unmistakable in their wailing sweetness, and the voice given its fullest expression without mechanical suggestion.

Hence, the position of The Brunswick in the musical world is Supreme.

And buying any phonograph without hearing The Brunswick is a mistake.

The nearest Brunswick dealer will be delighted to demonstrate this super-phonograph. Hear it. See it.



Beaux Arts

Made in Standard models and authentic Period Designs, in which good music is charmingly combined with the highest expression of the cabinet makers' art.

A Word About Brunswick Records

You may think there is "no difference" in records. That the same piece is alike on all records. Just for the joy of it, compare "Hungarian Rhapsody No. 2" as interpreted on a Brunswick, with any other record. Compare all the popular "hits"—the classics, too—and you will know what a wonderful difference Brunswick Interpretation makes.

MUSIC

New York Press Free with Censure of Chicago Opera

By Ruth Miller.

THIS morning lurking in ambush on our music page you will find a new department. At present it is titled "Who, What, and Wherefore in Music." As an idea this musical question box has been in a process of incubation for a number of months. It was developed and in due course of time hatched by the many letters of inquiry received by The Tribune concerning musicians, their history and accomplishments. Its sole purpose is to serve.

Any information, from the pronunciation of an opera singer's name to historical and analytical data on a Brahms symphony, will be given therein for the asking. There is only one "thou shalt not" to be thought of in propounding your questions. That is that we are not permitted to recommend any school of music, individual teacher, or artist. Outside of our daily review it is not vouchsafed us that we entertain any official opinion concerning the good or bad musical manners of the artistic great and near great.

All queries should be addressed to the Music Editor, Chicago Daily Tribune.

THE Chicago Grand Opera association finished its turbulent season of lyric drama in New York a week ago, after producing some twenty-six operas, and took to the open road. The New York press did little airing of the dirty operatic linen dingied during its stay—they overlooked entirely the choice tittle-tattle that says that the lessors of the Manhattan Opera house started to remove the electric light fixtures of that home of lyric quarrels because of an alleged nonpayment of rent by Mme. Hammerstein. Or the further gossip which relates how G. M. Spangler, the new business manager of the company, was compelled to pay that $7,000 rent in order that his singers might proceed in their carefree operatic way.

And Chicago reporters who were so busily and successfully inquisitive during the late lyric season in our town, sniffing afar all these belated and overlooked news stories, are commenting disgustedly on what they designate as the inexpertness and sloth of their Manhattan contemporaries. But if the reportorial sleuths of New York failed to record the strife at the Manhattan the auditors of music were generous enough with their comment.

Richard Aldrich of the New York Times starts off pertinently with "They call it the Chicago opera, but it seems to be coming to exist more and more for New York, whence it derived its origin." He then comments on the rumor that Chicago's Auditorium is to be torn down to give place to a building more profitable to its owners; the tattle that the Manhattan opera house is to be sold and used for commercial purposes, thus driving the Chicago opera back to the Lexington theater for its New York season.

He pauses in his summary of Chicago's operatic season to scold certain Chicago writers who ventured the statement upon the announcement of Galli-Curci's engagement with the Metropolitan that in the future she would always sing in tune to the ears of the New York critics.

He remarks as follows: "It (the Chicago opera) will not be unwelcome next season, and the company will be greeted with good will and the desire to appreciate its best qualities of what it has to offer, also with frankness in criticizing the defects; the same disposition that is displayed toward the native company, notwithstanding the acidulous comments of those who apparently spend their time in Chicago scrutinizing with a microscope the New York newspapers to discover strictures upon Chicago in the operatic notices.

These testy gentlemen apparently overlook the fact that the New York press is as free with the strictures upon the New York opera, when the writers believe them deserved, as they are with strictures upon the Chicago opera, it being apparently impossible for these gentlemen to believe that there can be possibly any cause for strictures on what comes from the city by the lake. If they are aware that there is in Chicago an orchestra as well as an opera company, they might have derived some instruction as to the point of view of the writers for the New York press by reading what was said here about that orchestra and its performance in this city a few weeks ago. But it is not at all necessary, and might, in fact, disturb their complacency in their own views, and deprive them of one of their favorite amusements."

Of the coloratura bone of contention responsible for this critical tempest he writes: "Mme. Galli-Curci showed, as she did before, a voice of much beauty with certain excellent qualities in her art, and certain well defined deficiencies and limitations which prevent her singing from taking the rank it might take. Nor has the fact of her engagement with the Metropolitan improved her vocal style or caused any greater indulgence for its insufficiencies."

A more detailed survey of the Chicago season is W. J. Henderson's in the Herald. "They came," he relates; "they were heard, and sometimes they conquered. Earnest efforts were made by the faithful to maintain the fervor of the previous season, but when certain celebrated stars sang the standing room was not crowded, and there were many empty seats.

"Without a doubt the public found its chief joy in the stentorian proclamations of Titto Ruffo. When he sang Tonio in 'Pagliacci' the theater and the streets surrounding were jammed. Lucien Muratore in 'Romeo and Juliet,' with the placid Galli-Curci as the daughter of the Capulets, was a powerful magnet. Gino Marinuzzi's opera, 'Jacquerie,' was only tolerably performed. The singers were quite equal to their tasks, particularly Mr. Galeffi, who made a truly dramatic figure of the peasant leader. But the work was insufficiently rehearsed. Everything was uncertain. Everybody overanxious.

"Mr. Baklanoff was not in good vocal condition during the season. But this is not a matter to cause any astonishment. One wonders that any of the singers of the Chicago company are ever in good voice. They all do entirely too much work. The human throat is not made of brass, even when it produces tones similar to those of a trumpet. Mme. Galli-Curci becomes an element in the uncertainties of the future. Chicago says that she will sing eight times at the Metropolitan. New York laughs scornfully and intimates that eight will be liberally multiplied.

"It concerns the reviewer not at all, but he suspects that eight multiplied by two would be a safe conservatism. Mme. Galli-Curci is not the same cause for public excitement that she was two or three years ago, and the more often she is heard the less will be the general appetite for her dulcet tones.

"Only a few days ago the statement was issued that next winter the Chicago company would tarry in New York ten weeks. Officiol proclamation on Thursday morning said 'five or six.' The wisdom of the Chicago overlords in deciding not to prolong their visit unduly will hardly be questioned. The repertoire of the company has had difficulty in standing the strain of six weeks. It would hardly be likely to blossom afresh under the dews of ten."

And so the anvil chorus goes on. There is unstinted praise for the general director and lavish censure for her singers.

Those among you who have indulged in query concerning the success of our opera among the wilds of Manhattan may read the foregoing and glean therefrom much concerning the magnanimous impartiality of the eastern commentators toward the operatic sandpipers of Chicago.

WHO, WHAT, AND WHY IN MUSIC

In this department the music editor will endeavor to answer queries which are of general interest. Matters of individual concern which have to do with the reliability and merits of various music publishers, teachers, artists, managers, or lyceum bureaus cannot be answered. Communications should bear the name and address of the writer. Address Music Editor, Chicago Daily Tribune.

P. T.: The names of symphony orchestras and their conductors in the United States are as follows: The Chicago Symphony orchestra, under Frederick Stock; the New York Philharmonic, under Joef Stransky; the New York orchestra, under Walter Damrosch; the National Symphony orchestra, under Arturo Bodansky; the Boston Symphony orchestra, under Pierre Monteux; the Philadelphia Symphony, under Leopold Stokowski; the Detroit Symphony, under Ossip Gabrilowitsch; the Cincinnati Symphony, under Eugene Ysaye; the Minneapolis Symphony, under Emil Oberhoffer; the St. Louis Symphony, without a permanent leader since the recent death of Max Zach; the Los Angeles Symphony, under Walter Henry Rothwell, and the San Francisco Symphony, under Alfred Hertz.

R. S.: Parke in his "Musical Memoirs" says that the air to which "Home, Sweet Home" is set is from a German opera; all other authorities agree in calling it a Sicilian air adapted by Sir Henry Rowley Bishop. Donizetti introduced a slightly altered form of the air into his opera, "Anna Bolena," at the suggestion of Mme. Pasta, the famous singer.

MRS. L. R.: True, the second subject, first movement, of the Dvorak "New World Symphony" bears a striking resemblance to the tune "Swing low, Sweet Chariot, Coming for to carry me home," but concerning his alleged employment of Negro melodies in this, his fifth, symphony, Dvorak has to say "that nonsense about my having made use of 'Indian' and 'American' motives—that is a lie. I tried to write only in the spirit of those national American melodies."

They Figure Out Their Income Tax

PROLOGUE.

One day Sam Loyd, the gentleman who makes puzzles, and Houdini, the gentleman who solves them, had a friendly altercation. "I'll bet you," says Loyd, "I can cook up a puzzle you can't make head or tail of." "You're on," says Houdini. Loyd came around two years later looking ten years older and twenty-five pounds thinner. He laid an Income Tax Return before Houdini. "There it is," he says. "I rest my case." Houdini looked at it and shook his head. "You win," says Houdini. At least that is what Pa Potter believes after putting in many weary hours of painful skull-practice on the durn thing.

OVERTURE.

A man may have a corrugated cortex
Full of isms, ics, and ologies galore,
His medulla oblongata unaffected by errata,
His cerebrum be the rendezvous of lore,
And his filaments neuronic be satiric and sardonic,
A sophisticated saturate of facts,
And his clever occiput (that's the Latin word for "nut")
Be a dome of erudition and a font of wisdom . . . BUT Does it postulate ability to calculate his tax?

CHO.

A sophisticated saturate of unrelated facts
Doesn't postulate ability to calculate a tax!

SCENE: THE POTTER LIVING ROOM.

(Pa is working on his income tax schedule with a sharp pencil and a dull conscience.)

PA: I'd like to kill the goophy guy
That figured out the which and why
And who and what
Of all this rot—
It simply drives me loco . . .

BILL: O, do the things it says to do—
That shouldn't be so tough for you;
I bet I could . . . and easy, too;
Just exercise your coco.

MAMIE: O, Bill can do it easily,
He's such a clever boy, you see;
So keen and wise
Such exercise
For him would be so simple.

BILL: Too bad when brains were passed about
They had to go and leave you out—
If knowledge is a bump, old scout,
Then you have got a dimple.

PA: If you two simply have to scrap,
There's lots of places on the map;
Get out of here . . . don't bother me.

"Get out of here . . . don't bother me."

MA: Your Pa is busy, can't you see?
There's more important things to do
Than settling fights between you two.

PA: Now let me see . . . to schedule K
you have to add your column A,
Subtract your tax on section 2 . . .
Now what the devil next to do?

MA: Now don't you have to add this here?
Or maybe you subtract it, dear.

PA: You'll be a lot of help, you will;
You can't even add a grocery bill.

MA: I'm merely trying to do my part—
You needn't think you're acting smart.

PA: Aw, have a heart, Ma . . . have a heart!

MA: I thought I was trying to do what's right,
And you have to go and start a fight.
Do it yourself, since you act smart.

PA: Aw, have a heart, Ma, have a heart.
I'm merely trying to get this done . . .
Let's see . . . you add up column 1
And multiply by 4 per cent.
I wonder if I can deduct my rent?

MA (who's been looking over Pa's shoulder):
Since when did you get a raise?
And why did you keep it dark?
Here I've been slaving for days and days
While you have been having a lark.

PA: I told you, dear, at the first of the year
I might get a bonus, and this is it here . . .

MA: You never mentioned a word
Of a bonus they'd give to you;
You are holding out on your wife, no doubt,
A despicable thing to do.
I want to know if it's true.
Why didn't you tell me they gave you a raise?
To think you've been hiding it all these days!
I wouldn't believe it of you,
I wouldn't, I wouldn't, I certainly wouldn't,
I wouldn't believe it of you.

PA: How am I going to figure this out
If you're gonna sniffle and snuffle about?
I told you I might get a bonus this year;
I got it . . . that's all there is to it, my dear . . .
And this is it here . . . is that perfectly clear?

(Well, finally the clouds roll by on that one. But Pa still has a lot of figuring to do. Should he subtract car fare to and from work as part of his expenses? How about the money he loaned to his brother-in-law? Would that come under "bad debts" or "donation"? Should he put in that $250 extra he earned last year, or shall he forget it? He decides to forget it . . . the Government certainly can't check up on all those things, can it? Wonder if there are any other places it can be whittled down? . . . Let's see . . . O, yes . . . but wait a minute, suppose they should check back on that? Um-m-m, it might be hard to explain . . . no, honesty is the best policy, especially when you're liable to get in bad with Uncle Sam.)

PA: "Do you keep your books on an accrual basis?"
Whatever that means . . . I'll just write "yes."
Fiduciaries? . . . what are those?
When does your fiscal season close?
Amortization . . .
Depreciation . . .
Obsolescence and liquidation . . .
Tax-free covenant obligation . . .
Whathahel is it all about?
Darned if I can figure it out!

MA: What will your children think of you,
Swearing around the way you do?

PA: Let 'em get out . . . they don't have to listen.
Jumping Jehoshaphat! . . . listen to thissun!
". . . and contributions to the special fund for vocational rehabilitation. The total contributions deducted must not exceed 15 per cent of the amount of the net income computed without the benefit of the deduction, as shown in schedule L."
Schedule L is good, b'gee;
The whole thing sounds like "L" to me . . .

(Hours pass and Pa is still figuring. Midnight strikes. Pa lays down his pencil and regards the results. He rubs his throbbing brow and blinks his bleary eyes. The job is done.)

PA (apostrophizing the Infernal—I mean the Internal—Revenue Office):
If you can figure this thing out when I have turned it in You're a better man than I am, Gunga Din.

ASTRONOMY

HOW BIG WE ARE.—The large globe above is the sun. The small white dot below is the earth. —By S. F. Maxwell.

THE SUN GIVES LIFE.

DID you ever hear of any one who actually obtained something for nothing? Did he get it without the expenditure of a single thing which was valuable? If you have, write to this department immediately, because such a thing has never happened before in the whole history of the world. It simply isn't done that way. Nature, generous to the extreme with her gifts, puts valuables in the reach of all, and yet every one who picks them up must pay a price. Astronomy can give you some insight into how this is done.

You step on a train, find a seat, settle down for your journey, look out of the window. The train starts, speeds along, mile after mile. You open the window for a breath of air and a puff of smoke comes in. The journey, the speed, the rush of air, the smoke, all are absolutely dependent on the sun.

As you close your throat against the smoke, remember that at one time is was sunbeams which mixed with earthly carbon to make coal. The train is moved by the energy from the burning coal, and the coal has energy because the sun put it there. Coal is found in many parts of the earth, but man must expend energy to carry it to the place where it is to be burned. There is more energy in the coal than man expended to dig it out and, therefore, the coal is valuable.

Do you realize that if the sun were blotted out the earth would be dead in a week? Suppose, some balmy summer night, that the sun should vanish. The cool of dawn would be there, but with no sun to make the day the cool would deepen to a chill, until what would have been the day would be a showery night. A cold rain would fall as the evening came on, becoming snow.

On the second day the snow would come down in denser, harder, more silent, awful flakes. This would be the earth's water condensing from the air. Winds would cease, for the sun is the cause of winds, and through the thinning clouds the clear, cold stars would appear.

The cold would increase the third day, zero—down, down—rivers would freeze solid, the oceans would send up steam that froze and fell again, until they, too, were filled with ice. People would be forced to seek their homes, and before fires that would be ever hungrier and hungrier as the cold increased they would wait the end. There would be no heat on earth except in deep caves and mines where the earth's own fires made warmth. On the surface of the ground it would soon be cold enough to almost freeze the air, and in a changeless, frigid land like this the frost would claim the lives of all of us.

AVIATION

Many Airplanes to Fly Over City This Summer

Schools and Service Company Men Optimistic

BY MORROW KRUM.

A MAN who is not only thoroughly familiar but thoroughly "sold" on flying as a practical business came into the aviation department last Friday and made the following assertions:

"This year will see the real start of commercial aviation," he said. "This year will be to the flying business what 1900 was to the automobile business. It will take hold in the commercial world and there will be an unbelievable increase.

"By September airplanes flashing over the loop will not even draw a glance from the pedestrians below. It will be the usual thing—not at all interesting to any except the business man whose wares the ships are carrying."

The man, like many Americans, may have made his optimistic statements without due qualification, but a general survey of the aviation situation of this city does bear out his opinions to some extent.

On April 1 the Diggins School of Aviation at Ashburn field will open. According to Ralph Diggins, more than 200 young men have signified their intentions to learn to fly by signing entrance blanks.

At Ashburn field in the Partridge hangar are all privately owned airplanes. Their owners fly these ships regularly on Sunday now and during the summer will no doubt be flying them every clear day.

Mr. Partridge is building some passenger ships in his factory at Homewood. They will be put into an aerial taxi service between Chicago and nearby cities soon after June 1.

Officials of the Aero Club of Illinois and the Aviation club of Chicago are making every possible effort to secure permission from park officials to have landing fields at Sixteenth street on the south side and Grace street on the north side.

At the Checkerboard field in Maywood the Behnke hangers are filled with ships that will be busy carrying passengers on short joy rides and long intracity trips this summer.

The air mail service will, of course, continue to fly; it is expected the day and night mail service will be established before the first day of June.

Alfred Lawson, builder of the twenty-six passenger leviathian airliner No. 1, announced last week that he will have the airliner No. 2 in condition to make its first night hop to New York within a few weeks. This ship is equipped with berths. Lawson expects to have a regular aerial passenger service between this city and New York.

News came from Cincinnati last week that the Cincinnati Aviation company has been incorporated with a capital stock of $100,000—soon to be increased to $1,000,000—and that an express and passenger carrying service will be inaugurated before the middle of July between Chicago and the Ohio city.

So it looks as if Chicago were going to see some commercial flying this summer.

"MAIL MUST FLY."

Last Tuesday Harwell C. Thompson, air mail pilot, flew mail ship No. 109 from Minneapolis to Chicago, a distance of 360 miles, in two hours and thirty-three minutes. When he set the wheels down on the Maywood field he believed he had completed a good day's work and had visions of a big steak in a Maywood restaurant. But as he walked into the shanty to report the telegraph instrument brought news that the east bound mail was down at Bryan. The mail must fly—so Thompson hopped in the cockpit, went to Bryan, collected the cargo of the disabled ship, and flew it to Cleveland.

No More Flying Cadets Can Be Accepted Now

THE following letter was received by THE TRIBUNE yesterday:

"War Department, Air Service, Washington, D. C., March 10, 1921.—Sir:

"1. As a result of recent publicity to the effect that this office was in a position to train about 500 civilians as flying cadets hundreds of communications have been received requesting application blanks and other data pertaining to this training.

"2. The legislation passed by congress on Feb. 7, 1921, prohibiting further enlistments in the army until the enlisted strength is reduced to 175,000 has also been construed to stop the further enlistment of flying cadets. This office is now sending replies to these inquiries to the effect that it will not be possible to enlist civilians for this training until the army is reduced to the above strength. It is estimated that no further enlistments can therefore be made until about the close of this calendar year.

"3. In order to offset the publicity given to the enlistment of these civilian applicants for flying training and in order to reduce the correspondence on this subject at this time, it is recommended that publicity be given to the fact that it will not now be possible to make any further enlistments of civilian candidates for this training until the army is reduced to a strength of 175,000, and it is estimated that this reduced strength will probably not be reached before the end of the present calendar year.

"RUSH B. LINCOLN,
"Major, Air Service, Chief, Personnel Division."

Russian Air Mail.

MOSCOW.—Aerial postal communication has been established by the Red aerial fleet on the Kharkoff-Kieff-Ekaterinoslav-Sevastopol line. Postal aeroplanes made their first journey Jan. 13. The Makhonin electric train has made its first journey with passengers from Petrograd to Luban. The Putiloff electric stations have been restarted.

Leap From Ship.

NICE.—Lieut. Jean Ors this morning jumped from an aeroplane traveling at nearly 100 miles an hour when 1,200 feet above the sea opposite the Promenade des Anglais here in order to test a new type of parachute.

Contest.

Complete details of the $1,000 newspaper prize contest flown by pilots of the air mail service will be found in the Aviation section of THE TRIBUNE next Sunday.

Engine Tested.

The initial run of the new engineering division 700 horse power model "W" engine was made on Jan. 10, with most satisfactory results. This engine was completely designed by the staff of the engineering division at McCook field. This engine is of the W type, having eighteen cylinders arranged in three banks of six, and develops more horse power than any engine which has been built in the United States. The actual figures on the test have not been divulged, but are said to exceed the designers' expectations.

Large Tent Hangar.

The largest tent hangar in the world has recently been erected at McCook field for test. This hangar is 130 feet by 30 feet, with a clear opening across the front. It is large enough to accommodate three Martin bombers and should prove valuable in service use if it withstands the weathering test satisfactorily.

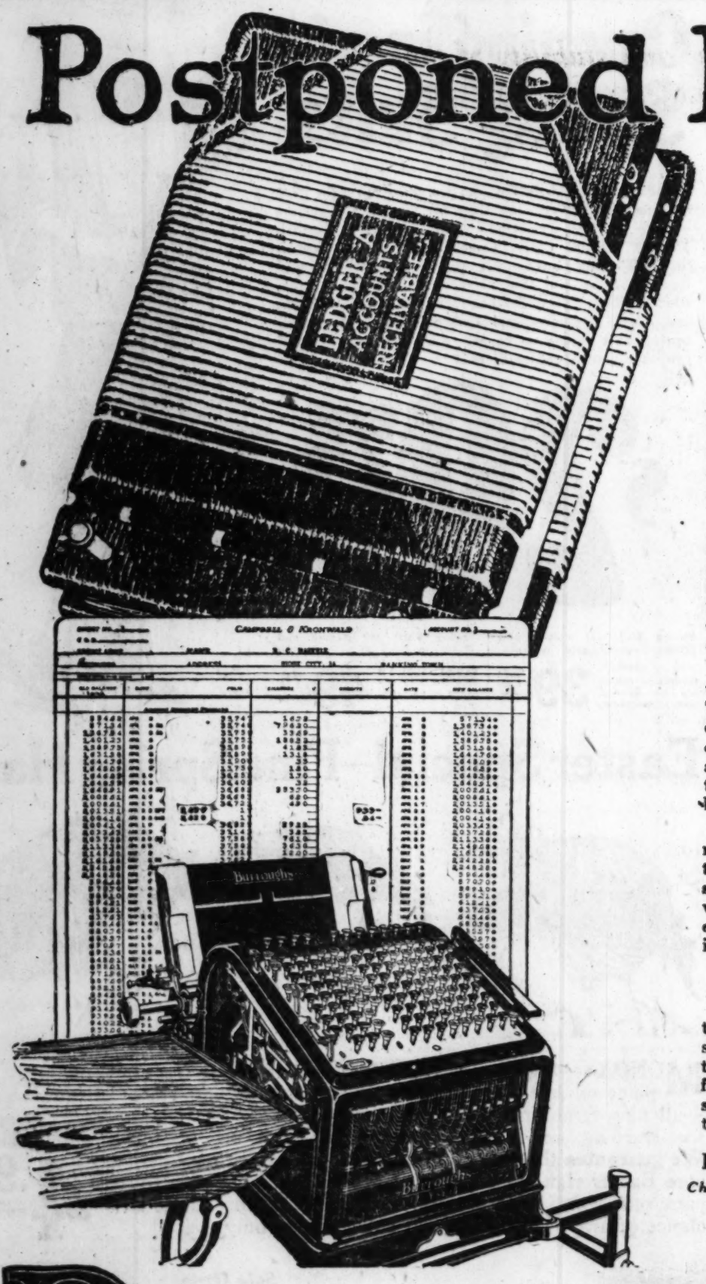
Postponed Income



You are in business to make money and the sole object of keeping books is that you may know whether you are making or losing money and how much.

The real value of your books depends upon the information they give you. Take the accounts receivable ledger for example:

How much of your profit is locked up in the accounts receivable ledger? Do you realize that all delays and losses must be absorbed by net profit; that when an account is not collected for sixty or ninety days, it is equivalent to loaning money for that period without interest?

It is "up to you" to collect that postponed income as soon as possible. The earlier bills and statements are rendered, the higher will be the percentage of collections. Better collections result in improved profits; the money can be used in your own instead of your customer's business; your turn-over may be increased and closer collections naturally decrease losses.

Burroughs Bookkeeping machines make it possible to mail bills and statements the first of the month. The daily balance feature shows the condition of each account whenever it changes and a statement of each account may be carried along with it so that at the end of the month it is only necessary to copy the balance on the statement and it is then ready to be mailed.

"Collections don't really begin," says one Burroughs user, "until the statements are in the customers' hands and we find that just as soon as our statements go out the money begins to come in. The value of the prompt statements and detailed knowledge of the business made possible by the Burroughs is obvious."

The A B C of Business

Adding, bookkeeping and calculating represent the three great groups of figuring operations that constitute the A B C of business. To handle these operations the Burroughs Adding Machine Company manufacture three types of machines in a wide variety of styles and sizes, among which may be found a machine that will fit the needs of any business, large or small.

ART AND ARCHITECTURE

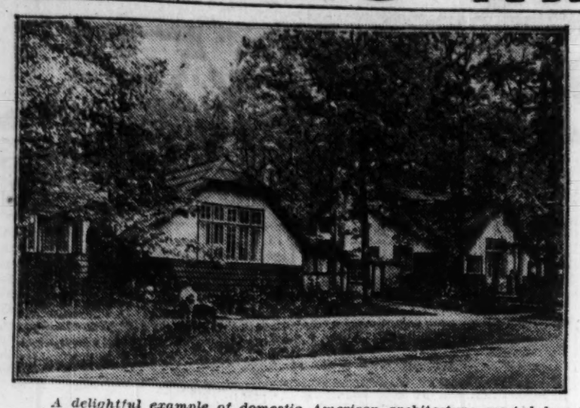
Present New Type of Mosaic Giving Third Dimension

By Eleanor Jewett.

A reddened wall where ivy grows,
Green in the morning sun;
A window through which peeps a rose—
A song but just begun.

A laughing stream that shines by day,
Blue as the sky of June;
A field where yellow daisies play—
A path beneath the moon.

A path, a song, and candle-light,
A cottage down the lane—
Need we seek further, Heart's Delight,
Our castle built in Spain



A delightful example of domestic American architecture erected by Charles Morgan in Wilmette, Ill. Mr. Morgan is showing a successful new type of mosaic in the architectural exhibit at the Art institute.

WHY is there always romance about the words "Ann Hathaway's cottage"? There always is, but the reason of it is hard to define, except perhaps that the words conjure up before us an immediate picture of a little house comfortably buried in green vines and red roses, standing by a country lane where, in the century-old trees roundabout, birds sing. This is the familiar conception of "home"—that home which is too little realized by the most of us except in dreams. It is the castle in Spain that vanishes when we get within touching distance of its shining walls.

In the thirty-fourth annual Chicago Architectural exhibit, which opened last Tuesday at the Art institute, there is a most attractive rendering of an Ann Hathaway cottage—of THE Ann Hathaway cottage, perhaps it should be put. The little picture is in mosaic and was done by Pauline Halliwell, who is developing the new type of mosaic started by Charles Morgan in continuation of the original invention of Prof. Wells of the University of Illinois.

The mosaic has the general effect of a painting, but is more decorative and more generally useful than the average mural decoration. It gives remarkably the third dimension. I have seen a portrait of Theodore Roosevelt which, by the way, would be most properly placed in the new Roosevelt theater on State street) in which the expression of the eyes is almost frightening, it is so alive, so real, and so human. There is a depth to the work done in this mosaic that is lacking in the old mosaics and is lacking in most painted walls. It is a new achievement which it would repay builders and decorators to investigate carefully.

For the first time the exhibition of applied arts has been staged with that of the architectural effects. The result is interesting. The first gallery of the east wing has been transformed into a most attractive place with settings for rooms at either end, and through the middle of the hall cases with hammered silver and other objects of skillful handicraft. A catalogue was lacking on the day of the press view so that detailed account of the applied arts exhibit must go over to another time.

In the architectural exhibit proper, the most imposing work shown is undoubtedly the model of the Bahai temple, which is to be erected in Wilmette on the lake front. The architect is M. Bourgeois. To erect the model in all its exhibition splendor a French sculptor of note, M. Meliodon of New York, was sent here from the east. His task has been successfully achieved. The model shines in all the glory of its Byzantine, Persian, Indian lines, and in the beauty of its carving, particularly in the fragile beauty of its dome, is unique.

A model that will bear study is that for the grounds of the country place of Col. R. R. McCormick at Wheaton, Ill. From terraces to swimming pool; from swimming pool to duck pond and vegetable garden, the grounds stretch from the house in unbroken lines of natural beauty—helped a bit, it must be admitted, by the landscape architecting of Mr. Root of Root, Hollister, Reeves & Harris.

The water color by Ralph Millman, a detail of the tower of the First Methodist Episcopal church and Community house at Gary, Ind. (Lowe & Bollenbacher, architects), is charming.

So many of the pieces in this exhibit are photographs of places, buildings, homes, or grounds, that it is difficult to know exactly which to dwell upon. Edmund S. Campbell has a group of charming water colors, many of them being glimpses of the gardens of the Luxembourg or at Versailles. The Chicago School of Architecture of the Art institute is well represented with renderings for various interiors and exteriors. One, a design for a country house, was awarded a medal in the competitive exhibition held recently at the Beaux Arts institute of New York.

Sketches of doorways and buildings by Otto R. Eggers, one of the best known draftsmen in the country, are interesting. Many of the sketches by Chester Wolcott are charming. The photographs of the mural decorations by Arthur Covey, who, by the way, is the only man now putting big murals into big business houses such as retail and wholesale stores, are of value, and mention of his work is worth while, because it should be emphasized that an increased use of decoration inside a store is bound to add to the attraction of that store for its customers. In this field, too, the mosaic done by Charles Morgan should find great scope. Another factor in favor of the mosaic might be mentioned. It may be put on the outside of the building and will be unharmed by years of all and any kinds of weather.

The drawings by Charles Platt, working details they are, are splendid. One cannot help but be impressed by their finish and solid beauty.

The tiny models of suburban houses made by Clark and Walcott are attractive, until one attempts to find their entrance. Then the charm of their quaint lines is dimmed more than a little, for who wishes to spend the best part of a lifetime chasing around his home trying to get in? In the two models shown the entrance and approach to the house are exceedingly poorly conceived.

There are some figures (panels) in colored cement by Rumsey, a New York sculptor, which are considered of interest but for which there seems little to be said unless one believes in harping upon the ancient theme of Egyptian and older times. Why not bring a modern note into this kind of art? Why should our artists of today seek to model after the stiff and ungainly figures of the artists on the Nile? Greece gave better models—if we must persist in going out of our own century for form and line.

In conjunction with the architectural exhibition is the exhibition of the Woman's National Farm and Garden association. Howard Van Doren Shaw set a problem for a garden design. Prizes were offered, and the first prize of $100 given by Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson was won by Hale Walker of the school of landscape architecture at Harvard university. The second prize of $50, given by Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, was awarded to Mrs. Henriette Marquis Pope; and the third prize of $25, given by Mrs. Keith Spaulding, was won by Frances Nearing of Boston.

Perhaps the most attractive room in the entire east wing devoted to these exhibitions is the room given over to the tiny models for garden statuary. The room has been decked with trailing green vines; on the walls are hung the delicately drawn and colored designs for gardens; an ancient, weather beaten figure of rider and horse, brought back from France by Howard Shaw, lends accent to one side of the gallery. Through the middle and about the room are placed the models for fountains, for garden statues, and for weather vanes.

This Great Company Stands Behind the Oakland Car

A few timely facts about the size, experience and stability of the concern that produces one of the world's most popular motor cars

THIS is a year in the automobile business when the standing and resources of the motor car manufacturer count as they never counted before.

Wise automobile buyers, for the protection of their present and future interests, are carefully weighing the record and reputation of the company behind the product.

In common with other good manufacturers, Oakland welcomes this tendency as something long-awaited and much desired.

For we know well that every additional fact that the public learns about our Company and its methods, is likewise an additional argument in favor of our car.

Oakland's Place in the Industry

The Oakland Motor Car Company was founded fourteen years ago, which is a long time as time is measured in so young an industry.

In the period since, it has grown steadily from a minor factor in the business to the seventh largest producer of automobiles in the world.

Today it not only manufactures all the important elements of its product, but it virtually controls the manufacture of all minor parts and equipment as well.

For the Oakland Company is an important unit of the General Motors Corporation, the largest automobile producing organization on earth.

The Present Oakland Product

The Oakland Sensible Six car today represents six years' concentration by Oakland upon the development of a well-built, serviceable and lightweight automobile.

Its six-cylinder engine is of overhead-valve design, a type demonstrated as superior by its use in all airplane and racing car engines.

Because its overhead-valve cylinder is the nearest commercial approach to the ideal combustion chamber, this engine delivers more power than others of similar size.

It has very light but strong reciprocating parts which reduce bearing loads and minimize vibration, a superior method of vaporizing fuel, and the best lubricating system yet devised.

The Economy of the Oakland

The Oakland Sensible Six owner realizes a measure of combined efficiency and low cost from his car that in our opinion no other automobile can equal.

He enjoys more miles from the gallon of gasoline, more power per pound of car weight, quicker acceleration, easier hill-climbing and greater flexibility, than are available in any other car at anywhere near the Oakland price.

Because of the Oakland policy of focusing its whole energies upon a single chassis type of proved capacity, he commands a value much greater than would otherwise be possible.

Because of the size and stability of Oakland he is assured of the permanence of his investment, and consequently of the relatively high re-sale value of his car.

The Record of the Oakland

Behind the present Oakland Sensible Six as an endorsement, is the record of more than 200,000 other Oaklands of similar type, already satisfactorily serving owners.

These owners report performance of a remarkably efficient character, with returns of from 18 to 25 miles to the gallon of gasoline, and from 8,000 to 12,000 miles on tires.

Ready for your inspection now are Oakland cars of similar calibre, in Open Car, Coupe, Roadster and Sedan models.

We shall be glad at any time to demonstrate the Oakland to you.

THE OAKLAND CREED

"To build at a fair price an automobile so sightly as to uphold its owner's honest pride, so competent as to arouse his genuine respect, so reliable as to win his deepest confidence, so economical as to serve his highest interest—this has been the purpose, is now the accomplishment, and will continue to be the endeavor to which Oakland devotes the whole of its energies, its resources and its skill."

Open Car, $1395; Roadster, $1395; Four Door Sedan, $2065; Coupe, $2065. F. O. B. Pontiac, Mich. Additional for Wire Wheel Equipment, $85

State Seeks to Set Blame for Wreck of Good Roads Program by Survey of Actual Costs

BY J. L. JENKINS.

Who is holding up the Illinois good roads program?

Gov. Len Small, in rejecting all of the highway bids which were to have launched the state's most vital development issue to a flying start, has laid the blame on the high price per mile. His action has stirred highway interest to a white heat and sent business men, farmers, and civic leaders everywhere gunning after the guilty combination.

In the following report The Tribune has attempted to get at the fundamentals of the question by showing what a mile of good highway is and how it is divided in dollars and cents.

YEARS of hard work and millions of experimental dollars have been spent in learning the modern lesson of good highways. In Illinois ten years of road evolution resulted last year in the drafting of a set of official Illinois highway specifications which were distributed over the world and accepted as the finest construction plans on record. They were adopted by Col. C. S. Riche, chief engineer of the Panama road commission, as the basis for United States work in the Zone and were also adopted by many state commissions and numerous European authorities.

The 341 miles of improved roads laid down in Illinois in 1920, according to state engineers, are typical examples of work under the specifications, although added reinforcements were demanded for the 500 miles of concrete improvement which were planned for 1921.

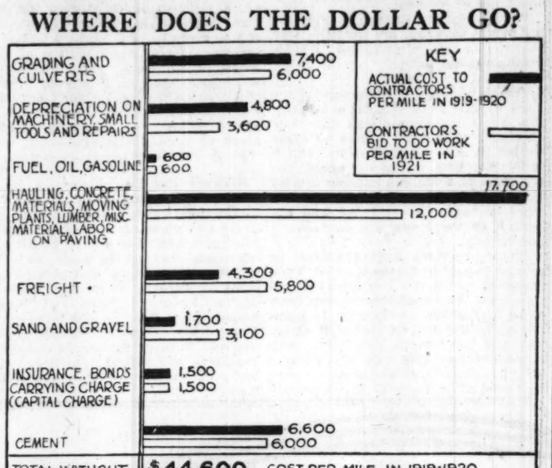
Study of an average mile of road selected from the federal aid system which was to have given Illinois 550 miles of continuous concrete this year shows that the grading and culvert building alone actually cost $7,400 in 1919 and 1920. The 219 contractors who bid for this spring's work promised that the grading and culverts on the "average mile" would cost $6,000.

In 1919 the machinery used to lay the mile—Illinois contractors have invested some $3,000,000 in this machinery—cost a total of $23,1000. This year workers promised to cut down that cost to $16,200 through the use of new machinery and better methods.

Freight in 1919 was one of the biggest items of expense entering into the mile. Then the cost of transporting sand, gravel, and cement averaged $4,300 per mile. This year the road program faces a 35 per cent increase in rates, raising the cost to $5,800. Both sand and gravel have advanced in prices, the only items with the exception of freight that increase the 1921 total. Their advance is being investigated by the state commission. Cement has decreased about $66 per mile.

The actual cost of the 1919 mile, exclusive of profit to the contractor and the reinforcement called for this year, was $44,600. The average cost promised this year, including profit, reinforcement and increased freight, is $43,300.

WHERE DOES THE DOLLAR GO?



HERE are a few trade secrets, showing how good road money is divided. The first graph is a compilation. It marks the actual money paid out for the average mile of eighteen foot concrete laid down in 1919-'20, costs taken from the Dixie, Lincoln, and Chicago-Springfield-St. Louis highways. The second shows the cost of an average mile taken from the list of bids rejected by Gov. Small.

In 1919-'20 road building was a battle. Among the barriers were lack of railroad cars, switchmen's strike, coal strikes, shortage and inefficiency of labor, and rail embargoes. Many of the big contractors fulfilled their contracts at cost or took losses.

In 1921 the state demanded reinforcing in pavements not included in 1919 work. Labor, figured into all of the costs, averages about $8,000 per mile. The 1921 bids also include a 35 per cent increase in freight rates. The "margin of profit" is the contractor's price of 10 per cent.

Rival State Pays Record Price for New Paved Roads

PENNSYLVANIA, the old time rival of Illinois in the race for paved roads, is preparing to award contracts for the construction of ninety-seven miles of concrete highway at an average cost of $73,500 per mile.

High bids received at the big "letting party" averaged $90,000 per mile, according to reports forwarded to the Illinois highway commission, and the lowest estimate placed on any mile of work in counties where the most favorable conditions face the builders was $51,400.

"It costs money to build roads this year," declared State Engineer Uhler, in commenting on the estimates, "but it costs more money to do without them. The people of Pennsylvania are dead tired of being tied up to mud and transportation delays. They have demanded paved roads and we are going to build them. We are going to take advantage of the early spring construction opening, get materials on the ground while the railroads have plenty of cars, and set a new progress record."

The Pennsylvania bids were taken on twenty-seven jobs. Sixteen, proposing to build seventy-seven miles at a minimum of $76,000 each, were rejected, but ten of the original bids, on twenty-two miles of the system, have been retained, and it is believed awards will be made at once.

While Chicago highway boosters digested the Pennsylvania idea a commission of expert engineers appointed by California to find out what is the matter with the 4 inch pavements laid in many parts of that state, reported that they are failing under the increased weight of traffic. The commission toured one 1,300 mile system which was built some years ago and has cost about $33,000 a mile in construction and repairs. They advised thicker pavements generally, but pointed out that the system in question more than paid for its entire cost in the first year of its use.

Chief Engineer Hurst of Wisconsin has forwarded official figures to show that the road users of his state actually save 1 cent per mile in driving over improved roads, the saving computed in gasoline conservation, tire and motor depreciation, safeguards, and accident prevention. His figures will be used by the Illinois Automobile club and other organizations out to force paved roads in Illinois at any cost.

The World's Worst Road

You've been over it. Unburden yourself by addressing "World's Worst Road." The Sunday Tribune, Chicago. Give the exact location of the stretch you struck. The Tribune will pay $1 for each letter published.

Here's to You.

The Retail Merchants' Association of Quincy, Ill., hastens to set the mind of Mrs. J. M. M. at rest concerning her pet horrible highway between West Quincy and Palmyra, Mo. The organization's president declares that in the last three months his associations has spent enough time and effort to build a gravel boulevard as far as Taylor, Mo., and that improvement work has made an excellent road on to Palmyra. He states that tourists desiring to cross the river at Quincy need have no fear now concerning that highway.

The Cave Road.

Army tanks alone need apply at the fatal "eighth wonder"—the path of torture leading from Magnolia, Ky., to Mammoth cave. It is a Chinese puzzle of a road, snaking round and round, going higher and higher, and somehow managing to jam more slippery red clay and jagged rocks into the square foot than any known stretch on the globe. Two machines cannot possibly pass at most points in its twenty miles, and all of the houses have thoughtfully been moved far away to make certain that suffering radiators will get no water on the trip.

Telegraph Road.

Please enter Telegraph road, Mobile county, Alabama, in your interesting contest. This ante-bellum roadway extends from the city of Mobile north into the county of that name, passing Chickasaw, the town site of the Tennessee Coal and Iron company. Traveling men with cars are forced to use it in making points north of this city.

Recently motorists along this road were confronted with an immense signboard bearing the following legend in two foot letters:

"May God forgive our road commissioners. We cannot."

If You Plan to Tour New Mexico Stop at This Club

THE following letter was received by THE TRIBUNE last week:

"Albuquerque, N. M. — The Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.—Gentlemen: It may be of interest to your readers who are planning on taking overland automobile trips to California and other points in the southwest that upon reaching Albuquerque, N. M., they can call at the office of this club to secure the much needed information that the tourists desire. We can tell them of points of interest in New Mexico and how to get there, likewise inform them as to hotels, camping grounds, etc. We are very thoroughly informed on all roads in the southwest.

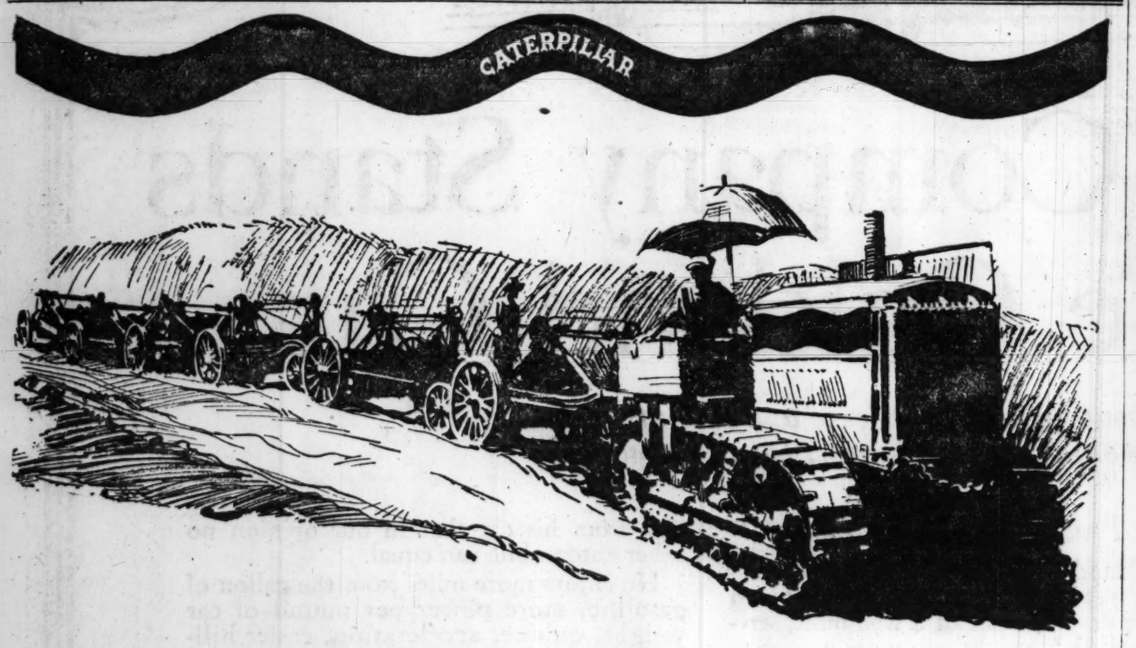
"We will consider it a privilege to extend any courtesies to those calling upon us. Should any one desire information of New Mexico and the southwest before leaving home, all that they need do is to write us, and we will gladly reply promptly.

"Yours very truly,

"NEW MEXICO AUTO CLUB."

Truck Tires.

For the man who drives a big, heavy car the possibilities of truck pneumatics are worth consideration. These are now available in large passenger car sizes, and they are much heavier than corresponding passenger car casings, insuring longer mileage at comparatively slight advance in cost.



Making Road Funds Go Further

Cost figures prove that the Holt "Caterpillar"* Tractor can be used profitably in more phases of road work than any other method or machine〰That's why hundreds of new "Caterpillars"* are getting into action this spring on road work all over the country〰Used singly or in fleets, the savings a "Caterpillar"* will effect are enormous〰Because of its speed, power, flexibility and endurance, "Caterpillar"* supremacy is solidly established for all kinds of road work〰Now is the time to act〰The road funds you can save with "Caterpillars"* this season will more than pay for the equipment〰Write, telephone or wire for further information.

The "Caterpillar's" field of usefulness is by no means limited to road work. On farm and ranch, in the mining, oil and lumber industries—wherever power and endurance is at a premium, the "Caterpillar"* has no real competitor*

SMASHES RECORDS!

Carrying U. S. Mail, a Studebaker LIGHT-SIX has established four speed records between San Francisco and Los Angeles—traveling faster than any automobile or train ever made the trips before—and proving LIGHT-SIX stamina!

Here is what the LIGHT-SIX did:

Made the round trip from San Francisco to Los Angeles, 864.8 miles, in 21 hours 23 minutes elapsed time—a new record.

Made the one-way trip over the Coast Route, 453.7 miles, in 10 hours 12 minutes 30 seconds elapsed time—a new record.

Made the one-way trip over the Valley Route, 411.1 miles, in 9 hours 15 minutes 50 seconds elapsed time—a new record.

Beat "The Lark," fastest express train between San Francisco and Los Angeles, by 3 hours 47 minutes 30 seconds—a new record.

This car was duly deputized, upon orders from Washington, to carry U. S. Mail.

These remarkable records—this exhibition of speed and stamina—prove how the Studebaker NEW LIGHT-SIX can make long-continued runs without mechanical trouble—the car established its records on two trips, and was ready to start on the second immediately after completing the first.

You can have the advantage of its motor's wonderful gasoline economy and the satisfaction of its smoothness of operation only by owning a Studebaker LIGHT-SIX. We are ready to demonstrate and make deliveries.

High Speed Tells How Old Autos May Be Renewed

Buying the Best of Materials Saves in the End

BY HIGH SPEED.

WITHIN the last few years there has come to be a sort of basic standard in automobile bodies and tops, so that a car of this year's vintage does not look greatly different from one built two or three years ago, except as regards the shabbiness of its finish. This works out to the advantage of the car owner in that he can, as need arises, renew top and curtains or any other part of the upper works and have practically a new vehicle. As far as the body goes, it is simply a question of sending it to the paint shop and having it refinished in whatever color or colors one fancies. For the top, the problem is a little more complex, because there are a number of different materials that may be used and it may be of interest to the car owner to review the possibilities along this line.

In the first place, the car owner should know that the best material that can be put into the top and the best workmanship will make the total cost only slightly above that of poor material and unskilled labor. Indeed, for the man who possesses a little skill in mechanics, it is possible to get a top covering already cut to fit the framework of the top that is fitted on his car and himself put it on. But the problem in either case comes down to the material to be used.

For the service to be demanded of it the top material must not spot or stain easily, it must not fade readily nor become lusterless. It must not absorb dust and it must be easy to clean. Of course it must shed water.

The tops used in the early days were either of leather, which serves very well but is expensive, or of heavy waterproofed duck. This latter material has many drawbacks and is not generally used today, because we have found a number of other materials that serve the purpose better without adding greatly to the cost.

Of the cloth top materials mohair is perhaps the most popular. This cloth has a sort of lustrous surface and it sheds water very well. It has the disadvantage of fading rather badly and absorbs grease and dust. Frequent folding gradually wrinkles this material, and in some cases it is also subject to shrinking. This latter condition is a serious failing, because it means that the top is going to be pulled out of shape, the curtains become too small to fit the fasteners that are intended to hold them in place and the result is not edifying.

The leather top of other days is not much used now for the simple reason that its cost is prohibitive. Also leather is not altogether adapted to resisting the changes of temperature to which the top is subjected. The leather loses its resiliency and tends to crack under the constant folding and creasing.

Within the last few years a number of materials have been developed which have a smooth surface, which dirt and dust cannot penetrate and which grease does not stain. These are the type commonly referred to as imitation leather. They really partake more of the nature of oilcloth. They are smooth surfaced, glossy, with the surface grained to resemble leathers of various sorts. There is rubber or a similar compound in their coating which makes them waterproof. By the nature of their compounding they are very flexible, so that the creasing and folding necessary do not wear them out nor cause them to crack as real leather does. These materials do not fade, so that it takes longer for them to become shabby.

It is a good idea when the job of doing over the top is under way to have an envelope made for housing the top when it is down. This will naturally be of the same material as the top itself, and the leather imitations spoken of before are particularly useful here, as the top cover is certain to get more or less mud and grease on it.

In cases where the top is of the "Springfield" type, that is to say, permanent, it requires refinishing after a certain amount of service, just as the ordinary cape tops do. This may be done in one of the leather imitations; in fact, it usually is.

By the time that a top has gotten so shabby that it needs doing over, the chances are that the upholstery of the car will be in need of similar attentions. In the case of the imitation leather tops it is possible to have the seats upholstered in exactly the same material and color as the top.

Car owners should be careful in one respect, and that is in making a change of color of top or upholstery, the interior trim, door linings, kick pads, pockets, etc., must be changed to harmonize with the new shade. In connection with the upholstery it is worth noting that there are a number of combinations to choose from as well as solid colors. Of course, Spanish leather of the best grade is unapproachable for this purpose, and split leather in the better grades is very serviceable and attractive. Imitation leathers are next best; in fact, they are very much superior to a poor grade of leather.

In conclusion, let me emphasize that in top replacement the very best costs so little more than the poorest and yet gives many times the service that only the best should be considered. Patronize a well established and reliable top maker, or if you are going to do the work yourself, buy a ready made top of a well known material. There is never any real saving in trying to cut down the first cost.

Slams of Life

By J. P. McEVOY

CLOTHES! CLOTHES! CLOTHES!

Clothes! Clothes! Clothes!
That's all I can hear all the day;
I get it for breakfast,
I get it at night,
It's dinned in my ears till I long for a fight;
Morning or noon,
December or June,
I hear the same maddening, saddening tune;
Dog—gone!
Wattle I do?
Brother, I ask—do they do that to you?
Midsummer roses or midwinter snowses
Mean nothing to me except clotheses and clotheses.

Clothes! Clothes! Clothes!
I hear it, I hear it;
It crushes my spirit;
I jeer it and sneer it,
But gosh! how I fear it!
Clothes! Clothes! Clothes!
Dresses and suits,
Gowns and boots,
Blouses and hats,
Stockings and spats,
Veils and voiles, brocades and jades,
Colors and tints and glints and shades;
Great geewhillickers! Ain't it the truth?
Mamie or Gladys or Alice or Ruth—
The well known seasons
Are just four reasons
For clothes! clothes! clothes!

Clothes! Clothes! Clothes!
Gawd, what a terrible life!
Beautiful spring
With birds on the wing,
And bowers of flowers mean only one thing:
A flock of new clothes for the wife.
And where it once spelled for us tulip and crocus
Today it presages that some one will soak us
For clothes! clothes!
(That's what I said.)
Clothes! Clothes!
(O, my poor head!)
Clothes! Clothes!
(Wish I were dead!)
Clothes! Clothes! Clothes!

HUDSON SUPER-SIX

To-Day's Market Emphasizes Its Price Advantage

Price comparisons are the first inquiry of judicious buyers to-day.

We feel no need to call attention to Super-Six quality. That you know well. Its leadership is an old, accustomed position—now in its sixth year as the world's largest selling fine car.

But we do urge specific attention to its price. We urge you to compare it with the price of cars to which you have always compared it in quality, performance and distinction.

We know such examination can only enhance appreciation of its value. You will acknowledge a price advantage in Hudson not found in any car of its quality.

Stearns

The Ultimate Car

Uniformity of Operation Is a Stearns Feature

The strongest feature of the Stearns-Knight is its uniformity of operation. Other engines deteriorate with age. This is due to leaky or deteriorating valves or weakened valve springs. Indeed most engine troubles originate in the valves.

The nature of the Knight sleeve valve design causes the engine to improve with use. Stearns owners will tell you that the Stearns-Knight Motor runs sweeter, develops more power, is more flexible after long wear than when new.

When you consider how many hours of lost use of other cars can be traced to engine trouble, this uniformity of operation is a very important reason why you should drive a Stearns-Knight.

We are great believers in the practical value of demonstrations.

Ride in a Stearns—so you can see how smoothly it runs and how flexible is its great flow of power.

FARM AND GARDEN

Costly Caraculs Now Being Raised in U. S. for Fur

By Frank Ridgway.

CARACUL lamb fur is now in such great demand for the making of coats, collars, and the trimming of homespun capes that the raising of Asiatic sheep may offer some relief to the discouraged owners of domestic flocks in this country.

The Caraculs are native to Central Asia and are the only sheep which produce valuable fur. A few years ago thousands of Caracul ewes and lambs roamed along the banks of the tributaries leading to the Caspian sea, but after the invasion of the bolshevist armies comparatively few flocks were left.

American fur dealers had depended on the Asiatic natives to furnish millions of dollars' worth of Caracul fur every year. Today it is claimed by those who are familiar with conditions in Asia that it will be from three to five years before many of the Caracul lamb skins will be brought to the United States.

Transportation Bad at Present.

Exchange and transportation are in a deplorable condition in Central Asia. Various kinds of moneys are used and the rate of exchange is such that the Americans do not care to take the risk of buying. Besides traveling is not safe. The country is infested with robbers, making it dangerous even for the Asiatics themselves to travel across the deserts, their caravans loaded with valuable Caracul lamb skins.

The Caracul or Karakul lamb (these names being used interchangeably) played such an important part in the fur industry of America that it was thought worth while to bring some of them to this country. Dr. C. C. Young of California made the first importation about twelve years ago, and a second about seven or eight years ago. Up to 1915 only three lots, a total of fifty-four Caracul sheep, had been brought to this country, all of them being imported by Dr. Young.

Coats made of Caracul lamb fur sell for $350 to $2,000. The dressed pelts of these lambs are known among furriers as Caracul, Persian lamb, broadtail, Astrachan, krimmer, and baby lamb. The tightness of curl, color of the fur or fleece, and the luster determine the different grades. All of them, furriers say, have been passed through a dyeing process before they are put on the market.

Offer Fur in Various Shades Now.

Until recently the Caracul was offered only in black. Now the white and gray are commonly used, and the white pelts are dyed in taupe, brown, and tan, the latter being most in vogue. When the lambs are born they may be white, yellow, black, or black and white spotted. When the fur is dyed black, with the dyes made in this country, it eventually fades from exposure to light. It is claimed that the German dye does not fade.

It is almost impossible to find a substitute skin that will pass in the market as a Caracul. No one has ever been able to marcel the fleece of a native lamb to make it look like the Caracul fur. The peculiar and characteristic wave and curl of the Caracul cannot be well imitated.

Source of Caracul Lamb.

There has been some confusion concerning the source of the Caracul lamb, frequently referred to as the Persian lamb. Some have thought that it comes from the Persian sheep in this country, but this is a mistake. The Persian sheep in the United States are not fur producing animals except where they are crossed with the Caracul. The misunderstanding was a result of the general usage of the term Persian lamb, originating from the fact that Persians were the first to export Caracul skins to European markets.

CARACUL RAM.—Thousands of caracul sheep on the deserts of central Asia have been killed in the last few years. The caracul is the only sheep in the world that produces valuable fur. Note how straight the hair or wool is in mature sheep.

The value of the pelts depends on the form and tightness of the curls. The most desirable ones have long, pipe shaped curls, and in the finest specimens the points of the closely knit locks are turned in so that few of the ends are to be seen on the surface. On the back line odd and unusual patterns are formed by the waves and curls, occasionally taking the form of a bar.

Fineness, softness, and brilliancy are all factors to be considered in determining the value of the wool or hair. Some dishonest fur dealers have claimed that in order to get the highest grade caracul lamb fur the ewe is slaughtered, but this is not true. It is true, however, that the most desirable pelts come from very young lambs. The curls begin to straighten when they are about a week or ten days old. Among those prematurely born, skins of exceptional value are sometimes found. Some of the herders wrap the young lambs in sacks or heavy cloth to prevent the ewe from disturbing the curl.

When Skins Are Most Valuable.

"The lambs, when dropped, are usually of a glossy black, but rarely golden brown ones occur," explains a sheep specialist of the department of agriculture. "The wool of the lamb is tightly curled over the body and well over the head and down over the legs. The luster is improved by the dyeing process. The curls rapidly lose character, and the lamb should be killed when not older than ten days, though there is much variation in the age at which the skins are of greatest value."

Crossing Caracul with American Sheep

The Caracul sheep are native of Bokhara, in Russian Turkestan, and are mixed hybrids. While they have been raised for many years by the natives of that part of central Asia, scientific breeding has not been practiced, and consequently they are inbred and crossbred. There is no fixed type in their native country. Through several years of selective breeding of the Caracul in this country there are now two types being developed, Danadar and Doozbai. The first one is a small type and the latter a large type.

Some tests have been made in the crossing of the Caracul with sheep in this country, with the object of producing fur. In the government's experimental work it was found that the Caracul cross upon the American Merino was unsatisfactory from a fur standpoint. Private flock owners got about the same results.

Other breeds have been included in making the crosses. None of the close wool sheep gave satisfactory results, especially in the first cross. Encouraging results have come from the crossing of the Caracul with some of the coarse wool breeds, such as the Lincoln and Cotswold. L. L. Heller, a sheep specialist, says that the first cross on practically all of the breeds was nearly valueless. The second cross, using Caracul long wool, half blood ewes with a Caracul ram, produced some skins of fair value, he said. Some of them were worth $10 or $12 at pre-war prices.

BOOK MAGIC

By Guy Lee.

It is fine to step out and do things and be famous;
Careers full of action inspire;
The bimbos who turn up the universe shame us
Who lack the intensified fire.
But it's awful hard work; it cuts in on our pleasure;
It frets us, and saddens our looks—
I've found I can grab most of Fame's fleeting treasure
By reading about it in books.

I'm crazy about a rip snorter of fiction
Such as Kipling or Stevenson spill;
I'm nuts over Maupassant's classics of diction;
Mark Twain gives me many a thrill.
The Library holds my eternal debenture
For the wealth of its crannies and nooks;
I'm the Hero of every Romance and Adventure
I find in its thousands of books.

I can be of the Great by just living their story,
Their rewards are all there at my call;
Why toil for a measure of riches and glory?
Biography loans me it all.
Napoleon fought, and Pitt thundered till dizzy;
I'm as calm as the murmuring brooks;
I get all they got, and am not half so busy,
By reading about 'em in books.

CHANDLER SIX

Famous For Its Marvelous Motor

Lasting Durability and Faithful Service

CHANDLER owners take pleasure in telling us how their cars stand up under hard service. The Chandler "stands up" because it is correct in engineering and sturdy construction. And back of this great car stands one of the distinctly stable companies of the automobile industry.

The Most Closely Priced Fine Car

Chandler has always paved the way in price leadership, and it is just as conspicuously underpriced today as ever in its eight years. Cars which once were nearly competitive now list hundreds of dollars higher, and for smaller cars giving much less you are asked to pay nearly as much.

The mechanical superiority of the Chandler Six makes wide appeal everywhere, and this, coupled with the most beautiful and restful bodies, makes the Chandler stand out prominently in front of all other medium priced cars.

COPY CHIEF WANTED.

This is one of the big jobs in the Advertising Agency business and has potentialities equal to none.
The requirements are, first, the ability to sell the kind of copy that really sells goods.
If we don't believe a copy chief can secure for his men what he can't produce himself;
second, he must have a pleasing personality and the ability to command the respect of a number of men and get from them their best, enthusiastic co-operation which is so essential.
Third, this man must have executive ability or he or she would make the poorest copy chief in the world.
Fourth, an appreciation of good art work and how it can be used to the best advantage of the Art Department.
The Agency which is looking for this man is a national reputation for strong, convincing copy and the writers are all picked men.
Nothing is needed is a leader.
We believe that the man we want is at present located, either as a copy chief or as a writer on one of the biggest and best Agencies or perhaps he is Advertising Manager of some large manufacturer.
To either we have a proposition which should fail to interest him both from the standpoint of immediate salary and future results. Agency located in New York.
Please give details in first letter. All correspondence will be held in utter confidence

WANTED—MALE HELP.

Miscellaneous.

MAN—WHEN IT BECOMES NECESSARY TO seek a new position the average man follows lines of least resistance and looks for the kind of work he knows all about. Many of them could brighten their lives by getting in an entirely different vocation, and some readers of this column will be successful in sales work when they acquire courage to try. During the last few years the writer has devoted his entire attention to the selection of men for sales organizations and of over one thousand men employed by him at least one-half had no previous selling experience. The records made by them have induced me to specialize in the employment of nonexperienced men who have mere native ability, coupled with determination to get out of the rut. E. M. LAW, 58 W. Randolph-st., Suite 812.

WE NEED REAL MEN,

capable assuming responsible duties where compensation and advancement depend upon results produced. The MAN rather than the past experience counts with us. J. P. LAAS, Suite 928, 220 S. State-st.

MEN—WE WANT A FEW YOUNG MEN about 30 years of age, who have advanced to a position at least equal to a chief clerk and have had several years of that discipline prevailing in railroad and other similar organizations. They must be capable of rapid mental development and willing to work hard that they may fit themselves for a managerial position after 30 to 60 days of intensive training in a business entirely new to them. If you are vigorous and healthy and conform to the above qualifications, and have a character and reputation that will bear closest scrutiny, address X 132, Tribune.

AUTOMOBILE ACCESSORY stockman for wholesale house, experienced in keeping stock records; permanent position; give age, experience, and references. Address N D 122, Tribune.

MEN—IF YOU WANT TO break into the sales game, and if you are over 26 years of age and mean business, call 9:30 to 12, 2 to 4:30 p. m. at Suite 316, 5 So. Wabash-av. MR. MARGOLIS.

MAN — ARE YOU DISSATISFIED WITH your present employment? Do you desire a permanent position with hard work and enthusiasm for your job means success in a big way? If you are between 25 and 40 years old, healthy and vigorous, and a pleasing personality, with a desire to make a place for yourself in this young organization of young men, we will be glad to grant you an interview. See Mr. Johnson at 818 W. 63d-st. after 9:30 a. m.

MAN—YOUNG, ABOUT 35, for club; white, Gentile pref., to act as doorman and care for switchboard; must wear uniform. Address N O 132, Tribune.

TODAY IS THE DAY,

For a man who desires a career, one who can think fast and decide definitely and not afraid to act and act swiftly when a proposition is thoroughly investigated before him. Now is the time for action and the man who believes in doing things today. Call Room 208, 222 N. LaSalle-st.

FOR SALE—
CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY LANDS.
Your last opportunity. In Central Alberta and Saskatchewan are rich, level, lands—open prairie ready for the plow, interspersed with trees, which afford excellent shelter for stock. Here grain growing, dairying, and live stock raising are the leading lines of industry. The country is ideal for mixed farming. The Canadian Pacific Railway is offering a large area of these lands in the Lloydminster and Battleford districts. This fertile land will become the home of thousands of prosperous farmers. On one farm in Scapa Wheeler grows world's prize wheat. Near Lloydminster the world's prize oats have been grown. Raise the best stock and dairying is made. A man can soon become independent on a farm in this district. These lands can be bought now at an average of about $18 per acre. 10% to pay down and further payment of principal until end of fourth year, then sixteen annual payments. Interest is 6% per M. Michigan.

BE SURE

OUR DAILY WORK for 20 years has been helping men and women everywhere to secure happy prosperous homes in Michigan. The success of our plan justifies the statement that there is no surer way for you to become independent.

OUR PLAN is as simple as A. B. C. We help you start. Our terms are within your reach. The price is only $15 to $30 per acre for choice hardwood land, convenient to good markets, towns, schools, churches, and railroads. We give you FREE insurance protection, we have experts who give you FREE advice on practical farming, while Michigan gives five years' tax exemption to settlers.

OWN YOUR HOME and farm. What a relief from "high rents." Think of the advantages to your family—delightful climate, home water, fresh eggs, vegetables, fresh cows, good milk and butter. You not only save money on table foods, but you have the pride and satisfaction that home ownership gives to everybody.

AN ILLUSTRATED BOOKLET, with a big message is yours for the asking. It tells how we help settlers, how successful stock, dairy truck, and fruit farms on our tracts in Antrim, Kalkaska, and Otsego Counties.

BE INDEPENDENT. Be free. Be a home and farm owner. Just write, "Send me Free Booklet." Do it today. Address

REAL ESTATE FOR EXCHANGE.

Farms and Acres.

TO EXCHANGE.

3,000 acre improved farm in one of the finest valleys in the state of Montana, midway between Butte and Anaconda, two of that state's fastest growing cities. This ranch is located in the Silver Bow Valley and is crossed by three Transcontinental lines of railroads, besides being traversed by the electric line between Butte and Anaconda. The station of Gregson is located almost in the center of this ranch, and part of the townsite of Gregson is part of the ranch. Gregson Hot Springs, famous the world over for its medicinal qualities and extraordinary hot water with the magnificent hotel and other features are located within twenty rods of the ranch home, a crackerjack cement driveway connecting the cities of Butte and Anaconda, is being completed and runs right by the buildings.

READY FOR SUBDIVISION.

This property is ready for subdividing at the present time, located as it is midway between Butte and Anaconda, in that portion of the finished Silver Bow Valley which is just far enough away from those two busy smoky cities to put it outside the area which on account of their smelters "make Butte and Anaconda disagreeable from a residential standpoint and connected to both cities by a fine electrical suburban line. About a year ago one of America's greatest subdivision experts made a report stating that Gregson was the natural and logical location for Montana's Great Copper City, and that all it needed was a man with PUSH, BRAINS, and ambition to make it such.

EXPERT'S ESTIMATE OF VALUE.

Below is an estimate of the value placed on the ranch from a subdivision standpoint by an expert subdivider, who investigated it.

40 acres, divided into 360 25 ft. lots for business purposes, $500 each	$180.000
40 acres, divided into 140 60 ft. lots for restricted residential purposes, $500 each	70.000
80 acres, divided into 280 80 ft. lots, for restricted residence purposes, $375 each	105.000
80 acres, divided into 560 30 ft. lots for semi-restricted residence purposes, $185 each	113.600
80 acres, divided into 16 5 acre lots for garden purposes, $1,250 each	20.000
80 acres, divided into 16 5 acre lots for garden purposes, $1,000 each	16.000
160 acres, divided into 10 10 acre lots for garden fruit purposes, $2,000 each	32.000
640 acres, divided into 16 40 acre lots for cottages unrestricted, $8,000 each	128.000
40 acres, divided into 280 30 ft. lots for cottages unrestricted, $65.00	18.000
1,240 acres 1,684 lots	$672.800
1,760 acres for dairy and farm purposes at $150	264.000
3,000 acres.	$936.800

The above estimate of what the ranch might be subdivided and sold for, we believe, is conservative. The ranch has many, many other attractive features, and can be easily developed water supply for irrigating purposes, close proximity to forest reserve, and giving cheap fuel supply and cheap range, and if subdivided the possibilities of extensive railroad trackage on account of the three trunk lines of railroad that cross it.

The owner of this property is well past the middle age of life and comfortably well off, and prefers leisure to further work or wealth, he will therefore be willing to offer first and clear of all incumbrance in exchange for a reliable piece of income property in any live, growing city, and the party selected he will exchange and take income property subject to some incumbrance. All communication will be considered absolutely confidential and should be addressed to our Exchange Department, SPERRY REALTY & INVESTMENT COMPANY, Pittsburgh Building, St. Paul, Minnesota.

BIDDLE SPORT, $2,750

From the ground up the Biddle is a custom built sport car. Every line evidences smartness and speed. It is a car of quality.

The body is a narrow double cowled beveled edge creation that gradually tapers off to the radiator in a sharp knifelike edge. The upholstery and top are black; lamps, radiator trim, etc., are silver. The body is finished in deep purple and the chassis and wire wheels silver gray. Molded gray Fabrikord seat covers. Two extra wire wheels, tires, and tire covers are mounted on hangers on either side of the car at the radiator.

Mechanically the car is perfect and the motor is very quiet. It is one of the latest series and presents the appearance of new. For a car of this quality our price of $2,250 is extremely low. To duplicate would cost over $5,000.

Standard new car guarantee.

PACKARD

Packard Twin Six touring. This is our latest model in the short wheel base. The motor and chassis is in rebuilt and guaranteed condition and the body has been refinished in moleskin gray, with lighter gray body panels and striping. This is one of the most attractive rebuilt cars we have ever turned out and a real "buy" at $4,500.

Packard Twin Six touring. This is the same series that we are selling new today. The motor has been partially overhauled and the body is in first class coach condition, new top and glass winter sides are part of the extra equipment. This is an excellent buy for any one at our special price of $3,000.

Packard Twin Six phaeton. Here is our popular five passenger sport care at a very low price. The paint condition is very good, cord tires are nearly new, and this equipment very complete. The car can be put into immediate service, with no mechanical work required. Special this week at $1,250.

Cadillac roadster, 1915, model 51. Here is a car that has been given excellent care. The motor has just been overhauled and the coach condition is exceptionally good. The tires are oversize and the car is equipped with Rudge-Whitworth wire wheels. Should sell very quickly at our low price of $1,000.

Locomobile touring, 1914-48. Here is a high grade dependable car, at an extremely low price. The tires are in good condition and nothing is necessary to the car mechanically. This is an ideal car for touring or heavy work of any description. $600.

Buick Touring car, 1920 model. This car can hardly be classed as used. It is perfect in every detail and shows absolutely no signs of wear in any particular. The tires are new, the spare is new, and the paint and top perfect. We are glad to offer this car at $1,500.

Paige touring, 1916 model. This car reflects its careful usage. The cord tires are nearly new and the coach condition way above the average. Mechanically the car is good, and the equipment includes new spare cord tires, winter sides, bumper, etc. It is a good investment for a dealer at $600.

YOUR BEST GUARANTEE CAN ONLY BE THE COMPANY BEHIND THE CAR.

Let this be your guide before buying.

For YOUR protection, YOUR guidance, and YOUR safety we maintain at a salary larger than you would afford, an Automobile Expert. An engineer who values a used car for what it IS—not was.

We allow no more in trade than the car should sell for. Any extra saving we can make is passed along to you. Used cars intelligently bought and efficiently rebuilt need no false valuation. Our appraisals are rock bottom and therefore our resale prices must be.

Our used cars are not old boulevard cruisers with a new coat of paint, and advertised as "wonderful." They're exactly what we claim for them. Behind every car is an ironclad guarantee—the same service and integrity that backs our new cars.

You need know nothing about an automobile and feel safe in buying here.

Forty good cars are here for you to select from. Among which are:

Marmons,	Oldsmobile,
Daniels,	Stutz,
Overlands,	Haynes,
Coles,	Holmes,
Oaklands,	Reo,
Saxons,	Dodge,
Jordan,
ETAOINSHR Moline Knight

and many others.

All attractive models in a wide range of prices. Our exclusive selling plan will appeal to you. Rely on our expert judgment—get our guarantee – your money gladly refunded if we fail to satisfy.

CADILLAC'S 6 BARGAINS

CADILLAC 8, TYPE 59, SUBURBAN SEDAN—This is the latest and current series delivered new today would cost over $5,700. This car has had but very little mileage and does not look like a used car; is equipped with a set of Royal cord tires that show practically no wear; one extra bumper, etc.; upholstered in beautiful velour. This car is guaranteed by us. Here is an opportunity to save some money on a Cadillac car that is nearly new; special for this sale, $4,750.

CADILLAC 8, TYPE 57, TOWN LIMOUSINE. One of the classiest and best looking town limousines of the late series 57 that we have ever delivered. Upholstered in rich imported velour. The body on this car is custom made and would cost almost the price we are asking for the entire car. This car does not look like a used automobile and has been in the original owner's hands until traded to us. Mechanical condition guaranteed. Paint exceptionally fine and of special color; equipped with 6 Rudge-Whitworth wire wheels, bumper, clock, extra set of cord tires and 2 spares. Is the best bargain we have ever offered in a town limousine. Price $3,500.

CADILLAC 8, TYPE 57, SPORT PHAETON—This is the latest double letter series. Painted dark Cadillac blue. Mechanical condition is all that you could wish for and is guaranteed by us. Equipped with excellent set of cord tires and one extra, bumper, clock, etc. This car will bear most rigid examination and demonstration, and for the price we ask is probably the best bargain we have ever offered. Special for this sale, $2,750.

PEERLESS SEDAN—This is the latest model, practically new car. Customer exchanging for one of our limousines. If you are looking for a slightly used car of a high grade model that cannot be classed as a used automobile the price we have put this car at makes it the best bargain we believe offered. Mechanical condition almost new. Excellent set of Goodyear cord tires, one extra and bumper. Paint, upholstering, in fact, the entire car can hardly be told from new. This is a real bargain at our figure of $3,250.

CADILLAC, 4 CYLINDER, 1914 TOURING CAR—One of the most reliable models we have ever built. This car is in most excellent mechanical condition; equipped with an excellent set of tires; top, upholstering and paint good. If you are looking for a reliable Cadillac at a ridiculously low price this car will surely please you; special for this sale, $450.

DETROIT ELECTRIC, DOUBLE DRIVE—This is one of the late models and a car that has been carefully used here in the city; is equipped with excellent set of pneumatic tires; seats 4 passengers comfortably; has had new set of batteries in December and they are guaranteed for 2 years; paint and upholstering exceptionally fine; will bear most rigid examination and demonstration; special for this sale, $1,500.
